GENERAL STRIKE THREATENS PORTLAND

Today

Congratulations to Labor.
Earth's Biggest Tunnel.
The Rex Comes In.
A Market for Milk.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

GOOD NEWS for everybody, especially organized union labor. The general strike, aimed not at employers but at the public, has been promptly crushed in San Francisco. Outside agitators, alleged to have promoted the strike against the public rather than against employers, picked the wrong city for their operation. San Francisco men are not patient when told that a private organization will take the place of legal government and tell citizens what they may and may not do.

SAN FRANCISCO seems to have disposed of its "general strike" much more quickly than was done in England or anywhere else. The citizens are to be congratulated on the refusal to compromise or "discuss" anything so long as the laws of the nation, state and the city were defied.

AND UNION labor is to be congratulated, as it will doubtless learn in a public statement from Mr. Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, on the fact that it has learned an important lesson, namely, that the 123,000,000 people of the United States must run this country, not any group that decides to replace the government.

Union labor will recall with gratitude Mr. Green's emphatic statement that the American Federation of Labor had not authorized the strike, did not approve it, and had nothing to do with starting it.

WORKINGMEN AND employers in the United States will be interested to know that in France, among all the forty million Frenchmen, there are only nine hundred and fifty-seven on strike. Of these, seven hundred are bricklayers in Paris, twenty-seven are Paris wood-workers, asking for higher wages, and two hundred and thirty are employes of a woolen mill at Roubaix, who object to a cut in wages. They call that "labor trouble" in France.

KING GEORGE pressed a "golden switch," and the world's biggest tunnel under the water was opened, with a million citizens of Liverpool cheering.

This champion tunnel, under the River Mersey, connects Liverpool with Birkenhead, with four lanes for traffic, and cost forty million dollars. The King named it "Queenway" in honor of Queen Mary, and made a good speech, praising "the will and power of men," able to build a tunnel for many lines of traffic," running below "tidal water, bearing ships of the world."

HAVING FINISHED the marvelous Mersey Tunnel, the British, remembering Napoleon's eternal question, "What did you do next day?" will now proceed to build a waterway that will make it possible for boats to go from "the Wash" in the North Sea, southeastward across England to Bristol Channel.

The United States, which spends billions these days as though they were small change, might try some canal building; for instance, from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic, all on United States territory, without need of asking permission or co-operation from Canada, and another canal through the Mississippi Valley, connecting Chicago and all the Great Lakes cities by water with the Gulf of Mexico, to Asia through the Panama Canal, and all the rest of earthly creation.

MAN UNTIL recently was a migratory animal, forever moving in search of new pastures, new game supplies, new kinds of men, easier to kill. He is still most interesting when travel excitement is upon him.

You would have liked to see Mussolini's big Italian steamer, "Rex," slide up to her dock in New York, with many heavy growls from the engines.

The Italian sailor is a fine type, with deep chest, powerful neck, quick movement, and the officers from the captain down are capable and courageous.

THE GIANT SHIP moved up to the dock quietly, as well controlled as a baby carriage stopping in an apartment hallway.

There was a wild rush by the waiting crowd to the side of the ship, especially toward the steerage and tourist class. Hands waved frantically, messages were shouted, there were some Fascist salutes from the dock, more old-fashioned hand-waving.

AT THE SHORE end of the first-class gangplank, a small Italian boy about two years old was crying "mamma, mamma." In a moment, mamma, first off

ARMY POST HELD UP BY GUNMEN

Raider Lines Up 6 on Governors Island, Frees Prisoner

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP.)—Boldly cowing several soldiers, an unidentified gunman "stormed" the Governor's Island post of the United States Army and executed a daring delivery of an Army prisoner today.

The prisoner was Melvin Blanton, of Camdan, O., an inmate of the disciplinary barracks.

Blanton, who had twice escaped from Camp Thomas, Kentucky, and once from Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indiana, was working with two other prisoners at the southernmost end of the island.

Sentry Stephen F. Grezegorek stood on guard, armed with an automatic shotgun, when the gunman approached, drew a pistol and said to Grezegorek:

"Drop that gun or you'll get hurt."

The sentry dropped the gun; the man picked it up.

Just then, an Army truck with two soldiers and a chauffeur arrived. The invader forced them to get off the truck and stand with the sentry and the other two prisoners.

Next came a passenger automobile bearing two members of the island detachment of the Civilian Conservation Corps. The civilian took command of this development abruptly. The corps members took their place in the lineup.

Warning the group not to pursue, Blanton and his deliverer ran to the eastern end of the island and climbed into a rowboat.

As the amazed soldiers hastened to spread the alarm, the rowboat crossed the channel to the Brooklyn side of the bay.

The military hastily organized a search for the two men.

Govneror's Island is located just off the Battery, almost in the shadows of Wall street's skyscrapers.

Blanton, who was 23 years old, was a prisoner from the 2nd Corps Area. He would have been discharged in 1935 if the remainder of his sentence had been served without incident.

His army records give his mother's name as Mrs. Ella McCullum, of Camden, O.

Blanton's deliverer was described as about 5 feet 6 inches tall, weight about 150 pounds, and with a ruddy complexion.

Duce Sees No War In Europe for Years

ROME, July 20.—(AP.)—There will be no general European war in the near future, Premier Mussolini told Bishop Miguel Dandrea of Buenos Aires today. Mussolini said:

"I can affirm there will be no war, at least for several years, because the world powers are making prevention of war their first thought."

They refuse to emerge until contractors give them double pay for working underground. The men are installing new American safes in an addition to the bank.

Passengers Shaken As Street Cars Crash

Passengers on two Elliott street cars were shaken up in a crash at Chartiers avenue and Corliss street today. No one was hurt.

An inbound car split a switch at the intersection and the rear trucks carried the car into the front end of an outbound car.

'Minnie,' the Cat, Pal of Notables, Dying of Old Age

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP.)—Minnie, the cat that came out of nowhere at the dawn of prohibition and passed through the dry era rubbing against the legs of more celebrities than you could shake a stick at, is about to kick the bucket.

Veterinarians at the Ellin Prince Speyer Hospital, diagnosing her ailment as old age and stomach tumor, give her about two weeks more to live.

For 14 years Minnie was mascot and official rat slayer of the Artists and Writers' Club, near the Metropolitan Opera House. Among her acquaintances she numbers Enrico Caruso, Antonio Scotti, Lawrence Tibbett, William J. Fallon, Donald Henderson Clarke, Albert Payson Terhune, Joe Cook, Winsor McCay, Clare Briggs and a host of others.

NORTH DAKOTA FEUD TENSE

By JUSTIN H. FORREST
International News Service.

BISMARCK, N. D., July 20.—Tenseness marked today's situation in Bismarck, where there are two Governors claiming authority, national guardsmen on duty and federal troops at Fort Lincoln.

Developments hinged on the outcome of the attempt to get the State Legislature into session under the call issued by William Langer, the Governor deposed by the State Supreme Court.

The House, controlled by Langer forces, met yesterday and announced to both Langer and Acting Gov. Ole H. Olson, who has peacefully taken possession of the Governor's office, that it had met and was ready to do business. Langer controls the House.

But in the Senate there were but 19, at the most, of the 49 members present, and they did not organize under the special call.

Today Olson was in the Governor's office, and Langer occupied the Governor's mansion. Olson moved to oust political associates of Langer from appointive offices.

Langer came out of hiding to address a meeting of his followers last night.

MAN KILLED ON LINKS BY LIGHTNING

Bolts Strike 3 Homes On North Side; Roads Flooded

A grass-cutter, father of seven children, was killed by lightning today as he worked on rich Oakmont Country Club's golf course.

Lightning from the same severe storm sweeping over the Pittsburgh district struck three North Side homes this morning.

Frank Ciricione, 42, of Virginia avenue, Oakmont, was hurled four feet from his mowing machine when the bolt struck him as he worked on No. 7 tee.

Bobby Loeffler, assistant superintendent of the course, found him lying where he fell. Dr. D. A. Fusia, of Oakmont, pronounced him dead.

On the North Side, a mother and three children were showered with wreckage when lightning struck the room in which they were sleeping. They escaped injury.

Two North Side fire alarm circuits were temporarily decommissioned when hit by lightning.

The rainstorm saved Pittsburgh from a devastating heat wave which prevailed over most of the nation, leaving a death toll of more than 50 and withering crops. Temperatures ranged from 96 in Chicago to 115 in Oklahoma and other plains states.

Lightning first struck the home of John Theis, a two-story brick at 14 Watsonia boulevard, setting fire to the roof. The bolt aroused Theis, his wife and son, but none was injured.

During the fire, an outbound

PRISON FLOODED IN ESCAPE PLOT

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 20.—(AP.)—Rioting prisoners in the county jail here today flooded the main cell block, smashed windows and tore out plumbing and light fixtures in an unsuccessful effort at a wholesale jail delivery.

Armed with sash weights and pieces of pipe, the prisoners defied guards but Warden E. B. Erwin announced at 10:15 a. m., the "prisoners were under control" within a short time.

Five defendants in the "Scottsboro" case, in solitary confinement in another section of the jail, were not involved in the rioting.

PACIFIC PEACE ROOSEVELT AIM

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt is believed to be contemplating using Hawaii as a form to enunciate a doctrine of peace and neighborliness in the Pacific.

The President, now headed for the distant outpost of the United States, will deliver a radio address in Honolulu July 28, Washington heard he might take the opportunity at the "Crossroads of the Pacific" for a friendly and general expression of views on world problems and of his eagerness to extend the "good neighbor" policy throughout the vast Pacific region.

This policy was first applied specifically to Latin America. Administration men say it has reaped rewards in improved relations.

ABOARD U. S. S. NEW ORLEANS ACCOMPANYING PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 20.—(AP.)—Pleased by a visit at sea from the Navy dirigible Macon and a favorable report from Postmaster General James A. Farley on postal finances, President Roosevelt cruised toward his Hawaiian vacation ground today.

Last night the President, aboard the cruiser Houston, made public a message from Farley, reporting that the Postoffice Department showed a surplus of approximately $5,000,000 for the fiscal year ending last June 30. It was the first surplus shown by the department since 1919.

Visiting Fireman Sounds False Alarm

A visiting fireman on a holiday at the Bellevue Firemen's Carnival last night couldn't think of anything else to do, so firemen say they believe he turned in a false alarm that sent the carnival crowd—firemen and all—scurrying to a vacant house at 240 Grant avenue.

Bellevue firemen traced the fake call to a public phone in a drug store, and the druggist recalled seeing a fireman using the phone.

'They're the Men,' He Says After Many Tests

Three suspects faced a holdup victim whose eyes were put out by his tormentors three months ago.

Tense, straining to catch their voices, the victim sat, his face emotionless as he turned to a detective, picked out two of them, and said:

"Yes—those are the men I think held me up."

George Stratigos, 49, Greek bowling alley proprietor, his eyes jabbed by one of three men who ransacked his place at 3804 Fifth avenue, last April 12, told police the robbers fled with $15.

Three suspects—John Arendash and Nick Derembeis, both of Homestead, and Mike Arendash, of St. Clair street, East Liberty—were lined up with three city detectives. No names were mentioned, the men in the lineup being identified by numbers, 1 to 6.

ALL QUESTIONED

City Detective Thomas Morgan questioned each—detectives as well as the suspects. Stratigos, depending on his memory of voices, picked out John Arendash and Derembeis. The lineup was changed. The questions were put differently. Three times the test was made. Each time Stratigos picked out the same two.

Three men had entered the Stratigos place and one of the trio

Bridge Dynamited In Onion Strike

KENTON, O., July 20.—(INS.)—Dynamiting of a bridge and the arrest of 10 persons today marked a renewal of hostilities in the strike of 400 union onion workers in the fertile Sciotto marshlands, the largest onion growing fields in the world.

The bridge dynamited was over a creek which flows into the Scioto River, south of McGuffey, and apparently the blast had been set off to prevent special deputies from reaching the village, according to Sheriff Wilbur Mitchell.

GAS ROUTS MOB AT SEATTLE

SEATTLE, July 20.—(AP.)—Massed police, firing long range tear gas guns, today drove longshore pickets away from Pier 40 and Pier 41.

Officers, led by Mayor Charles L. Smith, stood on a viaduct over the picket lines and laid down a barrage of tear gas and nausea gas.

The popping of the bombs, waving billions of fumes, and figures of men sprawled across the docks gave the impression of a serious battle, but it was not believed by police that any bullets were fired.

At least four policemen, and scores of strikers were affected by gas.

The piers where the rioting occurred are centers of non-union loading operations and were the scene of vicious rioting Wednesday. Today's clash occurred shortly after Mayor Smith had assumed personal charge of the police upon the unexplained resignation of Chief of Police C. P. Howard.

They said Volpe denied relationship to the Wilmerding Volpes.

TROOPS SET FOR ACTION AT DOCKS

San Francisco Quiet As Mass Walkout Ends There

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—(AP.)—The danger point of the Pacific Coast maritime conflict shifted to Portland, Ore., today as the general strike relaxed its grip on the San Francisco Bay cities.

As the back-to-work ranks of union labor in the bay area swelled to nearly their full force of 100,000, reports of a threatening situation came from Portland, where the labor "strategy" committee voted to call a general walkout if National Guardsmen, mobilized by orders of the Governor, are moved onto the water front.

Gov. Julius L. Meier, of Oregon, had ordered the mobilization of 1,100 national guardsmen to "prevent loss of life and bloodshed" when shippers attempt to open the strike-bound port of Portland today.

The mass back-to-work movement in the San Francisco Bay area was virtually completed last night when the executive committees of the Alameda County Building Trades and Central Labor Councils declared the strike ended.

TROLLEY STRIKE ON

In San Francisco, the major service still crippled was the Market Street Railway Company system, whose American Federation of Labor union workers were declared still on strike by S. W. Douglas, secretary.

Douglas declared the union men, who made demands for recognition and arbitration of grievances when they left their cars a day before the mass walkout, will refuse to work until "the company corrects the deplorable conditions under which we work."

The 1,200 teamsters of the East Bay voted to return to work, but to continue refusing to move waterfront freight until the maritime strike is settled. San Francisco's 2,500 teamsters were expected to take similar action.

English Woman Midas Asks Pair of 'Garters'

LONDON, July 20.—(AP.)—Lady Houston, England's "Lady Bountiful," wants a new pair of garters—the ceremonial kind the British government gives famous men.

Writing in her magazine, the Saturday Review, today she said:

"The deaths of the Duke of Wellington and the Duke of Marlborough have created an unexpected problem for filling two vacancies that have arisen in the Order of the Garter.

"As one would be of no use to me, I modestly suggest that I be given them both."

Lady Houston became England's wealthiest woman when she inherited the $35,000,000 estate of her late husband, Sir Robert Houston, the shipping magnate, several years ago. Her charitable gifts earned her the title of "Lady Bountiful."

STRIKE PERIL SHIFTS TO PORTLAND AS TROOPS MASS

and workers for arbitration by President Roosevelt's mediation board.

The presence on the coast of Postmaster General James A. Farley, who is expected here today from Southern California, was seen as another possible federal move in the maritime trouble. It was reported understood in Washington that Farley will discuss mail subsidies, which he has been authorized to investigate, with officials of some of the steamship companies involved in the dispute.

The joint maritime strike committee here set a meeting for today to consider the mediation proposal. A spokesman said:

"We are still on strike and will carry on."

Police roundups of alleged radicals, in line with Mayor Angelo J. Rossi's pledge to a citizens' committee to drive out all "Communistic agitators," brought five more arrests last night.

RADICALS IN NET

Among the five were Harry Jackson, said by police to be "one of the three most powerful Communist organizers in the nation, and Elaine Black, woman secretary of the International Labor Defense here and alleged financial backer of Communist activities.

The Alameda County Trade and Labor Councils' resolution declaring the general strike ended asserted that its purpose had been "accomplished." It declared the mass walkout was a demonstration in support of the maritime unions and a protest against the calling out of the National Guardsmen by Gov. Frank F. Merriam, of California.

The resolution accepted proposals offered by the President's board for settlement of the coast-wide walkout and pledged continued moral support for the maritime workers.

Troops Near Portland With Guns and Gas

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20. — (AP.) — National guardsmen camped 10 miles from Portland today, ready to advance on the waterfront with machine guns and light howitzers if maritime pickets interfere with shippers' plans to open the strike-bound port.

Union labor poised over the city its counter weapon, the threat of a general strike if any of the troops set foot on the waterfront.

Eleven hundred guardsmen mobilized hastily last night on orders of Gov. Julius L. Meier, who said citizens of the state, shippers, lumbermen and grain growers urged the action.

The Portland strike strategy committee said the order canceled its promise that a general strike would be held in abeyance pending further negotiations. That was the understanding with Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, administration emissary assisting in strike negotiations here.

Senator Wagner, who said he regretted Gov. Meier felt it was necessary to call out the troops at this time, was assured by the strike committee that 24 hours' notice would be given if a general strike call were issued.

TROOPS HEAVILY ARMED

The troops were accompanied by a special gas company ready to meet mobs with tear gas, vomit gas and toxic gas. Automatic rifles were backed by howitzers, which shoot one-pound shells.

The Portland strike strategy committee charged the move was inspired by employers "determined to prevent a settlement, fearing that the government board will award to the strikers their just demands."

The committee charged Gov. Meier was permitting himself to be "used" by the employers.

Ben Osborne, executive secretary of the Oregon Federation of Labor, advised of the mobilization order, said:

"It's a hell of a governor we have."

Shippers had advised the Governor that police could not supply adequate protection for cargo working.

BALK RED PLOT IN FRISCO

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Police today in a swift raid arrested four men and a woman as the Communist leaders in the Pacific Coast labor strife.

Captured were Harry Jackson, said to be one of the three most powerful Communist organizers in America; John Rogers, "seaman;" Joseph Wilson, Harry Provost and Elaine Black.

They were found in Jackson's home, the police said, planning a "comeback" for the broken Communist forces here—broken in a series of spectacular raids as an aftermath of the general strike.

The woman is secretary of the International Labor Defense and is said to have furnished the funds to promote Communist activities in the San Francisco area.

At the same time raids were being staged on radicals at Berkeley, across the bay, and at San Jose, 50 miles south of San Francisco, and at other Pacific Coast cities.

CARMEN REPEAT PERIL CHARGES

Further testimony on charges that Pittsburgh street car operators work under conditions harmful to their health was placed before the wage controversy arbitration board today by Joseph Thomas, business agent of the trolley men's union.

Thomas, called to the stand as the board resumed its hearing, testified that since the one-man cars were placed in operation 10 years ago, more operators had dropped dead while at work or shortly afterward than at any time in the 30 years of his experience.

The union representative said the men frequently we asked to take time off, at their own expense, following regular physical examinations.

the ship, dashed down the plank, knelt on the boards, lifted the baby in her arms, talked to him, understood every word that he was trying to say.

There she knelt, and there she talked, holding up the line of passengers, anxious to get off, but not objecting. She did not see her parents or anybody else until she had finished talking to the baby.

The crowd was interesting. Old women, with lives of hard work written in their faces and in their hands, wearing the plainest old-fashioned dresses, down to the ground, big at the waist, were waiting for daughters or sons that had been spending the money abroad. One important man was there, strutting, with waving hair, holding his chin high, making everybody else feel like a worm.

There was the man with a single eyeglass without even a string tied to it. Men in a hurry, and usually indifferent, would pause, stop, bow and obey, when he looked at them first out of the single eyeglass, then out of the uncovered eye, and spoke brief, rumbling words.

BAGGAGE HANDLERS were there, an admirable organization which makes necessary three men and three separate tips to get a valise from the dock into a taxicab.

The richest passengers, with the biggest automobiles, and the most aristocratic chauffeurs waiting for them, nearly always looked cross and unhappy, while a couple carrying two babies and five parcels, besides bags, from the tourist class, were absolutely blissfully happy. Providence is just.

MAYOR LAGUARDIA, of New York, in spite of opposition, causes 47,000 quarts of milk to be sold every day at eight cents a quart to help the very poor. Farmers will be interested to know of the Mayor's statement that he would sell more milk at the same price, if he could get it. Many farmers selling their milk at four cents a quart and less in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut might oblige him at a profit.

With modern automobile trucks, it is possible to carry a thousand pounds of milk to New York for less than forty dollars—which would be the increase over four cents a quart on one thousand quarts, weighing one ton.

MINERS' LOCAL LOSES CHARTER

The Logan's Ferry local of the United Mine Workers of America has lost its charter for what officials of District No. 5 of the union called "violation of all terms of their agreement."

Union members formerly employed at the Allegheny-Pittsburgh Coal Company at Logan's Ferry have been on strike for more than two months in spite of orders from district officials to return to work.

At a meeting in New Kensington Wednesday night, they were leaders in a motion that was passed calling for a general strike in the Allegheny-Kiski Valley if coal is supplied the West Penn Power Company in Springdale, formerly supplied by the Logan's Ferry mine. Revoking the charter is expected to lessen the possibility of the strike.

Under them shipments from Pittsburgh to Havana will be two days, to Jamaica, two days; Mexico City, Guatemala, San Salvador, Cristobal, three days; Georgetown, British Guiana, four days; Rio Janeiro, Montevideo and Buenos Aires, eight days; Santiago, seven days, and Lima, five days.

NOVELIST SEES FRISCO GAY AGAIN

Elenore Meherin Gives Round-Town View As Strike Ends

(Elenore Meherin, famous novelist, toured San Francisco as it celebrated the conclusion of the general strike, and has written her impressions for International News Service.)

By ELENORE MEHERIN
International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20. — With a grin on her face and a good beef steak tucked beneath her belt, San Francisco emerged from the gloom of her general strike to trip the light fantastic back to freedom and a full dinner pail today. Market street throws off its dim, monastic quiet and stirs exultant to the march of many feet.

Stores open; street cars make a noisy din and a riotous horn of plenty pours vegetables and golden fruit into the city's lap. It's gay and friendly as a country fair. Everyone is abroad to see the old town smiling and herself again. A commission district man said:

"We've enough food to feed armies."

He pointed to tons of artichokes, purple figs and immense yellow pears and added:

"We ought to call a big banquet if we ever expect to eat half of this!"

CAN OPENERS PUT AWAY

Shopping centers are crowded as housewives put away the can opener and bring in the fresh fruits and green vegetables that are, at any time, the city's boast.

A contagious spirit of good will emanates from a throng that yesterday eyed each other with doubt and silence. Women smile and offer warmly:

"Well, thank goodness that bitterness is over. But I wouldn't have missed the excitement for worlds! Almost as good as the fire days."

The issue which brought forth the general strike is not settled, yet the intensity of the strife is passed. Even among the laboring classes are many who feel the move was a mistake. Harry Bridges, leader of the extreme radical faction, loudly denounced his opponents and the world at large. San Francisco took a "run-out" on him. He doesn't like it.

San Francisco answers:

"Who cares! Imagine asking us to starve on a gorgeous sunny day with fruit falling from the trees and grapes all purple on the hill! Call next year and we may feel more abstemious—oh yeah!"

PUBLIC ATTITUDE

That's about the attitude of the man on the street. The general strike is intimidation. It is war against ourselves. And as a small, wrinkled peddler of pencils remarked:

"Sympathy strike is it? Well, who gets the sympathy when we all starve?"

A gay ironic note was added to the festive mood yesterday when within an hour after the strike was called off there emerged from every beauty shop tightly curled heads which smirked down Grant avenue, quite proud of themselves. San Francisco is a bit of a jade and doesn't like it when she has to go minus finger waves, manicures and facials. Today the Helens of the Golden Gate are all set, not to sink a thousand ships, but to set them gallantly on the wave again.

Richard Washburn Child Finds U. S. Government Unprepared To Curb Alien 'Revolutionists'

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

NOTHING is easier than to go off half-cocked about such a major inflammation as the San Francisco and Pacific Coast "general strike."

Gravely enough, Washington has watched the developments and has become conscious of the overwhelming opinion in the United States and the nation-wide question marks.

Question I—Is this a strike at all?

Question II—Could organized labor receive a greater harm for years to come than to be used as a mask for revolution?

Question III—What are the real sources of this revolution? Are they foreign?

Question IV—Why is it that a federal government has never provided itself with the facilities to identify and put thumbs down on domestic or foreign secret and undercover leaders of plots against the United States?

HERE are the answers as Washington feels obliged to give them today, written here in plain words.

Not one out of a hundred persons in the United States can tell you what the strike is aimed to obtain. It is said that it aimed to get "recognition of labor unionism."

Collective bargaining is already recognized under the NRA and federal laws. If collective action is necessary the first step is to strike in the sense of collective refusal to work.

The next steps approach or go over the danger line of illegality by sympathetic strikes, boycott, and excessive duress. These steps are subject to the facts and the decision of the courts.

The next step is criminal action—sabotage, destruction of property, blackmail, extortion, assault and battery and killings. SO FAR, legal or illegal, the action of the workers has been labor action, collective action, directed against EMPLOYERS.

When the direct action goes beyond this, when it aims to put compulsion on citizens, when it seizes or paralyzes the essential services of a community, when it takes the form of pretending to supplant the officials of law and order and takes over the functions of government of town, city, state or nation by violence, IT IS NO STRIKE AT ALL.

At that point it is revolution—nothing else. We have heard a good deal about possible revolution in the United States.

Here it is!

It is no mere laboratory experiment tried out by vivisecting San Francisco. It is a strike against the United States across which any success it may have will spread like wildfire.

IF WAR is on between revolutionists in San Francisco against the citizens, then it is on against every citizen man-jack of us—teachers and executives, engineers and government employes, doctors and artists and on and on until you come to decent organized laborers and it is against them worse than all!

If this revolution goes on, if it is a menace to America greater than a foreign enemy, if it is an attack upon the right of government to survive and hence upon the liberties of all of us, if persuasion will not do, we should get ready to enlist in a war threatening the United States in the battle of San Francisco.

The vast majority of citizens may have nothing to do with such a revolution until its tyranny is in the saddle. Some may never hear of it until they receive its orders.

THE CHARACTERISTIC OF MODERN REVOLUTION IS NOT TO THROW OFF TYRANNY BUT TO SEIZE IT.

IF REVOLUTION were to be prophesied and expected, it would fail. Surprise is its stock in trade. Russia was astounded! Italy was amazed! Germany saw it in extras sold on street corners! Modern revolution does not prepare by beating a bass drum. What it fears most is that it may be nipped in the bud.

SAN FRANCISCO IS A GOOD PLACE TO NIP IT.

In Washington, there is a peculiar lack of facility to find out how much foreign influence is involved in propaganda—which few of us ever see—to foment revolution in the United States.

No appropriation, in the last ticklish period for the world's stabilization, has yet gone to work to survey what is really going on in the United States.

Our enemies and competitors unofficially are not disturbed to see us in trouble—grave trouble. The new warfare is undeclared warfare. Today, efforts of one nation in Europe by its secret agents to overturn another government are not at all unknown. They may kiss Mr. Kellogg's pact against war by blows and see an enemy die with poison while quite asleep.

IT MAY be unknown here, but not abroad, that foreign Communist organizations look upon us as being ripe for disorder and are sending their picked agents here. One secret service definitely set the summer of 1934 as yielding the first crop of revolutionary "strikes."

The state of flux in government philosophies, the new accretions of the radical wings of labor without practice in the art of labor organization, the number of our unemployed and drifters—all are advanced as arguments that now is the time for the foreign agitators to strike the match.

THE MAN HIGHER UP, THE STRATEGIST, NEVER APPEARS. Nor is the government in Washington equipped to find him. Even Senators and Congressmen are still simple enough to read off figures of the membership in the Communist party as if that were of the slightest interest to those who are ready to strike at our vitals.

Washington knows that the San Francisco "strike" is no mere strike.

It must know that secret foreign-inspired anti-labor union, Communistic strategists fear above all things that trial heats for further revolution may be nipped in the bud.

If Roosevelt, through no fault of his own and far away, cannot straighten out the Pacific Coast situation, the administration must be feeling already a demand of the whole country that it do the nipping in short order.

ROSSI PRAISES SANITY SHOWN BY UNION MEN

Mayor Says City Has Ended Revolt Peril Without 'Deal'

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi, of San Francisco, who had much to do with bringing an end to the four-day general strike, issued the following statement over his signature yesterday and later broadcast the statement to the nation at large over the National Broadcasting network.

By ANGELO J. ROSSI
Mayor of San Francisco.
Universal Service.

I congratulate the real leaders of organized labor in their decision.

San Francisco has stamped out, without bargain or compromise, an attempt to import into its life the very real danger of revolt.

San Francisco was founded by liberty-loving people.

Its traditions are sacred.

We will tolerate no tyranny, either of Communism or of any other interference with constituted authority.

The crushing of this general strike must not be construed to mean that San Francisco either desires or will tolerate any attempt to destroy union labor or invade its rights.

As Mayor of this city, I represent thousands of union men and women, equally with all other citizens.

Therefore, I pledge myself and this city to secure justice where it is due and to protect all my fellow citizens against any unfair aggression whatsoever.

I am sure the differences between labor and its employers will be speedily adjusted upon the basis of justice to all. The people of San Francisco are to be congratualted for their fortitude, good spirit and sanity, with which they have met and passed the crisis in their affairs.

We must congratulate, also, those many sane, loyal members of organized labor, whose co-operation has brought about a victory for government and Americanism. We will deal effectively with the small group who oppose peace and plot revolution.

I want to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to the many thousands of loyal citizens of San Francisco, and of the nation, who have telegraphed, written and telephoned their offers of service, support and co-operation.

Such a response during a crisis from all elements of the community cannot but reassure and inspire those of us who are charged with the task of maintaining law and order and protecting the life and property of our citizens.

In justice, I must express my gratitude and that of the people of San Francisco to the many citizens who have been called upon and who rendered their valuable services.

I assure you this is a happy day for Fran Francisco.

FIREMEN HOLD BELLEVUE FETE

The annual volunteer firemen's carnival at Bellevue swung into action today after a street parade in the borough last night in which 20 volunteer fire companies of Allegheny County took part. Thousands viewed the parade.

The Mt. Oliver Volunteer Fire Company won the honors for presenting the best appearance, while the best band honors were given to the Ingram Volunteer Fire Company. The Greentree Drum and Bugle Corps won the prize for drilling and maneuvering. The Avalon Volunteer Fire Company, with Harry W. Taylor, 76, a pioneer of the Avalon department on the truck, won honors for the best appearing fire truck.

The parade committee was headed by W. L. Willis, chief engineer of the Bellevue department. The judges were Arthur N. Steinmark, R. F. Leheny, R. M. McIntosh, J. F. Fink and Joseph P. Sullivan.

Peace Pleas Fail In Kohler Strike

KOHLER, Wis., July 20.—(AP.)—A deadlock prevailed at the Kohler Company today as company officials and strikers stood by their principles in the face of persistent negotiations to end the strike called Monday.

Conferences between Walter J. Kohler, president of the plumbing equipment manufacturing company; the Rev. J. W. Maguire, Chicago regional labor board mediator, and representatives of striking members of the American Federation of Labor Union brought no indication that peace was near.

PAIR IDENTIFIED BY BLIND MAN

shoved a gun into Stratigos' back. He ordered:

"Come on, George. Into the back room."

In the back room, while his pockets were being rifled by the thugs, one of them jabbed something into his eyes, he said.

Today was the second time Stratigos sought to identify his assailants. The first time he failed. Today he said:

"I've been deprived of my eyesight and all the money in the world can't bring it back. I want to be certain they are the right men.

"The voice of the two I identified I am quite sure of, but I want to satisfy myself beyond a doubt that they are the ones who did this terrible thing to me. All I want now is to see justice is done and the guilty punished."

EVIDENCE AMPLE

Detective Inspector Samuel Wheeler conferred with District Attorney Andrew T. Park and reported he was informed that the blind man's identification of the suspects' voices was sufficient to hold them.

All three were held over for further investigation. They also are accused of several other holdups, one of which occurred at the Midway Club at Conneaut Lake on July 11. Chief of Police John Cannon, of Conneaut Lake, appeared at detective headquarters today to ask detectives to hold them for another standup tomorrow, when five members of the club are scheduled to arrive to look them over.

Bottle Hurled at King Turns Out to Be Toast

EDINBURGH, July 20.—(AP.)—A new version of the "bottle incident" during the visit of King George and Queen Mary to Edinburgh, was told today, making it out that the police detained a loyal and enthusiastic subject of the King—if a not altogether sober one.

The first report was that a man hurled a bottle or a glass at the royal car and that he was arrested but discharged, presumably at the request of the King.

While police officials deny that there was any "bottle incident" at all, eyewitnesses said that while Their Majesties were driving through a section populated by Irish—Ulster Irish and loyal to the core—a man in the crowd had a beer bottle and glass.

Waving the foaming glass to drinking a toast as the royal carriage passed, the man was struck on the arm by another enthusiast and the bottle or the glass was knocked into the street behind the carriage.

Police, according to this version, seized the man, but the King heard of the incident and requested that nothing be done about it.

Seamen Free Tibbetts Stranded on Yacht

CHATHAM, Mass., July 20.—(AP.)—Lawrence Tibbett, American operatic star, held the center of the stage on his chartered yacht, Rhodos, but Coast Guardsmen playing the leading role as they pulled the 65-foot auxiliary schooner off a shoal at the entrance to Stag Harbor.

Tibbett and his wife had tried to put into Chatham yesterday to pick up their two sons, Richard and Lawrence Ivan, when they ran aground. The boys were taken aboard in the hope that high water would free the boat.

It was not until the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Mojave arrived late in the afternoon and, with the aid of high water, freed the Rhodos that the Tibbetts were able to continue their vacation voyage up the coast.

Tibbett had chartered the Rhodos from its owner, M. S. Bingham, Jr., of Chicago.

PEER AGAIN ACCUSES DOUG, LADY ASHLEY OF MISCONDUCT

FAIRBANKS NOW WITH BEAUTY IN MONTE CARLO

Husband Names Dates, Places of Trysts in New Charges

LONDON, July 20.—(AP.)—Charges of continued misconduct by Douglas Fairbanks and Lady Ashley since they were named February 5 in Lord Ashley's suit for divorce were filed shortly before noon today in the Somerset House registry office.

An attorney for Lord Ashley said:

"The supplementary petition requires an answer within 14 days if the co-respondent (Fairbanks) and the respondent wish to resist it."

Notice is to be served on lawyers for both Fairbanks and the former London cabaret performer.

Fairbanks and the brown, bobbed-haired Lady Ashley flew to Paris together July 7 and are now at Monte Carlo with her sister. The attorney said:

"We do not care where they are. Their attorneys will take care of services."

PLACES, DATES NAMED

The supplementary petition, it was learned, cites "various places and various dates" when the alleged misconduct took place.

The divorce action, the attorneys said, is in the special jury list to be tried in October.

Both Fairbanks and Lady Ashley have placed themselves in a legal position to contest the suit if they desire. Friends of Fairbanks say emphatically it is "impossible" for him to fight the charge that he is co-respondent, giving as a reason his position in the public eye.

Alexander Korda, producer of the picture in which Fairbanks was starred, said he expects Fairbanks will return from Monte Carlo by the middle of next week.

Korda added that the picture has been completed, and that Fairbanks is coming to London merely to have some publicity photographs made, and to prepare for his return to the United States. The film player, the producer said, plans to sail for America about August 8, to be in New York for the picture's premiere.

Reports were current after the divorce suit was filed that a reconciliation between Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, his divorced wife, was imminent.

LADY ASHLEY SILENT

Asked recently if reports that she would marry Fairbanks were true, dainty Lady Ashley replied:

"That is not for me to say. I know nothing about it."

Benita Hume, Fairbanks' leading lady in his film work here, has frequently accompanied him and Lady Ashley to parties and other affairs here.

Lord Ashley's lawyers said the supplementary petition "merely adds to charges already filed."

Lord Ashley, 33, and heir to the ninth Earl of Shaftesbury, married in 1927 against his family's wishes. He and Lady Ashley, the former Sylvia Hawkes, lived together less than a year.

Lady Ashley had been in succession a mannequin, chorus girl and stage star.

MUM ON CHARGES

MONTE CARLO, July 20.—(AP.)—Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and Lady Ashley, here with her sister, a Mrs. Black, refused today to discuss a report that Lord Ashley had filed supplementary charges of misconduct against them in his divorce action.

ALLEN TO TELL OWN STORY OF 'WILD PARTY'

Film Casting Director, Extra Player Seek To Show Frameup

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—(AP.)—Dave Allen, the man who has supplied many courtroom "types" for the movies, was himself cast in the role of a witness today in the so-called Hollywood morals trial.

The former head of the Central Casting Bureau was given the opportunity today to tell his story of the alleged "wild party" which led to indictments accusing him and Miss Gloria Marsh, a film extra, of violating a statute pertaining to public morals. Defense attorneys indicated Miss Marsh also would be called as a witness today.

Intimate details of the alleged immoral party were told by June Delong, also an extra player, who admitted she had participated in the affair at her apartment. She is a state witness.

Defense attorneys, in their efforts to prove that Allen was "framed" by persons seeking his dismissal as head of the casting corporation, yesterday introduced Mrs. Serena Rowland, who testified that Miss Delong had admitted she was "sorry" she had brought the charges.

The witness, who identified herself as the wife of Eddie (K. O.) Roberts, a boxer, said she heard Miss Delong, Pat Harman, screen villain, and "Mrs. Harman" discussing Allen. She said Mrs. Harman declared they could "all write their own screen contracts" when they got through with Allen.

She identified Mrs. Harman from a photograph as Mrs. Pearl Owings, a state witness, who told of walking accidentally into Miss Delong's apartment during the alleged "wild party."

Other defense witnesses, including Ugene U. Blalock, deputy district attorney, testified they had heard Harman threaten Allen and accuse the casting corporation head of keeping him out of work to which he was entitled.

2 GIRLS SHOT, ONE TRIES SUICIDE

Guns Loose Tragedy In Hazelwood and North Side

Two young women were recovering from bullet wounds today, one a would-be suicide and the other a victim of an accident, according to detectives.

Mystery surrounding the shooting of attractive Ann Morris, 24, of 1328 Liverpool street, North Side, was cleared several hours later when she confessed she had shot herself in the abdomen, Detectives William Reese and Harry Hart said.

Erma Hill, 18, of 211 Courtland street, Hazelwood, was the victim of the accident, detectives reporting she accidentally shot herself in her right leg while examining a pistol in her home last night.

The shooting of Ann Morris baffled investigators when she at first refused to tell how she had been wounded, the detectives said. Taken to Allegheny General Hospital, she refused to talk and when Lieut. Michael Carney warned her her parents might be involved, Carney said she replied:

"I don't care! You can't scare me."

Because of her silence, the detectives said they were inclined to believe she was endeavoring to shield someone.

Later, they learned her father, Joseph Morris, had found a .32-caliber pistol from which the bullet had been fired. When the detectives confronted the young woman with this information, they said she admitted shooting herself because of despondency over unemployment.

The other girl, the detectives reported, was wounded while talking with Frank Woolensack, 26, a roomer. They were examining a pistol while talking about a hunting trip when it accidentally was discharged.

TARZAN'S PLEA MELTS LUPE

HOLLYWOOD, July 20.—(AP.)—Acceding to the plea of Johnny Weissmuller, swimming-actor, Lupe Velez has decided to drop the divorce complaint she filed last week, marking another of the numerous reconciliations which have followed their frequent separations since their marriage 10 months ago.

Neil S. McCarthy, a lawyer, said he would ask that the complaint of the Mexican actress be stricken from the court calendar. The vivacious actress was scheduled to appear in court yesterday to press the action but did not, explaining she was busy making a picture. Later her absence was explained by announcement of the reconciliation. Said McCarthy:

"They apparently are very much in love. Weissmuller pleaded with her not to go through with her divorce."

Neither could be reached for a statement, associates saying the couple was out celebrating the reunion.

ALLIANCE, O., July 20.—Rescued from a frenzied mob of several hundred people gathered to witness a night ball game and spirited away by police, George Johnson, 56, Negro, is in Mahoning County Jail at Youngstown, following an attack upon Helen Vuksta, 13, here last night.

Police rushed him to the Alliance Police Station and kept the mob at bay in the front entrance to the jail while a deputy sheriff sped out the back entrance with the Negro, reaching the Youngstown jail in safety.

The girl is in City Hospital, believed to be recovering from the shock of her harrowing experience.

Garbage Can Dog Saves 3 Boys From Gas

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., July 20.—(AP.)—"Sport," a mongrel dog picked out of a garbage can several years ago by Hugh Cain, now 12, had paid up his bill in full today.

"Sport" brought help to his master, his brother, Ray, 15, and Conway Dixon, 12, when they fell unconscious of carbon monoxide fumes from a gas heater.

The boys had been washing walls in the school and had lighted a gas heater. The gas light quickly used up so much oxygen that all three collapsed.

The dog dashed to another part of the building, yelping frenziedly, and quickly brought help.

'EDITH CAVELL' OF PARIS WEDS

PARIS, July 20.—(AP.)—Men high in the nation's official life attended the wedding yesterday of Mlle. Marie Leon van Houtte, "France's Edith Cavell," to Andre Rieder, a writer.

Gen. Maxime Weygand, head of the French Army; former Premier Andre Tardieu, and Gen. Henri Gouraud were at the ceremony.

Mlle. van Houtte was cut off behind the lines in 1914 by the German invasion. She aided many allied soldiers to get back to their own forces by driving wagon loads of hay, under which they were secreted, into Holland.

She was arrested in Brussels as a spy and sentenced to death, but by the intervention of the Spanish consul her sentence was modified to life imprisonment. At the end of the war she was released and France awarded her the Croix de Guerre and a knighthood in the Legion of Honor.

Lynch was released from jail, where he has been questioned since he surrendered Wednesday night.

Fight Treaty Made Before Texas Joined U. S.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, July 20.—(INS.)—The plea that Texas was not a part of the United States in 1842 when the treaty with England was signed on which criminals are extradited from either country, was the bulwark of the defense of "Robert Jones" today.

Jones is alleged to be Arthur Wilson, wanted by Texas authorities in connection with the murder of Mrs. Irene Dubolt, of Cleveland, Wilson's companion on a motor trip. Her body was found in the desert near El Paso.

The defense at first moved that extradition be denied because no copy of the treaty was entered into evidence. When the prosecution reopened the case yesterday by producing a copy of the treaty, the defense fell back upon the objection that Texas was then outside the United States.

The low pressure that was centered over the prairie states yesterday moved rapidly eastward during the night and is centered over the Lower St. Lawrence Valley. It produced showers and thunderstorms at many places east of the Mississippi Valley as it passed over. Showers occurred also over the southern plains and the Rocky Mountain states due to the low pressure centered over Southern Alberta. The weather is warm this morning over most of the country and seasonable temperatures were high yesterday nearly everywhere from California eastward. Temperatures of 100 degrees or higher occurred again yesterday over most of the prairie states and in some of the Rocky Mountain states. The highest reported is 110 degrees at Omaha.

2 SEEK DEATH IN RIVER, FAIL

A young woman and a 72-year-old man made futile attempts to end their lives in the Allegheny River early today, according to police.

The woman was twice pulled from the railing of the Sixth Street Bridge by J. P. Hayden, a resident of the Improvement of the Poor. Hayden told police the girl, whose identity was not revealed, jumped into an automobile, the license plates of which had been issued to a Blawnox man.

William Lupton, resident of a houseboat near Manchester Bridge, rescued Robert Lindores, 72, resident of a mission at 9 Federal street, after he had waded into the river. Lindores told police he had no intentions of ending his life. He said he had gone to the river to wash his legs.

DROWNS TRYING TO SAVE WIFE

L. Malcolm Hamilton, 35, of 7128 Harrison avenue, Bwisavale, sacrificed his own life at McConnells Mills, Lawrence County, last night, to rescue his wife from drowning.

The wife is Mrs. Mrs. Winifred Hamilton, 35.

Two young children of the couple, standing on the bank, witnessed the tragedy.

The Hamiltons had gone to the swimming place for a day's outing yesterday, accompanied by W. A. Chamberlain, of Perrysville road, Ross Township.

The children were playing in the water with their mother when she swam beyond her depth and called for help. Hamilton and several others dove to her rescue.

The husband, believed to have suffered a heart attack in the excitement, stepped into a deep hole and sank. Other bathers rescued Mrs. Hamilton.

Hamilton's body was recovered and sent to Irwin for burial.

Curie Radium Goes To Paris University

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP.)—The late Mme. Marie Curie's most valued possession, a gram of radium purchased for her in 1921 with funds raised by a committee of American women, has been passed on to the University of Paris with the stipulation that her daughter, Irene Curie, be permitted to use it at will.

Mrs. William Brown Meloney, chairman of the Marie Curie Radium Fund, said she had received word to this effect today.

MRS. HARDING'S KIN DIVORCED

MARION, O., July 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Jean de Wolfe Weil, 26, of Marion, granddaughter of the late Mrs. Warren G. Harding, was granted a divorce from Charles M. Weil, of Los Angeles, Cal., formerly of Cincinnati, in Common Pleas Court here yesterday.

The suit, in which Mrs. Weil charged gross neglect and extreme cruelty, was not contested.

They were married June 1, 1931, and separated early in 1932, court records showed. Custody of their son, born July 4, 1932, was granted Mrs. de Wolfe.

She is the daughter of the late Marshall E. de Wolfe, son of the late Mrs. Harding by a former marriage. He died 20 years ago in Colorado.

WHITE WING KIN OF ROOSEVELTS PRAISES ANNA DALL

Nevada Man Meets Famous Cousin First Time

RENO, July 20.—(AP.)—"She's wonderful!"

That is how Thomas Severence Delano, Jr., 67-year-old street sweeper describes Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, President and Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt's divorce-seeking daughter.

Fifth cousin to both President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and the late President Ulysses S. Grant "Tom" Delano decided last week he would like to meet his sixth cousin, Mrs. Dall.

He went to the Reno office of Samuel Platt, attorney who will represent Mrs. Dall in her expected divorce suit against Curtis B. Dall, of New York, late this month.

He presented a letter of introduction and proof, in the form of letters and newspaper articles, that his claimed relationship is genuine. He asked for an interview with Mrs. Dall. They met that evening in Platt's office.

Delano quoted Mrs. Dall as saying as she shook his hand:

"So you're my cousin."

He said they had a cordial conversation during which Mrs. Dall indicated she might visit Delano's modest home in Sparks, little railroad city of 4,000 people three miles east of here.

He also disclosed Mrs. Dall told him she expected a visit from her mother at Mrs. Dall's residence at Pyramid Lake, Nev., 42 miles north of here. The President's daughter is living there in comparative seclusion with her two children, at the "Arrowhead D" ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. William Shepherd Dana, formerly of New York City.

ANNA ROOSEVELT DALL AND BUZZIE AND SISTIE . . . . HER COUSIN: 'SHE'S WONDERFUL!'

A former locomotive engineer, Delano has lived in Nevada virtually all his life. His father was a retired captain of a whaling vessel who came west from New Bedford, Mass., more than three-quarters of a century ago.

Letters from members of the Delano family in Massachusetts, which established his relationship to the present Chief Executive, were received by Tom Delano years ago, but were never answered until after the last presidential election.

Now he is one of President Roosevelt's staunchest admirers. He says:

"I'm a Republican, but I'm for Cousin Frank."

Heroic Britisher Dies Daring Everest Alone

CALCUTTA, India, July 20.—(AP.)—Everest, cold and imperious monarch of mountains, has repulsed with death man's latest attempt to conquer her.

Native porters stumbled into Darjeeling yesterday with a familiar story—another daring explorer dead on the icy, wind-swept fastnesses in trying to reach the summit, where man has never trod.

Maurice Wilson, 38-year-old former British army captain, for years nursed an ambition to place the Union Jack on Everest's 29,141-foot crown. He set out alone to do it.

Denied permission of Indian authorities to attempt the climb, Wilson disguised himself as a Tibetan and left Darjeeling March 25 with three porters. The little party reached the 21,000-foot level late in May.

Wilson started on alone May 31. He told the porters to wait two weeks for him—then to turn back if he hadn't returned.

The men waited a month. Their food ran low, so they began the long descent. They believed Wilson died at the 23,000-foot level, where avalanches are frequent.

Daughter Born to Pair Here Wed in Rome

The Old World romance of a prominent Pittsburgh clubwoman had produced an heiress.

Mr. and Mrs. Enrico Piccino, of the Royal Yorke Apartments, today announced the birth of a daughter last Saturday. The daughter has been named Doris Maria Plauccus Piccino.

Mrs. Piccino was Mrs. Belle Placcus Reymer, 43, daughter of the late William and Elsie Wetzel Placcus.

In April, 1933, she divorced her first husband, Arnold Reymer.

Last fall in Rome she and Piccino, 47, a New York hotel manager, were married. Later they were united a second time in a civil ceremony in New York.

SURVEY SHOWS HEAVY TOLL OF JULY 4

In five years, Pittsburgh's Fourth of July celebrations have sent 906 persons to hospitals, resulting in five deaths, 10 cases of blindness and scores of instances in which victims were permanently maimed.

These figures were made public today by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council following a survey of the 19 Pittsburgh hospitals, conducted by George E. Clarkson, manager.

The survey did not include physicians who during the same period probably treated 1,000 others injured by fireworks, Clarkson estimated.

Of the 906 treated at hospitals, the survey showed two-thirds were children under 16, and all five deaths were children under 8.

The survey was made to support the Safety Council's plan, in co-operation with Robert Garland, City Council president, to enact legislation to prohibit the sale and display of fireworks except for public exhibition under supervision of experts.

Officers Installed By Knights of Columbus

New officers were installed at a meeting of Fort Pitt General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, at ceremonies in the Century Building last night. Special guests were the Rev. R. Appel, Dr. J. Burkholder and Francis McBride, of the Duquesne University. Officers installed were:

Frank A. Perry, faithful navigator; Arthur Shannon, John L. Skarry, Thomas P. Walsh, Edward L. Huttinger, William King, P. J. Becker, B. Middendorf, John M. Gallagher, Edward J. Nuttal and M. Murphy.

Two Hurt As Auto Collides With Deer

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Baer, of Baltimore, are recounting to Pittsburgh friends the story of how their speeding car brought death to a 275-pound deer on the Lincoln highway. Driving through a wooded section near Everett, the animal leaped onto the road from among the trees, their car smashing head-on into it. The deer, a 10-point buck, was instantly killed. Mr. and Mrs. Baer were shaken up and bruised in the collision.

Ocean Mail Subsidy Probe Linked to Big Strike

(Paul Mallon, whose signature usually appears over this dispatch, is on a brief vacation. During his absence the column will be composed of contributions from leading Washington correspondents.)

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Whether so intended or not, President Roosevelt's order for an investigation of the ocean mail subsidies by the Postoffice Department has a relation to the San Francisco strike situation. Its issuance at the time when the President was fully cognizant of the controversy between the ship owners and their employes may have significance. At any rate, it serves to call attention, just at this moment, to the disclosures regarding the mail subsidies by the Senate committee of which Senator Black, of Alabama, was chairman.

In general, that investigation showed that the subsidies paid in the guise of pay for carrying the mail enabled the ship owners, in many cases, to reap enormous profits for themselves while the government held the bag. Earnings from ships bought from the government on time were distributed in large salaries and bonuses to officers, in substantial dividends to stockholders, while obligations to the government remained unpaid. In some cases, even the interest was not met. According to much of the testimony, it appeared that the government was regarded simply as a good thing and that its interests need never be considered. Various accounts were faked so that expenses were often charged to the government which properly should have been borne by the companies.

One of the companies which benefited most from the government mail-carrying endowment was the Dollar Line, now involved with other lines in the strike on the Pacific Coast. A striking instance of how government aid enabled those controlling the Dollar Line to make enormous profits was brought out in the testimony before the committee. Five men, including the two Dollar brothers, each put $100 in a pool, which was so manipulated as to bring in several millions. The President's order to look into these ocean mail contracts brings such things as this concerning the steamship companies to notice, and they will probably not be overlooked by the strikers in making up their case.

ALL FALL FOR HER

One of the members of Congress to linger long in Washington after the close of the session was Mrs. Isabella Greenway, lone Representative from Arizona and widow of Gen. John C. Greenway. And there is no thought of minimizing in that word "lone," for, in its one member of the House, Arizona has more effective representation than many states entitled to a dozen members. Although serving her first term, Mrs. Greenway already has acquired influence and a reputation for getting things across that usually do not come till after many years of service, and often not then.

It is not only her good looks that win people to Mrs. Greenway. Her tumbled shock of hair, resembling a hay-cock whipped by the wind, would attract attention to her anywhere. It is her perfect poise, unaffected manner and quiet charm which at once put those around her at ease and make the congressmen generally want to tell her everything they know. They go to her with their troubles, they confide to her their secrets and, above all, they tell her about themselves and how wonderful they are. She listens sympathetically and appreciatively and they think she is marvelous. They would go the limit for her and, when they are unable to get something done, they appeal to her and she reciprocates by going to the bat for them.

Mrs. Greenway's influence has extended itself even to the Senate and, when she has wandered over there to watch proceedings, she has always been eagerly sought out by members of that body. On some of these occasions, she has not neglected to do some discreet lobbying for measures in which she was interested. Toward the close of the session, some of her colleagues in the House came to her in despair about a bill carrying an appropriation which seemed to have not a ghost of a chance to get through. They begged her to help them. She obliged and, going straight to Speaker Rainey, gained his consent to let the bill get past the barrier.

LETHBRIDGE, Alberta, July 20.—(AP.)—Glenn Clark, 28, a former University of Idaho football star, dived to his death while swimming in Milk River. He came to the surface with a bad gash in his head and never recovered consciousness. His home is at Lomar, Col.

SURVEY BOARD PLANS DROPPED

Plans for a survey board to pass on applications for loans under the National Housing Act have been discarded here following orders from James A. Moffatt, national housing chief. According to L. I. MacQueen, representative of the builders' supply code authority, a substitute arrangement should be operating within 10 days.

Moffatt termed the survey board too cumbersome for cities with populations of more than 100,000. It was to have been composed of a social welfare worker, a religious welfare worker, an architect, contractor, realtor and financial representative.

WARSAW, July 20.—(AP.)—Airplanes today were delivering food and mail to the mountainous region of Southern Poland, where devastating floods were receding after more than 120 lives had been lost.

The total dead was not known. Bodies were still being taken today from the torrent rushing down the Vistula basin.

Goats Butt Bees, Bees Get Goats' Goat—Funeral

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 20.—Two pet goats owned by Paul and Bobby Murray at Carmichaels, butted over a beehive at the Murray home.

This got the bees' goat.

Then the bees got the Murray brothers' goats.

Got them is right, because after having their home upset by the pet butters, the bees stung the two pets so hard and so often that the goats died a few minutes later. And today there was a brief but impressive service for "Billy" and "Nanny," the late lamented pair of pets whose curiosity proved fatal.

OHIO MEN WIN BRIDGE MATCH

CONNEAUT LAKE, July 20.—(AP.)—By the narrow margin of half a match point, Maschke Maschke and G. W. Parrat, of Cleveland, O., captured the master pair bridge championship last night in the eighth annual Conneaut Lake bridge tournament.

They nosed out Dr. W. K. Skinner and Dr. R. H. Eisrael, of Warren, Pa., Dr. D. D. Tomb and A. J. Bohle, of Youngstown, O., finished third.

Participation in the masters' event was limited to contestants who had won at least one major tournament during the last year.

WILSON RENEWS 'FIX' CHARGES AGAINST P.S.C.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—(AP.)—City Controller S. Davis Wilson, in a new blast at the Public Service Commission, declared members agreed to new rates of the Philadelphia Electric Company at meetings with public utility executives, and that Gov. Pinchot had knowledge of the sessions.

He made the statement in posting $2,500 bail yesterday in the slander suit filed against him by Commissioner Frederick P. Gruenberg—a suit which he asserted was a "frame-up intended * * * to block" cases handled by the Controller before the Commission.

NAMES 2 MEMBERS

Wilson named Gruenberg and the late Commissioner George W. Woodruff as the officials who conferred with the utility executives. He said:

"I charge that members of the Public Service Commission, after meetings held with John E. Zimmerman, president of the United Gas Improvement Company; William H. Taylor, president of the Philadelphia Electric Company, and other electric company officials, agreed to the change in rates.

"The public was without knowledge of what was going on and not represented at these meetings. This was done before the company filed the new rates or advertised the change as required by law."

PINCHOT'S STAND

Saying that he instituted proceedings before the commission after the new rates were advertised, Wilson added:

"I then called upon the Governor. I informed him of my action and asked that he assign engineers to assist in preparation of the case.

"The Governor stated that my action was 'unfortunate,' as his commissioners had an understanding with the electric company. He requested that I call upon Woodruff and Gruenberg to discuss the matter."

The controller said Woodruff told him that after conferences with representatives of the electric company, he believed the new rates would save money for the consumers and that members of the commission agreed to the change in rates. He added Gruenberg confirmed what Woodruff said.

SUIT FOLLOWS

At a public hearing on his protests against the rates, Wilson accused Gruenberg, who presided, of "working with" utilities. This charge resulted in the slander suit, in which Gruenberg asks $50,000 damages. It also led the commission to prohibit Wilson from further appearances before it as counsel.

Gov. Pinchot at his Milford home would not comment on Wilson's latest statement, other than to say that his "previous statement is all that is necessary." In that statement the Governor said the action of the commission in barring Wilson from appearing as counsel was "justified."

HARRIMAN MILL WINS RETURN OF 'EAGLE'

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP.)—The National Recovery Administration welcomed today the end of the Harriman Mills-Blue Eagle row.

A compromise, an authoritative source said, has been reached and the Blue Eagle will be restored to the hosiery factory at Harriman, Tenn., within a few hours. More than 600 workers, thrown out of work when the mill closed, are expected to get their jobs Monday.

The compromise was understood to mean that 25 strikers would be re-employed almost immediately and that three-quarters of all additional workers hired within a specified period would be from the ranks of the strikers.

A previous proposal had been that the company rehire immediately 50 strikers, making way for them by discharging workers brought into Harriman after the strike began. The new understanding, officials said, will avoid discharging any employes who were on the payroll when the mill shut down, and will return 50 strikers to their jobs in a short time.

STARTS WITH STRIKE

The incident dates back to last October, when a strike broke out. The National Labor Board, after hearing charges that the collective bargaining provisions of the Recovery Act were violated, recommended withdrawal of the Blue Eagle, and Hugh S. Johnson deprived the mill of the symbol.

In June the mill closed, attacking the NRA action and saying it could not operate without the eagle. Government relief funds were made available to employes in district.

The Justice Department, to which the Labor Board had submitted evidence of alleged violation of the hosiery code, declined to prosecute on the grounds that the evidence did not warrant such a step. It took no stand on the withdrawal of the eagle.

STEEL MEN PROTEST

The board of directors of the American Institute of Steel Construction last night, in New York, informed Gen. Johnson changes he made in a proposed code for the structural steel and fabricating industry were not acceptable.

The institute, which has a membership of 680 firms and employs 50,000 to 75,000 men, said:

"Proposed deletion of the provisions of our code relating to erection work would so emasculate practically all of the articles and schedules in the code as to render impossible any intelligent interpretation, application or administration."

'STAR SYSTEM' SCORED IN NRA FILM SURVEY

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP.)—Hollywood's galaxy of glamorous stars was pictured today as something like Frankenstein's monster.

Attacking the "star system" as at present "exploited," a National Recovery Administration report indicated that it has turned against the men who created it—the producers.

It tends to force salaries up to "fantastic figures"—hitting the producers a woeful blow in the pocketbook. A report to Hugh S. Johnson by Sol A. Rosenblatt, NRA division administrator, said:

"The inflated values which producers have placed upon a limited number of executives and artists have created a vicious circle of bidding for their services.

"The creatures of the system have turned to plague their masters."

Although he disclosed that the talkies paid 116 people larger salaries in 1933 than that enjoyed by President Roosevelt, Rosenblatt ardently championed the "artist." He said:

"As a matter of principle, no salary is excessive if the picture produced by the individual receiving the salary meets with unusual public favor, as a result of unique direction or artistry."

What he suggested was a committee to study whether it would not be better to pay stars according to what they earn; that is, a percentage of receipts superimposed on a minimum salary base.

Although the movie industry lost $19,589,393 last year, Rosenblatt revealed that one actor received $315,000 and another artist $296,250. The names were kept secret.

Rosenblatt, who made his inquiry at the behest of President Roosevelt, recommended that code provisions dealing with salaries be continued in a state of suspension. These much-debated provisions, he said, are not the right way to correct unreasonable earnings or stop "star raiding."

Breaking of Old Bottles Urged in Bootleg War

Break your liquor bottles—after, of course, they've been emptied.

This is the request which the state liquor stores will make of customers in Pittsburgh and elsewhere next week as the latest step in the war against bootleggers. Signs in the state stores will read:

"Please break your bottles when they are empty to keep them out of the bootleggers' hands.

"By doing this you will help your national and state governments in their fight against lawbreakers."

PINCHOT'S WIFE AIDS NRA UNION

International News Service

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of Pennsylvania's Republican Governor, joined the fight of unionized government workers who gathered last night and passed a resolution demanding the dismissal of John L. Donovan from his National Recovery Administration post be investigated by an impartial board.

Donovan is president of the NRA union lodge and was personally dismissed by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson. Johnson claimed Donovan was "inefficient, insubordinate" and had been absent from his work without leave. Donovan argued he was dismissed simply because he heads the NRA lodge.

Mrs. Pinchot's telegram, read to the meeting, follows:

"I want to associate myself with your protest against Gen. Johnson's un-American and high-handed attack on the rights of organized labor.

"His action in this matter is on a par with his betrayal of the cause of the workers everywhere. In himself he constitutes the greatest menace to the trades union movement.

"Until he is removed the guarantee that Congress gave to the workers in Section 7-A of the National Recovery Act will continue to be a sham and a farce."

RULES WEIRTON MUST ANSWER

WILMINGTON, Del., July 20.—(AP.)—The Weirton Steel Company, defendant in an injunction suit brought by the federal government, must answer 18 of the 29 questions asked about its business, Judge John P. Nields ruled in United States District Court yesterday.

Testimony in the suit to restrain the company from taking part in the election of collective bargaining representatives by its employes is scheduled to start September 5. The government filed the interrogatories, declaring the information was necessary in the prosecution of the suit.

The company voluntarily answered four questions and Judge Nields ruled out seven others. Among the seven the request for the names of the 50 largest customers of the Weirton company was fought strenuously, the company contending its competitors would use the list to circularize its customers.

The 18 questions the company must answer relate to the interstate commerce features of its business.

Drop Pittsburgher As Cigar Prober

J. J. Hast, secretary of the Standard Cigar Company here, has been dropped from the commission named to investigate the hand-made cigar industry in York County. Harvey Hirst, of Philadelphia, president of the National Recovery Administration authority of the cigar manufacturing industry, sought an alternative following protests from hand-made manufacturers that Hast is a machine-made stogie manufacturer.

DAVIS ASSAILS NRA CODES

ELLENSBURG, Wash., July 20.—(AP.)—James J. Davis, director general of the Moose Lodge, former Secretary of Labor and present Senator from Pennsylvania, yesterday criticized the NRA codes as fostering monopolies, and decried what he termed the present trend away from a constitutional form of government.

Davis spoke at a chamber of commerce meeting honoring delegates and officers of the Moose organization, here for the nineteenth annual convention of the Northwest Association. He said:

"Codes have a tendency to aid monopolies and crush out little fellows, and as long as I have any life in my body I shall fight such a scheme constantly."

JUVENILE STARS WIN PAY RAISE

HOLLYWOOD, July 20.—(AP.)—Child movie talent is in the "big money" nowadays.

Stardom with a reported salary of $1,250 a week for 5-year-old Shirley Temple was the compromise reached yesterday between her parents and Fox Film Studio to end the little actress' "strike."

Four-year-old Mary Jane Johnson has just signed a contract with Paramount Studio at a starting salary of $150 a week which scales up over a seven-year period to $1,500 a week.

Until recently, Shirley has been receiving $150 weekly. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Temple, took her home and demanded $2,500 a week.

LIGHTNINGKILLS MAN ON LINKS

Perryville street car ran over two sections of fire hose. A. Dominyton, operator of the car, was given a ticket for reckless driving.

A few minutes later a bolt struck the home of Mrs. Mary Sobeck, 2109 Hyena way. It hit the upstairs corner room occupied by Mrs. Sobeck and her three children, showering them with plaster. The family fled to safety in nightclothing.

A third bolt struck the home of Mrs. Mary Fador, in the Benton avenue district of Ross Township. The lightning first struck a pole and then jumped across to the housetop. Damage was slight.

The heavy rain made automobile traffic hazardous in some sections, particularly on Freeport road along the Allegheny river, where sections of the highway were flooded and splashing water stalled automobiles.

The heat wave in other sections of the country spread out into alarming proportions.

Nebraska was among the states hardest hit. A. E. Anderson, Nebraska agricultural expert, said one-half the state's corn crop would not even produce good forage.

At Falls City, Neb., the flow of the Nemaha River had been reduced to a trickle and water had to be hauled from a nearby lake to supply restaurants and homes.

Railroad tank cars were furnishing water for Creston, Ia.

In Kansas City the mercury climbed to 108, highest on record there. Both Omaha and Keokuk, Ia., reported 110. Nowata, Okla., was the hottest spot, reporting 115.

Eleven were dead from the heat in Kansas City. St. Louis reportedy seven more. Nebraska listed 10 throughout the state. Dallas, Jeerson City, Memphis and other Middle Western cities reported additional deaths attributed to the heat.

In Whitaker street, Whitaker borough, rain flooded cellars and gardens of houses between Hamilton and Mifflin avenues. This street recently was raised several feet.

SECRET 'PURGE' BY NAZIS DENIED

BERLIN, July 20.—(AP.)—The man on the street said and officials denied today that a series of trials is going on night and day in Munich of persons involved in the political smash of June 30.

Rumors have it that a Nazi courtmartial is trying at least 2,000 defendants there.

Some of the trials are supposed to be under way in the Dachau concentration camp, said to be jammed with prisoners, and others were supposed to be held in the famous "Brown House," the Nazi headquarters.

The so-called courtmartial is purported to be a party tribunal composed of three persons constituting a "court."

SILENT ON RUMORS

Persistent efforts to obtain authentic information failed. Declaring, "we can say nothing," an official of the Reich Ministry of Justice referred an interrogator to the secret police as competent, adding, however, "but the figures, I am sure, are exaggerated."

The Berlin secret police referred the questioner to its Munich organization, where an official listened attentivley and then commented:

"Nonsense. No one is being held."

It was recalled that Chancellor Hitler, speaking before the Reichstag, said:

"A number of deeds of violence, that are not in any way connected with this action, will be turned over to the normal courts."

DENY NEW MURDERS

Rumors of further wholesale murders spread through Germany today, only to be met by cool denials from Nazi leaders.

"Scandal mongering" was the term applied to the rumors, both here and abroad, by those officials who had not left the capital to escape the burning heat.

Among the reports was one of foreign origin that 2,000 persons were killed in and after the revolt of June 30 and that prisoners at the Dachau Concentration Camp were murdered.

Now and then in some unexpected place one comes upon a handbill with the blazing words:

"The Red front is still alive."

President von Hindenburg, at Neudeck, where he is on vacation, today received Baron von Neurather, foreign minister, who flew to Marienburg and then went on by automobile to report to the President.

Lloyd George Assails Hitler For Atrocities

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

'World Shudders,' War-Time Leader Of Britain Says

"The Hitler atrocities make the whole world shudder," proclaims the Hon. Lloyd George, former prime minister of England, in a special cable dispatch to appear in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph next Sunday. When Lloyd George talks he hits straight from the shoulder and his criticism of the recent executions in Germany are expressed in no uncertain terms. Lloyd George says:

"The German executioners have no friends or apologists outside Germany. The cold-blooded assassination of 77 men without trial or opportunity for explanation, merely because they criticized the government or contemplated a change in the government by the only means by which it could be effected, has sent a shudder of repugnance through every civilized country."

Then the former prime minister of England goes into detail about this swift movement of Hitler's and its political significance, not only in Germany, but other European countries. Don't fail to read this straight-from-the-shoulder criticism of Hitler in next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

FRANCE TO DEED LAND TO ITALY

ROME, July 20.—(AP.)—Well-informed circles said today that Italy will receive the territory of Tibesti in the Sahara from France in consequence of a conversation with Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, is to have with Premier Mussolini, probably in October.

Although Tibesti is a desolate region which the natives call "Tu" meaning "rocks," it lies between latitude 22 and 18 north and for years has been cherished by Italy as a complement to her Libyan possessions.

It would bring Italy nearer Lake Chad.

WORLD RACE TO RULE AIR THREATENS

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP.)—The roar of new fleets of war planes soaring through tomorrow's skies echoed in the minds of experts today as world powers threatened a race for aerial supremacy.

Despairing of achieving disarmament on land or sea, the powers are hastening to prepare for any war-in-the-skies.

Great Britain has just made clear it believes the time has come for the Royal Air Force to soar with the highest. It plans 40 new squadrons, estimated at 500 planes.

The United States, which has already started a three-year program for 1,000 new planes, received a warning. The Newton D. Baker aviation committee's report will say, it was learned authoritatively today, that the United States is comparatively weak in fighting planes. The report, to be made public Monday, recommends more combat and attack craft to bring the Army Air Corps to highest war-time efficiency.

France, Russia and Japan, experts said, are building modern, speedy fighting and bombing planes rapidly.

There are no international agreements limiting air forces. Proposals have been made at Geneva to limit European air power, to restrict the conversion of commercial planes into military ones and to outlaw bombing from the air. None has succeeded.

American military authorities estimate that Russia and France have 3,000 planes; the United States 2,800, Japan 2,500, and Great Britain 1,400. The Baker committee survey is said authoritatively to have found that the United States, in actual fighting efficiency, ranks below Japan, and on a par with Great Britain.

The Baker report also opposes a unified air force on the ground it would weakened the nation's power. It favors the present system of separate Army and Navy air corps.

The Baker committee, headed by President Wilson's Secretary of War, and composed of six civilians and five high Army officers, including Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Air Corps, was named by Secretary of War Dern to investigate all Army Air Corps activities.

30 POLES DROWN IN BRIDGE FALL

WARSAW, July 20.—(AP.)—Thirty or forty more persons were believed to have been drowned in floods today when a bridge over which many persons were passing collapsed at Sandomir.

Eleven members of a military engineering squad were reported to be among the victims. Soldiers plunged into the Vistula River, spanned by the bridge, to save peasants struggling in the swirling water.

Many of the farmers were drowned, according to advices received here, because they persisted in trying to save livestock in the streams.

Political Feud Perils Doumergue's Cabinet

Herriot and Tardieu Face Test; Link Stavisky Case

PARIS, July 20.—(AP.)—France's "political truce" cabinet appeared badly shattered today with the resignations of Edouard Herriot and Andre Tardieu, both former premiers and now ministers without portfolio, likely.

Tardieu is determined to "fight it out" with members of the Radical Socialist party, but Herriot's friends said he is ready to leave in order to force Tardieu out "to avoid endangering the country's financial restoration."

STAVISKY LINKED

Premier Gaston Doumergue was said by friends to be "furious" at Tardieu's violent attack on the Radical Socialists, headed by Herriot, and ready to demand Tardieu's resignation if peace is not patched up tonight.

Tardieu charged Radical Socialist leaders knew of swindles of the late Serge Stavisky long before they were exposed to the public.

Wholesale resignations from the cabinet were thought to have been averted by the premier's attitude, which strengthened the hand of seven Radical Socialist ministers.

BARTHOU FAVORED

These seven were said to be supported in opposition to Tardieu by Marshal Henri Petain, minister of war; Louis Germain-Martin, minister of finance, and other high officials.

The end of the Doumergue cabinet when Parliament reassembles was freely predicted, now that the outward appearance of peace has been destroyed and political linen is being washed in public.

Louis Barthou, foreign minister, long has been mentioned as a likely successor to the elderly Doumergue, who was called in last February to lead the country from a grave crisis.

DREAM OF CANAL TO LAKE ERIE NEARER REALITY

Project Would Give City Gateway To Ocean

(Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of articles on the Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal.)

If the federal government builds the Lake Erie-Ohio River ship canal, after all these years, a far-sighted dream will be realized.

Few today appreciate how far-sighted that dream was—how urgent the actuality.

George Washington, coming up from Virginia, felt that there should be a canal giving Pittsburgh access to the lakes and another to tidewater. But waterways development was new then. Nothing was done about it.

For more than 50 years some kind of canal to Lake Erie has been urged to protect the district's industrial future.

There have been reports, commissions and delegations. There have been controversies and opposition. There has been apathy.

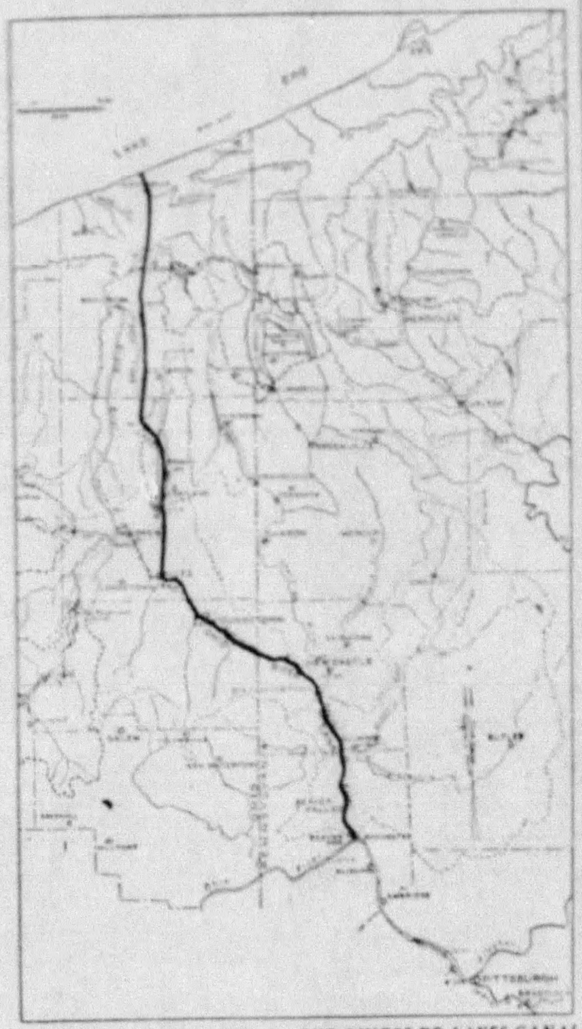
The canal is still to be built. Its earliest advocates are nearly all dead. The chance for it being built seems brighter today than it ever was, since yesterday's approval in Washington of the Beaver-Mahoning route.

There once was a shallow canal from Pittsburgh to the lake. But it fell into disuse. Water transportation gave way to railroads. And every time that the idea of a ship canal seemed likely to go through, some thing happened to block it or to shunt it aside.

Many today wonder where the canal was to go, how it was to be built, what it was to be like, and why it was proposed.

Some persist in considering it a local project. Only a few grasp its wide-flung scope.

The earliest advocates of a canal felt that it was vital to give Pittsburgh a low-cost gateway to lake ports and to the sea, but they had few facts. Their successors gathered an avalanche of facts and figures. Studies of the feasibility of such a canal were made as early as 1889.



THE ROUTE (HEAVY LINE) OF THE RIVERS-TO-LAKES CANAL

The basic route—the one approved by the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors yesterday—was advanced in 1895. The original survey map hangs on the office wall of the Canal Board in the Courthouse.

This route selects the lowest level in making its way from Pittsburgh to Lake Erie's shores. It makes use of existing waterways, even of a long dry basin. And it is advanced as the shortest route—102 miles from the Beaver River to the lake.

The all distance is 84 miles.

The cost, which varies in different studies, ranging from $128,000,000 down to $112,000,000, would be borne by the federal government, which controls internal waterways, if the National Planning Board approves the expenditure from Public Works Administration funds.

Thirty-seven men comprised the Provisional Committee of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce which in 1895 surveyed the canal route from Beaver to the Mahoning and thence northward to Lake Erie.

Only three are living today—John E. Shaw, attorney; James A. Henderson, onetime packet line owner, and Gen. A. J. Logan, manufacturer.

In that group were George A. Kelly, Capt. Charles W. Batcheler, William M. Kennedy, John B. Jackson, Thomas P. Roberts, John F. Drave, Morrison Foster, William P. Herbert, W. L. Scaife, Alex McClure, Eugene M. O'Neill, M. K. Moorhead, George H. Anderson, H. C. Frick, William Flinn, C. L. Magee, S. D. Warmcastle, W. Harry Brown, John A. Wood, J. C. McDowell, A. B. Fleming, J. R. Harrah, W. S. Shallenberger, William M. Brown, Simon Perkins, Joseph G. Butler, Jr., Frank J. Hearn, E. M. Bigelow, W. H. Keech, James S. McKean, George C. Sturgis, S. S. Marvin, D. F. Black and John Eaton.

FIND NUDE BODY, NAB EX-CONVICT

SHAKOPEE, Minn., July 20.—(AP.)—After a 25-mile cross-county chase with the nude body of a St. Paul mother in his battered farm truck, Harry Lorenz, former convict, was overtaken near here late yesterday and subdued in a fist fight by Sheriff Arthur Messebrink.

The dead woman was Mrs. Mary Ischida, 42, mother of a 6-year-old boy. Her body was found, covered with branches, in Lorenz's truck.

After the Sheriff overpowered him, Lorenz, a farmer near Rosemount, who had served terms in St. Cloud Reformatory, pulled four pills from his pocket and swallowed them, officers said, in an attempt to commit suicide. He was taken to Scott County Jail here and given treatment.

TRUSTY SLAIN, 2 BOYS HELD

GRAFTON, W. Va., July 20.—(AP.)—Upon the results of a search of the bottom of the Tygarts Valley River depends the fate of two youthful industrial school inmates who, police said, have admitted killing a trusty.

Unless the body of the trusty, 16-year-old Jimmy Powell, of Huntington, is found, the police will be halted in their plans for charging David Bruner, 18, of Huntington, and Albert Nichols, 16, with Powell's slaying.

In a statement which State Trooper Claude Hefner and Supt. R. P. Bell, of the Industrial School for Boys, said they obtained from Bruner and Nichols yesterday, the latter admitted beating Powell to death as he attempted to prevent their escape from the school Tuesday. They said they threw the body into the river.

ELKS PARADE, MERCURY 107

KANSAS CITY, July 20.—(AP.)—Under a blazing sun that sent the mercury to 107 degrees, but did not wilt the spirit of several thousand marchers the B. P. O. Elks held their parade with a grand flourish yesterday, ending the seventieth annual convention.

Bernard F. Dickmann, Mayor of St. Louis and grand esquire of the order, was as good as his word. He had said he would march on foot, and he did, although it is customary for the one holding his title to ride.

Crowds in a circus-day spirit jammed the hot sidewalks and streets along the two-mile route of the parade.

The Elks ended their business session at noon with the installation of new officers, including Michael F. Shannon, Los Angeles, the grand exalted ruler.

LIONS WARNED OF COMMUNISM

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 20.—(AP.)—The International Association of Lions Clubs yesterday heard Edward A. Hayes, national commander of the American Legion, assert that Communism is invading "American schools, churches" and even government circles," and prepared to vote today on a resolution condemning such activities in educational institutions.

Commander Hayes also told delegates to the annual convention that "advocates of the regimentation of agriculture and the so-called new social order are digging a grave for the Constitution."

Roderick Beddow, of Birmingham, Ala., president of the association, said, however:

"What Mr. Hayes has said must be regarded as his own expression as the Legion's commander and not as a member of the Lions."

It was G. Garland Lyell, of Jackson, Miss., chairman of the resolution committee, who announced that a resolution would be submitted on Communism. He also said the Lions would be asked to pledge co-operation in the crusade against certain types of motion picture films.

German-Austrian Vet Wants Citizenship

Gregor Miele, 47, of R. F. D. No. 2, Pitcairn, who served four years in the World War as a soldier in the German and Austrian armies, filed application for American citizenship at the Pittsburgh office of the naturalization bureau. He came to the United States two years after the close of the war. Mele was born in Slavina, Italy, which before the war was part of Austria. He is married and the father of two daughters, Mary, 20, and Eveline, 14.

U.S. MAY 'PRINT' ALL IN U. S.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Eventual fingerprinting of all persons in the United States to afford a perfect identification system was visualized today by Department of Justice officials.

In discussing the department's identification bureau, which contains more than 4,400,000 fingerprints, mostly of law violators, Attorney General Cummings declared the system "is bound to grow."

Thousands of persons disappear annually, vanishing into a port of missing men and women, to a large extent because of the inability to identify those who have lost their memory—either voluntarily or involuntarily—as victims of accidents, or of disease.

While admitting the difficulty of such an undertaking and that the public must be educated to such a project, officials said it is not beyond the realm of possibility.

Such a record would form an invaluable aid to law enforcement officers, as well as in cases where no criminal activities are involved.

Heart Attack Kills World War Vet

Albert Pflaum, 48, of 3226 Winterburn street, a disabled war veteran, dropped dead in a lot adjoining the residence of T. J. Fulton, 306 Kaercher street, yesterday afternoon, according to a report at the County Morgue. Pflaum, who was awaiting papers of admittance to the Veterans' Hospital in Aspinwall, went to Fulton's residence to inspect some chickens. His death was due to a heart attack, officials at the morgue said.

'MY OWN STORY' :-: By MARIE DRESSLER :-: EXCLUSIVE

Film Actress Often Cuts Out, Makes Own Dresses

Marie Dressler, the funniest woman in America was born in a small town in Canada. After a series of ups and downs on the stage, she decided that in order to achieve success one must keep her troubles to herself. Her first big success was "Tillie's Nightmare," which sent her on the road to "hats with ostrich feathers as long as any in Newport."

Miss Dressler, however, insists on quitting work promptly at meal time. She has a word to say for the hundreds of technicians and workmen taking part in the picture productions, and relates humorous incidents caught by the searching eye of the camera.

MARIE DRESSLER ED WYNN.
FRIENDS OF OLD: THEY MET HERE BY CHANCE ON THE LOT

CHAPTER XI

In one end hang the new costumes and in the other the old, both totaling well in the neighborhood of 5,000 complete gowns or suits of all periods. It is not unusual for our dressmaker to be called upon to outfit a mob of 1,000 characters on 24 hours' notice, so it is necessary to be prepared.

I am often asked where I get my clothes. I don't know whether this is criticism, flattery or curiosity. As a matter of fact, it all depends on whether I am depicting rags or riches or whether I am in my own home, or one made of profile board.

When I am supposed to be regal, I go to the costume department and say, "I'm a queen," and they say, "We know it," because they already know the story and what is wanted. The probability is that my gowns and accessories are all laid out, or, if my raiment is to be new, it is ready for fitting.

When I want character stuff, I go to the other end where Mrs. Coulter, formerly of the Coulter Opera Company, has charge. She, too, knows what the play is about and has dug out old sweaters, dilapidated hats, worn shoes, and every article that she thinks I could or would use.

I go through her selections and we try this and that until, between us, we achieve an effect that is the part. I not only feel it, I am it.

For my own clothes—well, I don't buy them in Paris! And I don't patronize expensive shops in America. This is not the kind of presidential huey where the candidate poses before the camera milking the cow.

Makes Some Clothes

I just don't spend money on clothes. I do one of two things; when the wardrobe I have gets down to the place where the soup rights are of no value, I either go to a dresmaker or hatmaker who suits me and put myself in his or her hands, knowing that the expert in the craft will do better for me than if I try to mess in, or—now get this—I make my own!

Scissors intimidate some people, but I am in the Garden of Eden, almost literally, when I get hold of a pair! — some good-looking cloth and then lie on my stomach on the floor. I never let the goods know that I am afraid of it so that it does not take me long to whittle out covering, though I admit that I sometimes feel as if I were trying to dress the Statue of Liberty. I have started a gown in the morning and worn it at night, and I haven't looked like the covered wagon either!

Women who have clothes sense can dress on less than the alimony they collect. Many of my sex can stand lots of scenery—even need it. As for me, if I get dolled up too much, I look like a cozy corner in the 90's, a Mardi Gras or Pioneer day in Salt Lake City. To the woman who says wistfully, "I wish I could make my own clothes," I can only say what a bearded native replied to a tourist who stated that he certainly would like to see Hollywood Boulevard, "Who in hell's stopping you!"

Clothes Ruined

Curiously enough the screen is very hard on clothes. One picture will leave gowns in a worse condition than a long run for stage wear.

The black velvet dress which I wore in "One Romantic Night," the stage version of "The Swan," cost $400. The first time I put it on the lights burned holes in it and left it in such a rotted condition that I was afraid it would fall off me before the picture was finished. I have been asked if these same lights which burn the clothes off our backs won't burn our skins.

All I can say is that God gave us our skins and the manufacturers gave us our dyed clothes. The camera has a very searching eye and we have experts who do nothing but note incongruities in costume.

You probably hadn't thought of it, but there is always somebody to see that, if you go out of a door in white shoes, you don't reenter in black ones just because the scene happens to be shot the next day. This is as important as that the same flowers are not left on the piano for both April and October. Every little detail is watched by somebody.

Details Noticed

Yet, careful as we are about detail, no point is ever missed by an audience. A colored porter stopped me in a station one day and told me how he liked "Anna Christie." He said that he had been to see it three times. "The point that got me," he said, "was when the old man gave you the gate outside the saloon and you took your mad out just standing there picking at your cuff. Gee, I got a kick out of that and it taught me a lot. After that I started taking my mad out on my cap. I've worn out two."

Next to clothes, people are most curious about makeup. Their favorite question is, "who puts on your makeup?" If it didn't sound as if I had the big head, I would answer, "God." My face may not be much, but I don't do anything to it to make it either worse or better. I wear very little makeup, as a matter of fact, particularly in character parts. I believe that makeup takes character away and is, therefore, a serious handicap.

Los Angeles Establishes Records in All Three Derby Events; Other Derby Records Published

By LAWRENCE SHAW, National Director.

Greetings, Junior Birdmen! Here are the long awaited national results of the Junior Birdmen Model Plane Derbies held in the wing cities throughout the country. But even yet our report of results is not complete, for several of the wings had to postpone their activity further on account of bad weather.

New York held its derby Wednesday, too late to be included in this report, and San Francisco has had to call its contest off indefinitely because of the labor strike which tied up the entire city.

Among the wings which have reported are Los Angeles, Boston, Chicago, Omaha, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Milwaukee, Albany and Atlanta. Ten of the 17 cities, Rochester, Syracuse, Washington and others, probably will be ready for a report next week.

Los Angeles Leads the Way

Los Angeles, the home of the orange grove and up-draft wind currents that make it one of the best places in the country for model activity, came through with the best endurance time in all three events in the derbies so far to be reported. Far ahead of flight records in any other wing cities, this city has established Junior Birdmen endurance records that will be hard to beat anywhere, and probably will remain on record for quite some time.

Here are some of the reports covering the first place winners in the three events:

ALBANY

City championship—[illegible] 750 points.
Glider Event—First Place, Group A, [illegible]. 1 minute 17 seconds.
Glider Event—First Place, Group B, [illegible]. 42 2-5 seconds.
Single Stick Event—First place, group A, [illegible]. 1 minute 30 seconds.
Single Stick Event—First place, group B, [illegible]. 1 minute 57 2-5 seconds.
Double Stick Event—First Place, Group A, [illegible]. 1 minute 57 2-5 seconds.
Double Stick Event—First Place, Group B, [illegible]. 1 minute 57 2-5 seconds.

MILWAUKEE

City championship—Kenneth Lane, 10 points.
Glider event—First place, group A, [illegible]. 10 seconds.
Glider event—First place, group B, [illegible]. 1 minute 57 seconds.
Single stick event—First place, group A, [illegible]. 1 minute 30 2-5 seconds.
Single stick event—First place, group B, [illegible]. 1 minute 57 2-5 seconds.
Double stick event—First place, group A, [illegible]. 1 minute 57 2-5 seconds.
Double stick event—First place, group B, Kenneth Lane, 1 minute 57 2-5 seconds.

Well, that makes six reports already given, including Pittsburgh, and time and space are just about up. I did hope that I would be able to give you the others today, but I am compelled to let them go until next week. By that time we will also have the reports from the New York Derby and other Wing Cities as well so that we can have it even more complete.

Because of the various postponements, it will probably be necessary to hold the national meet at Washington at a later date. I will make an announcement regarding this early in the week. Happy landings!

LOS ANGELES

City Champion—Howard Broughton, 170 points.
Glider Event—First Place, Group A, Ted Mallett, 1 minute 17 seconds.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH CO.

THIS SYMBOL

What Does It Mean To You?

YOU meet it in the center of town. You meet it at the country crossroad. You meet it pretty much everywhere in between.

It may bring to mind only vague impressions of millions of telephones—service across town or across the seas—an army of men and women unobtrusively keeping the wheels of service moving—an industry owned by three-quarters of a million people like you, your friends, your neighbors.

SIZE, however mammoth, does not signify merit. Bell service is worth your approval only if the job is everlastingly well done, only if the service is better today than yesterday.

In that task is engaged an organization of men and women who, just like the people who own it, are your friends and neighbors—close to the everyday service itself—sensitive to public need—with no "high pressure" complex—sticking to their knitting in thoroughgoing American fashion, a fashion which has not been outmoded.

WHEN our people and service lose those dominant characteristics we shall haul down this symbol. It's a service dedicated to universal need; and the telephone organization urges your most exacting use of it.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Franconia, New Hampshire, has always been a magnet for Pittsburgh's smart set members who prefer the stillness of beautifully wooded mountains to the seashore.

The Roy A. Hunts like the mountains of New Hampshire so much that they have leased the summer estate of Karl P. Abbott on the grounds of the fashionable Forest Hills Hotel at Franconia.

Saudek Concert On Hotel Lawn

Tonight's the night of another of the popular concerts on the Hotel Schenley lawn, given by Victor Saudek's Little Symphony.

Tonight the Pittsburgh club of Mu Phi Epsilon Musical Sorority will be hostess with Mrs. Charles Yon, president of the local group, as chairman.

Her aides will be Elizabeth Storer Bothwell, Bernice Thompson Caldwell, Grace McMillan, Helen Machette, Jean Wickersham Zimmerman and Mrs. E. E. Hoelfel.

Members of the smart set, men and women prominent in business and the arts in Pittsburgh attend. And the concerts are ever so popular.

They have a continental atmosphere—chairs and tables on the lawn under the stars, music, and beer and cocktails or lemonade, if you wish. And so far, the lawn's the coolest place I've found this summer!

MAUD MULLER GOES QUAINT FOR 1934

By PRUNELLA WOOD

LADYLIKE gardening can be awfully effective even if it sometimes is not so successful from a crop point of view. City-suited travellers can be made to throw the black cat of envy when they come on their country hostess kneeling lovingly beside a crude hoe or an earwig, clad in a mustard comedy outfit, old bleached muslin in some arty cut, her little hands, protected by silly white gloves much too large, like those Anglo-Saxon messengers, and her pinafore now just west of the sunburn beneath a visit somberos of picture book quaintness. It goes over big, with all save the connoisseurs and the gardener who does the real work probably takes pride in these human, exotic blossoms of the summer.

* * *

THERE are two classes of apparel for the rustic gardener. One is that just established, developed with chintz or calico in Old South patterns, or muslin and linen straight out of a Billiekinny purl yard. The other is fairly Tauxmeretic, quite the business-like uniform, divided skirts, clodhopper shoes, mannish helmeted hat and shirted cut gallused as to the top. Blue denims, absorbent, bullable linen, or khaki are favored fabrics for them.

* * *

ALL A GAL has to do is to decide whether she wants to squirt a little arsenic on the rose bushes and gratefully answer a summons to tea, all dressed up cute and calling it a day on the lawn, or to build a natural rock pool and garden according to the instructions given away by the Department of Agriculture, and all that sort of honest toil. Whichever she chooses the outfit won't cost her much, so that she can cross her fingers as to keeping up the pose.

The frock above is unbleached muslin made with a full peasant skirt and a bodice trimmed with rows of rust red upholstery fringe and yellow and blue cotton ribbon. Th hat ies rough yellow straw with a peak of red buttons.

Center, three-quarters length, wide overalls and a matching coat and hat of sturdy blue denim; nickel buckles and buttons. Above, glazed chintz in a black and white wall paper print, with organza ruffles. The giddy bandana is madras print.

Through the Spyglass

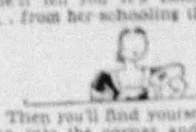
Viewing the New

You Hilo shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 5400 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

A modern fairy tale! A saga of needles and thread that has South America and London and twinkling fingers all twisted up into its warp and woof! Settle yourselves into the corner of your chair whilst we twitter on about . . .

This new shop where torn, burned, or snagged fabrics may be repaired with magic touch! (Note: Before we go any further let us say that this is NOT the same shop that we've mentioned before!)

The presiding genius is a demure South American miss, straight from Buenos Aires, with all the heritage of the Latin needlewoman behind her! And if you're puzzled about her very English accent (as we were) she'll tell you it's London made . . . from her schooling there.



Then you'll find yourself subsiding into the corner and goggling over the chalk crepe that she has re-woven into whole pieces from nothing other than "holes." Imagine duplicating chalk crepe texture by hand!!! That's another thing . . . everything is hand done . . . with the funniest little pair of tweezer-looking needles we've ever seen! Sew . . . sew, they go . . . then zing! and the threads are pulled through in a manner we can't attempt to describe . . . you'll just have to see it! The most perfect work imaginable and something that is enough to make owners of mangled clothes and table linens, all but break out into song!

And as a last triumphant touch, the prices are low (than any we've ever heard of before for work of this kind . . . starting at $1 and going scooting up the type of fabric to be worked and the size of the hole! No more "holey than thou-ness" frowns now m'!

* * *

More news! The leaves we were exclaiming over look late (than yesterday . . . remember? Now we know where you can buy very pretty ones in the new plate-like effects . . . for as little as $3.50 (wool crepes) . . . (silks at $5 (some evening ones among these) . . . and (silk and velvet at $7.50. Among this last group there is a darling that wears a (tie-(in on the side, made of cellophane no less. And considering that they're all brand new fall numbers, we think they're pretty dreamily priced! * * *

As your vacation is to your "red-up" feelings of the moment . . . so is a new "something" that smacks of the coming season. Nothing like it to paint new sparkle in your eyes . . . nothing like it to snap up the weariest of frocks. And that's why we've chosen these . . .

Now shoes! You can wear them with your summer silks right now (dark silks, that is) . . . you can (toe vacation-wards in (them knowing you are dressing the right thing by your (traveling outfit! You can hang and (hop, and buffet them about and they'll live up to the expectations of a higher-priced shoe. For they're . . .

Gabardine! Opera-s pumps in black, brown, or (blue . . . nicely, trimly made . . . with matching patent leather heels (nigh Continental the smartest of them all!) And they cost—$4.00. How's that for a plum to pick?

DOROTHY RANDALL.

Freckled-Face Boy Hurls Challenge

When the date was arranged for the annual Sun-Telegraph outing for the boys and girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity at West View Park, Tuesday, July 31, it was decided to hold to last year's plan—an observance of National Kiddies' Day, bringing in Quin Hall's Junior Patrol as one of the co-sponsors of the affair. And now comes along the Sun-Telegraph wing of the Junior Birdmen of America and it wants to know why it is left out in the cold.

It's not. It's invited to come in and join the big party. Perhaps it'll put on one of its splendid flying model shows. It's welcome.

In the meantime the interest in the contest for the Pittsburgh championship for freckled face kiddies is exciting the youngsters everywhere. Scores of entries are already in and it looks as though, in the aggregate there will be several million freckles in the contest. Wonderful prizes are to be awarded the champions. Get your entry in at once—use the blank on this page. Bobby Abbott, 9, of 816 Gearing avenue, says that freckles are his pet hobby and he expects to win the championship for boys. Will he?

In the meantime arrangements are being completed for the distribution of free tickets for the rides and attractions at West View Park. More about this in later editions of the Sun-Telegraph. By the way, it is a welcome piece of news to note that the Pittsburgh Railways Company will furnish a 15-cent street car pass for kiddies—round-trip from any part of Pittsburgh.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

We have been in the dog and cat finding business on a small scale for some time, but yesterday we were doing a wholesale business.

Mrs. M. R. Lewis, Chalfont avenue, West View, found two dogs. One is a bird dog and the other a German police dog.

She is anxious to return both dogs to their rightful owners and at the same time would like some one to return her cat, a brown, white, and yellow, female who wandered away from Peermont avenue, Dormont.

Her (Mrs. Lewis') telephone number is Wellington 0422-R.

Although I am an expert (says me) in matters pertaining to honey bees, I have lots to learn about hornets and don't feel qualified to pass my opinions on to Globe Trotters troubled by hornets. They are something else again and don't react docilely to drumming on a pan like a honey bee does.

The best advice I have for those who have written for information is to let hornets alone.

One informant says that hornets won't bother you unless you bother them, but when you are on a picnic you are not at all certain just what doesn't annoy a hornet.

If you have hornets in the house and if they happen to be in a hollow porch post, an injection of sulphur fumes will probably drive them out or kill them. This proves effective for wasps, too.

I am ready and willing to receive any information from you about hornets so that those of us Globe Trotters who go on picnics and who have them about the house can be relieved.

CONNOR AGREES BABY ROAMED

HARTSDALE, N. Y., July 20.—(AP.)—With his son, Bobby, recovering rapidly from near-starvation, Charles H. Connor said last night he was "completely satisfied" the baby had been lost in the woods for the entire five days he was missing. He told newspapermen:

"I am completely satisfied with the verdict of police and medical authorities, but I am convinced that the finding of our baby will be a contribution to medical science.

"The baby will be able to leave the hospital, I think, within 10 days.

'He is definitely healthy and we have no fear for his life now.

"I think he could have climbed over the wall and spent the five days in the woods. I feel definnitely positive that there was no tipoff to police where the baby could be found."

In the last statement Connor was referring to the previously expressed possibility that a note received by an attorney friend might have indicated to the officers where the baby was. The note, however, had been officially declared to be the work of a "chronic letter writer."

Successful Composers Scarce

By AIRCASTER

They will tell you in Tin Pan Alley that practically everybody in the world imagines himself capable of writing a song. More than that, say the music publishers, about 95 per cent of any city's population has tried it.

But alas, only one person in half a million really can. Despite grammatical errors in most popular ditties, the combination of tune and lyric represents literally a fine act.

Curiously enough, most people who listen to songs give the composers no credit at all for the art that must be employed, and never stop to consider that a tune which seems to have been dashed off suavely, really required a musical background, study, and many heart-breaking hours of actual composing.

That probably accounts for the profusion of songs that flood the mail of radio singers every day. The "composers" of these songs represent every walk of life. Ministers of the gospel, soda-jerkers, college girls, detectives and even postmen indulge themselves in fashioning tunes and lyrics.

When these have been rejected, as usual, by the publishers, they are then mailed to the singers direct, accompanied by complaints that Tin Pan Alley is made up of a favored clique, and that a newcomer has no chance. Not one in 15,000 of these songs has any merit.

THOUSANDS GYPPED

The vast majority of the "composers" do not trouble to write music. They merely compose a lyric. "which you, my dear Miss Smith-h," or you, Mr. Downey, can write a little tune to fit."

Two motivations actuate these "composers." The first is a desire to get into the big money "like Irving Berlin and Walter Donaldson." The other is what freudists describe as the yearning for expression to overcome some hidden inhibition.

Thousands of these would-be tunesmiths are gypped annually by phoney publishing concerns which offer to supply music for clever lyrics, and thereafter mulct the victims out of $50 here and $50 there to defray the publication of "sample" sheets with your name and picture on the cover."

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

If I Were the Aladdin of Hollywood

One of the very first things I'd do after rubbing my lamp—would be to prohibit theaters from running more than one feature flicker. Imagine having to sit through three or four long movies before you see the best part of the show, which usually is the newsreel!

If I were head man of H'wood you can betcha life I'd never, never, never allow four trans-continental bus films, five women spy pictures, two telephone repair men sagas, and 9,656 "Grand Hotel" floperas to come out at the very same time—or even the same year.

There'd also be an academy prize for the best song of the year, as well as the best picture and producer and actor, etc. Many a second-rate film has been saved by a hit tune. Take "Sitting Pretty," a Paramount flop; the song that saved it was "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" . . . "Murder of the Vanities" ("of" is correct, my dears), was another Paramount fizzle, but it had "Cocktails for Two." Amos 'n' Andy's picture was dull, you know, but "Three Little Words" helped it considerably. And so on.

Bing Crosby would rate a bonus every time he smiled. A smile is always contagious, no matter on whose face it is. The homeliest and most fearful people seem pleasant when they smile. I wouldn't overdo it, however, as done by Carl Brisson or Dick Powell.

The same voices in the newsreels week after week (which get monotonous) would be among my "outs." I'd change the music, too.

There wouldn't bo more than one or two shorts on any bill. So few of them are worth while, anyhow. They remind me of bad small-time vaudeville—and you know what became of that.

I'd be careful of the radio "personalities" I hired — too many of them haven't the appeal of a Crosby, and so many of them have cost fortunes and audiences' tempers. Did you ever see Ed Wynn in "The Fire Chief"? . . . Well, I did! . . . Or Kate Smith in "Hello Everybody"? . . . Or Jack Pearl in "Meet the Baron"? . . . And howzah 'bout yowzah?

I'd see to it that Bert Wheeler, one of the better comics, was in a funny comedy. In fact, I'd like to see Mr. Woolsey in one, too.

Nobody would be permitted to bore anybody with slapstick stuff. Only Chaplin and W. C. Fields know how—without being dull.

My musical films would be different because there'd be no overhead shots showing chorines lying down in a circle holding hands.

No writers would live to tell it if they had the heroine wind up with a loafer, whose whole life smelled and who otherwise was no good and a lowlife—when a nice man with money offered her marriage. Of all the sappy endings—when the late Dorothy Dell spurned a rich man and love—to return to Oakie, a side show barker. They never do it!

I'd tell the Warner Brothers that it is getting too, too tahrsome seeing the same casts in every picture. I'd like to see Dick Powell, for example, woo somebody else for a change. And Joan Blondell playing something else besides a tough doll. Guy Kibbee, Allan Jenkins and Frank McHugh would be divorced or else.

Since it will be done some day, I'd make a picture out of "Green Pastures," which is really a challenge to the camera. Even the feeble echo of this play done as a scene in "Wonderbar" was a hit.

I would demand more advertising campaigns as amusing as the one they did on "Joe Palooka" . . . I'd give Warner Baxter a good story for a change, Ricardo Cortez would be allowed to do something besides sneer, M. West would get a new phrase, and K. Hepburn a comb.

I wouldn't be afraid, as the magnates are now, of filming controversial subjects. For anything worth while is worth arguing about, and the only way to arouse interest is to present a subject that has two sides . . . And I'd be like the book publishers, who issue a volume or two each year for the sake of prestige, and produce plots like Clemence Dane's "Will Shakespeare" and R. Rolland's "Jean Christophe."

Producers who have lost all touch with the people, and who inject savagery, indecency and bloodshed scenes because their jaded senses don't react to ordinary emotions any more, would be forced to spend a month each year as ushers in a small town movie theater.

I'd stop my staffs from making silly remarks about movie critics and their methods of reviewing. It is most amusing when they squawk about this and that system as some critics use it—but when any studio's flicker gets a boost—huge ads are bought to quote the fact.

Authors whose plots are cheesy would have to stand in front of the theater and return the patrons' money from their own pockets. And be forced to take a piece of anybody's mind. (They certainly need it!)

I'd stop press agents from saying an actress was educated in a convent when you can see she came from a hash house.

And, by golly, no executive, director, supervisor, cameraman, press agent or casting director or anybody on the lot—would be allowed to promise beautiful girls screen tests. (That'd be my racket.)

Star Again Going to Altar

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 20.

Hello! Whirligig of the news . . . Gloria Stuart, Universal star, recently divorced, will altar-march it with Arthur Sheekman, one of Eddie Cantor's gagmen! . . . The Eddie Foys are baby buggy shopping!

* * *

Pat West's daughter had a birthday. Her mother said:

"Well, isn't it grand that you are going to be 7 years old tomorrow?"

And the little girl replied:

"Sure, Ma—but I certainly don't look it!"

* * *

It was one of those nights . . . An evening set aside for William (better known as just plain Bill) Frawley at the Players' Club, a place where the guests of yesterday's vaudeville bills get together to chin over old and happy times.

After the fights, Solly Violinsky and Skins Miller turned over their clubs to Jay C. Flippin, a master of ceremonies the like of which has never been seen—or heard. Bert Wheeler offered the "Western Rights" to "Little Mousie;" "Slapsie" Maxie Rosenbloom floored the folks with his imitation of Harry Richman; George Raft did his Texas Guinan Club dance; Burton Lane, the composer, absolutely ruined the natives with his piano ditties; Solly Violinsky offered his famous "Piano Player at the Movies;" Cully Richards upset the cash customers with an ad lib routine; Jane Jones warbled like the times Wilson Mizner applauded his hands sore; Tommy Dugan revived his ancient act; Jack Durant offered Harry Richman, George Jessell and he might still be on if the guest of honor, Bill Frawley, hadn't chirped out with "Carolina in the Morning;" and —well, it was just one of those rare evenings that can never be repeated . . . A grand tribute to a grand guy!

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . Cupid's firing hot arrows at Eph Asher and Mary Lou Dix, a Goldwyn honeybunch . . . Josie and Dudley Murphy celebrated their divorce by giving a party at the El Rey Club . . . Mack Gray, laughingly known as "The Killer," and George Raft's bodyguard, can now tack the title of "Columbus" on himself. He "discovered" another Shirley Temple in a 4-year-old Mary Jane Johnson, and the little lady has been snapped up by Paramount . . . Mon. was Ginger Rogers' birthday with a flock of surprises—a swell new car from Lew Aydrs ane a nifty, redecorated dressing room at RKA from mamma . . . Carole Lombard and May Robson will be co-starred in "Orchids and Onions" at Columbia.

* * *

Makin' Snoopee . . . Dorothy Wilson, Charles Starret and Big Boy Williams are featured in "A Girl Must Live," an Invincible picture . . . Lynn Cowan, the piano pounder, has turned actor for a role at Columbia . . . Helen Ferguson is back in town after several Hey-Hey weeks in New York . . It could only happen in Hollywood—one of the young autograph-seekers hanging around in front of the Brown Derby accosted Charley Chaplin with: "Say, Mister willya sign some actor's name in my book? I'm gettin' tired waitin'." Chaplin started to write his name and the kid looking at the book, said: "Aw, don't make it such a big star. Nobody'll believe it anyway!" . . . Glenda Farrell has gone for a CHANGE of rest from New York to Greenwood, Virginia . . .

"In Your Eye He Is!"

Carol Ann Beery registers her idea of her daddy, Wallace Berry being a bad pirate in "Treasure Island." Note Wally's one sport shoe, the other being in "character" for Long John Silver, a pegleg, played by Beery. Jackie Cooper plays the boy in the story.

Able Blonde Wanted

By LLOYD PANTAGES

HOLLYWOOD, July 20.—A bit of casting—but if you are too far away it will probable not do you much good: If you are a good looking blonde and ride horseback with ease and comfort, to say nothing of shooting a gun as though it were not a water pistol, rush out to the Pathe studio, where Sol Lester is looking for just such a little woman to play opposite George O'Brien in "The Dude Ranger."

* * *

Believe it or no, yes Mr. Ripley: Raymond Walburn of Columbia studio, spends all of his spare time, when not before the camera, fishing, but never eats any of his catch on account of when he was but a sprig of a boy, he struck a bad one and almost died of ptomaine poisoning. Harold Lloyd claims he is not superstitious, but he insists on going out the same entrance of a building he entered. He won't go through a tunnel unless it is while riding a train. He insists on using the same stage for production at the Metropolitan studio, where his first big success was photographed and he always carries a roll of lucky money he started collecting 15 years ago. Not superstitious — oh yeah!

* * *

Otto Kruger actually invented the talkies, inasmuch as in the old days of the nickelodeons, he used to write dialogue for one-reel silents and then stand back of the screen and give forth all the speaking parts. Preston Foster, practically got himself done away with when a whale selected the bottom of his fishing boat as a wonderful spot on which to scratch off its barnacles.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Henry Wilson called Ida Lupino's first party since her illness a "coming out party"—"coming out of quarantine" . . . Irene Dunne has stopped covering up that cute little dimple in her chin with makeup—if you're interested in dimples today.

* * *

Robert Gleckler is of the opinion, mathematically speaking, that four actors can pass around a given pint about three times!

Why Ned Sparks Looks Sour

Ned Sparks, the screen's leading exponent of pessimistic comedy, credits his emaciated, sour-looking visage to a once chronic case of indigestion from which he suffered. When his indigestion was cured he had to continue to look sour-faced.

Film Given Second Title Change

A second change in title has been announced for what started as Columbia's "The Criminal Within," which features Richard Cromwell, Arline Judge and Rita La Roy. It will be released under "Name the Woman," following a decision against "What Price Scandal."

Frank Craven Play For Screen

"That's Gratitude," Frank Craven's Broadway success, one of the features on Columbia's 1934-35 program, has gone into production with the author-actor playing the role of "Grant," which he created on the stage.

Your Theater and Mine -:- By KARL KRUG

IN RETROSPECT

Do you remember Eddie Sullivan, who used to conduct the orchestra in the Davis when the two-a-day was something? Eddie went from the Pitt to the Smithfield street vaudeville emporium and later was forced to go West for his health. Since then but little has been heard from him.

Now he writes to Gene Connelly, his old boss in the Davis, that he has been connected with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for six years, and has been musical contractor of that film-producing organization for the last two. If you were a Davis "regular" before the cinema depopulated the variety circuits, there may be a tear or two in part of Eddie's letter to Gene. He says:

"I received your address from Angie De Michele, of the old vaudeville team of Ward and Van. I see quite a lot of the old-timers out here and they bring back many fond recollections. . . . I would like to walk into your office and sit down for a good chat about everything in general. . . . I may get East in a year or so and then we will go back over the times we had festival weeks with 10 and 12 acts."

The team of Ward and Van, mentioned by Eddie, was a favorite next-to-closing turn in the Davis. If you remember your vaudeville, you will recall the two personated Italians, a harpist and a violinist, the latter the comic of the team whose pantaloons kept falling down during the routine.

PERT AND IMPERTINENT

Vincent Lopez, who brought his band to town today, still gets a kick out of recalling his first professional appearance . . . It was at one of those ice cream and cake socials, and along about the third number one of the sponsors came up to Vincent and said: "De folks don't want any more of that Coney Island music" . . . Incidentally, Lopez' six-year agreement with the St. Regis Hotel will net him a cool million . . . Fall fashion blasts from Hollywood: Gowns will be cut extremely low both back and front and some will have no shoulder straps at all . . . Do your shopping early, girls . . . Art Levy, local Columbia exchange head, held film row spellbound with that radio spiel the other day . . . And he was plugging his own product . . . What has become of Reid Jaynes? . . . There are not near enough pictures with that sour old pan, Ned Sparks . . . Shirley Temple is taking a six-week's vacation while her papa and mamma fight for $50,000, no more, no less, for each picture she makes . . . That entire short feature program tried at the Roxian Wednesday, will spread to 10 or more other neighborhood houses if successful . . . The plan is to use short subjects only one day a week . . . An eight-pound male heir has arrived in the Brookline bungalo of the Louis Hamels . . . He's the Penn's chief of service . . . Oh, yes! Shirley's mamma wants $100 a week for taking care of Shirley on the lot . . . Joe Feldman, Warner publicity chief, will week-end in New York, and Mike Cullen will return to the Penn tonight which sends Howard Burkhardt back to the Century Theater, Baltimore . . . Dorothy Phillips and Hariett, Pettit, secretaries in the local Warner offices, will return Monday from their summer playtime . . . In the words of Andy Park too many crime pictures make the criminal "a hero and the district attorney a bum" . . . The Warners outbid Sam Goldwyn for the Vallee screen presence . . . Garbo sneered a $15,000 for one radio program . . . Phil Dunning has written a newspaper play which bears the very intriguing title, "Kill That Story!" . . . The next Damon Runyon film you will see locally will be "Midnight Alibi," which the famous sports writer authored under the far better name of "The Old Doll's House."

The week's best press agent story:

Freddie March was reminiscing about his old trouping days in the South.

"What kind of a run did you have in Savannah?" he was asked.

"We beat the audience over the county line by three minutes," answered Freddie.

Cantor Picture Begun

With 60 prize beauties gathered at the Samuel Goldwyn studios prepared to assume thrir roles as the "Goldwyn Girls," Eddie Cantor's fifth annual musical comedy, "Kid Millions," has gone into production. Thirty-one of the newcomers have never before appeared in motion pictures and are now in Hollywood as the result of an intensive nationwide search.

Their screen debut will be in a stylized minstrel show in which the principal parts will be played by Cantor, Ethel Merman, Ann Sothern, Block and Sully and Paul Kelly. It is staged as part of a concert on board a steamer bound for Egypt, carrying conspirators for buried treasure in a tomb of the Pharaohs.

Terror Film Thrills in Warner

By KARL KRUG

A juicy chunk of hokum melodrama, trading under the appropriate name of "The Return of the Terror," made its appearance in the Warner yesterday afternoon where it kept an overflow audience in a state of nervous glee throughout its scary length.

Based on a story by the late Edgar Wallace, "The Return of the Terror" pirks a lunatic asylum for most of its locale, and a dark stormy night for its action, and the net result is a horror yarn that would almost make a cooling plant unnecessary in the Warner this week.

You've seen a dozen or more variations of this one, but its the berries for mystery story addicts, owning, as it does, three or four murders, furtive shadows slinking here and there and a newly-developed ray in a laboratory that makes anyone standing in its path appear to be a skeleton. The audience, including myself, swallowed all this old hoke hook, line and sinker, and liked it!

ESCAPES FROM ASYLUM

The picture starts easily enough with John Halliday on trial for several arsenic murders in his sanitarium, murders, by the way that he didn't commit. Taking refuge in an insanity plea, he is sent to an asylum for the criminal insane, from which he escapes after keeping the audience guessing whether he is crazy or not. Then, as the old reliable saying goes, the fun begins.

Returning in the dark of the night and a driving rain to his sanitarium, Dr. Redmayne, the character portrayed by Halliday, plays hide-and-seek with the law, gangsters, a newspaperman, several lunatics, the girl he loves, and last but no least the man who has taken his place at the head of the sanitarium, Dr. Goodman, quietly and effectively impersonated by Lyle Talbot.

Its thrilling entertainment of its brand, with Director Howard Bretherton keeping the creepy chills well interminglod with plenty of comedy, most of it contributed by the droll Frank McHugh, who, as a newspaper reporter, is indirectly responsible for bringing the real culprit to justice. Halliday's performance is excellent, as usual, and the less important roles are capably filled by Mary Astor, Irving Pichel, George E. Stone and Frank Reicher, the latter giving a short but compelling bit of a dope-using doctor.

"The Return of the Terror" works itself into a pretty tense atmosphere as it nears its climax, but the uncovering of the real criminal is accomplished with a surprise and welcome lack of hysteria: also a sign of something resembling relief from the audience.

TEARS AT ANY PRICE

To the long and ever increasing list of suffering screen mothers is added Wynne Gibson, who has the leading feminine role in a dreary tale entitled "I Give My Love," also showing in the Warner. Authored by Vicki Baum, who should have known better, "I Give My Love," a tale of the art colonies, is overburdened with sacrifices and emotional situations.

Karl Freund's direction is so obviously aimed to bring forth the tears at any price that it defeats its own purpose and the unhappy situations in which Miss Gibson and Paul Lukas, cast opposite her, find themselves in before "I Give My Love" has run its course will have you squirming in your seat.

The best performance is given by John Darrow, who, as Miss Gibson's unworthy husband, is killed off far too soon to be of much use to the picture. As in most of these double feature programs, the Joe Penner short would have been enough of a running mate for "The Return of the Terror."

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Damon Runyon, sports writer whose stories are just now getting a big break in the films, is reported doing a play about Broadway characters for Broadway consumption. It is to be produced, it is said, by Courtney Burr, who brought out "Sailor Beware" last season, much to the benefit of his bank account. Mr. Burr expects to be quite busy in the fall, having under consideration two other plays to bring before the public. Included will be "Small Miracle," by Norman Krasna, author of "Louder, Please," radio satire of two seasons ago. He also has "Ladies Money," by George Abbott, who, with Phil Dunning, wrote "Broadway." Mr. Abbott, incidentally, is a producer, himself.

* * *

Arthur Marlowe, who is directing "Oliver Oliver," the Paul Osborn comedy that will be staged next week by the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse in the Arnold School Theater, also will play a part in the production. Mr. Marlowe at one time was associated with the George Sharp company here, but has been in New York for several years. He directed the first play of the season for the Civic players, "The Curtain Rises." This organization has set August 13 as the date for the appearance of Judith Anderson in "Female of the Species," by A. L. Golden, local playwright. It is said that New York producers are interested in his latest effort, "Female of the Species," which, in the Playhouse schedule, will be produced between "Her Master's Voice" and "The Shining Hour."

* * *

Robert Edmund Jones, who directs the annual festival revivals in Central City, in the mountains 50 miles west of Denver, has an idea of making it an all-summer event before his contract expires in 1937. He has in mind the introduction of new plays as well as revivals, and the presentation of musical interludes in the way of concerts by prominent orchestras. This year's festival play, "Othello," with Walter Huston in the title role, will run from July 21 to August 4, a sell-out at $3.50 per being reported for the first night. Last year the festival play was presented at 95 per cent capacity for two weeks.

Rinehart Novel Filmed

The title role in "State Versus Elinor Norton" has been assigned to Claire Trevor, and the film adaptation of the Mary Roberts Rinehart best-selling novel, which was made by Rose Franken, goes into production soon at Fox Movietone City.

Over 200 interviews were registered at the Fox studios and exactly 50 screen tests made among candidates for the part before Miss Trevor was decided upon. The blonde actress also appears in the leading role opposite John Boles, in the forthcoming production, "Wild Gold."

Morning Matinees For Children

Saturday morning's sponsored matinees for children will feature Tom Mix in the Enright, where he will be seen in "Rustler's Round-Up." There also will be a Popeye cartoon, two other comedies, a musical film, and a song party, conducted by George Van Why. In the South Hills the feature will be Chic Sale in "Dangerous Crossroads," the bill also to include a "Tarzan" serial episode, a cartoon, a comedy, a musical film and melody cartoon.

MAN, 80, ROUTS HUSKY GUNMAN IN HOME

Former Steel Worker Wrests Revolver From Intruder

The husky, young gunman put to rout by an 80-year-old man, who wrested a revolver from him, today undoubtedly was congratulating himself that the weapon was unloaded.

Going to the icebox in the hall on the second floor of his home, 1113 Mary Ann street, South Side, Lawrence Levandowski, 5 feet 6 inches tall, and a former steel worker, encountered the armed and masked stranger, police said. Pointing his revolver at the aged man, the thug, whose weight was estimated at 200 pounds and height at six feet, asked him where his money was hidden.

Levandowski grabbed for the revolver while the gunman pushed him onto a nearby trunk and beat him on the head. The victim's shouts for help attracted Mrs. Mildred Stetler, who lives on the first floor. When the bandit turned to look at her, Levandowski twisted the revolver from his grasp.

The intruder ran up the fire escape to the third floor. Levandowski, realizing that he would have to run down to escape, ran to a front window in time to meet him. He was only a foot away when he pressed the trigger of the thug's revolver twice. It failed to fire and the man escaped. An examination disclosed the gun was unloaded.

SEEK APPROVAL OF EXPO PLANS

Final approval of plans for a $6,000,000 exposition building at the Point is expected to be asked of City Council shortly after it reconvenes July 23. An ordinance granting the Greater Pittsburgh Exposition Society a 50-year lease on the site of the old Exposition Buildings has passed two readings, and the Chamber of Commerce and downtown business interests have indorsed the project.

Seeking to avoid burdening city taxpayers, officials of the society are planning to try for a Public Works Administration loan. Sponsors of the building say it will complement, rather than interfere with the proposed Motor Square Garden, since its purpose is to provide for conventions and permanent industrial exhibitions.

Motorcycle Afire, Rider Escapes Hurt

Joseph Brown, 35, of 2118 Lucina avenue, Overbrook, narrowly escaped injury last night when his motorcycle caught fire in West Carson street. West End firemen extinguished the blaze.

Man and Girl, Enemies, Flee in Skiff From Quarantined Yacht

CHAPTER I.

Because they had quarreled more bitterly than usual and because he had heard Linda agree to the shore party, Jerome Crain had side-stepped it. He had told their host that he would join them later at the Casino, but not to wait for him. He wanted to look up an old planter friend whose acquaintance he had made when in the Navy.

Because she had overheard Jerome say all this, and because she felt that she simply could not stand hearing his voice until she had taken at least a 12-hour absence cure of him, Linda had at the last moment malingered and remained aboard.

They had got into San Cristobal early that morning after a short run along the coast. San Cristobal had pronounced a quarantine on vessels coming from San Mateo but the health officer made a concession in a case of the big clean million dollar yacht; owner, Mr. Thomas Tucker. An honoraire for this courtesy may have had a good deal to do with it.

At about midnight Jerome returned from dining with his Central American acquaintance and went off aboard. The quartermaster on anchor watch told him that none of the party had returned. This was exact but misleading. Linda had not gone ashore and was sleeping in her cabin below. The quartermaster said also that one of the sailors had been taken with so violent a colic that the captain feared appendicitis and had sent him to a hospital ashore.

This in the opinion of Jerome, who had resigned his commission of lieutenant, U. S. N., the year before, was a proper precaution since the yacht's doctor, a paid guest, was ashore with the others. You could not fool with appendicitis.

Spoiled Child

It was hot in his cabin and for a while he lay awake reflecting on his fulminating attack of dislike for Linda. She was the typical spoiled and selfish only daughter of a gentleman who had done practically nothing all his life but conserve a big fortune that at this moment was not so big. Jerome did not know what the shrinkage was.

It was tough on a man to spend his whole life safeguarding something that according to the best authorities he could not profit by in the next world, or even be sure of keeping in this one. But it might be good for Linda to be fetched up with a sound turn on the bitter end. If that were to happen she would probably marry a great deal of money with a fairly desirable drawback thrown in. There were plenty of rich men still left, and Jerome was compelled to admit that if any young woman could look over the list and take her pick it would be Linda. Provided, of course, she had sense enough not to make a long yachting cruise with that one.

Linda before falling asleep had indulged similar bitter opinions about Jerome. Her finding of him included other detail. He had previously been she decided a stuffed uniform. But the uniform itself had been an asset until he had discarded it for a stuffed shirt. Linda felt that as a naval officer he had at least a symbolic virtue, while as a civilian architect any petty officer ranked him in value because he was merely petty without being an officer.

Seeking Way Out

Jerome, sweltering in pajamas on a fine grass sleeping mat, and Linda in and on the same, had one point at least in common. Both were by this time surfeited with this aimless cruise around the shores of the Caribbean. Both were overfed on the yachts routine luxury and determined to quit it on some pretext, even if they had to cable somebody at home to send a radio requiring their immediate return for what ever urgent reason the mind of the sender might be able to invent. They were sick and tired of the

Flies to School

FINDLEY WILSON

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 20.—Findley Wilson, Lawrence County farmer, aviation instructor and school teacher, has gone in for higher education in the modern manner.

He uses his flivver airplane to commute daily between the airport here, where he operates a flying school in the afternoons, and State Teachers' Training College at Slippery Rock, where he attends summer school in the mornings.

During regular school season, he teaches in the Slippery Rock Township school, not far from his home in Princeton, near here.

Flying, says the scholarly pilot, who has a transport license and 750 hours of solo time to his credit, is cheaper, safer and more convenient than motoring. The distance between his airport and Slippery Rock is about 25 miles. He flies the distance in about 25 minutes on a gallon of gasoline. He says:

"Try and do it in an automobile."

WOMEN FIGHT INCINERATOR IN EAST END

Pumping Station Site Opposed, Enlist Businessmen

Resolutions to the County Commissioners and City Council protesting the location of a city incinerator at the Brilliant Pumping Station were passed at a meeting of women of the Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth wards in the Fulton School, North St. Clair and Hampton streets, last night.

It was announced that a committee of the women already have petitions carrying 4,000 names of persons opposed to the incinerator.

The meeting, presided over by Mrs. R. T. Keenoy, was attended by more than 100 women. Mrs. Keenoy announced that proprietors of 145 business houses in East Liberty have signed petitions opposing the proposed location.

Committees were named to canvass every street in the wards represented for petitioners against the incinerator.

An ordinance for the creation of five positions in connection with the construction of two incinerator plants will be introduced in Council Monday, it was announced by the Department of Public Works today. The positions are those of engineer at $225 a month; two inspectors at $167.50 a month each, and two clerks at $150 a month.

AIRLINES TO GET RATE HEARING

Following the flight over Pittsburgh of a Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., plane, charting a new TWA coast-to-coast service, County Director of Parks A. M. Marion has notified officials of the air line that he is willing to confer with them over landing rates at the County Airport.

Though Marion said he considered the fact that the plane did not stop here as "unimportant and meaningless," TWA officials regarded the flight as an indication that the line may carry out its threats to omit Pittsburgh from its stations unless landing rates are reduced here.

Leslie P. Arnold, assistant to the president of TWA, said last night:

"Our proof that we meant what we said flew over Pittsburgh at exactly 11:30 this morning."

Tried to Stab Him, Suing Mate Charges

Alleging that his wife tried to stab him with a butcher knife, attacked him with a curtain pole and went riding with an automobile salesman, returning intoxicated, Harry J. He also avers in a bill of particulars, filed in Common Pleas Court, that she told him all she wanted out of life was a good time.

PWA OFFICIAL 'REGRETS' ERROR

Mayor Ignores Snub, Threatens to Arrest U. S. Toll Takers

By JOHN COWAN
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Harold L. Ickes, Public Works Administrator, thought a Republican was knocking at his door yesterday when Mayor McNair called, and therefore refused to see him, it was revealed here today.

The old Bull Moose Republican, Ickes forgot that the present Mayor of Pittsburgh is a Democrat, and was profusely regretful when his mistake was brought to his attention.

Attaches of the PWA office said the administrator would gladly have granted a private interview had he known McNair's status.

With Ickes leaving on his vacation today, however, and the Mayor in Philadelphia, chances are slim of the two getting together.

IGNORES SNUB

The administrator's refusal to see McNair, it is declared, will result in a "sad half hour" for somebody in the Roosevelt administration, since the first Democratic executive in Pittsburgh in several decades is regarded in domestic national headquarters as a political factor of no mean importance.

It is recalled that President Roosevelt was only too glad to welcome him in the White House. Though McNair ignored the snub offered him by a major cabinet officer, he lost no time in communicating his feelings to leading party supporters.

NOT AFRAID OF POLICE

Informed at a press conference that the Mayor threatened to have Pittsburgh police arrest toll takers at the Liberty tubes, Ickes replied:

"Then I'll send Mike Straus, my publicity man, up there. He'll take care of the situation. He'll bring back all the police."

In a serious vein, he added:

"I have repeatedly told our good friends in Pittsburgh that they only can make their complaint to the Allegheny County Authority, since this is the only body with which we have any dealings."

Representatives of the South Hills Civic Association today were to start a campaign to have City Council refuse street rights for new approaches to the tubes.

Conferring with PWA Engineer Clarence McDonough yesterday, the group was told that failure of the Allegheny County Authority to obtain the right of way from the city for street improvements within the city limits may halt PWA projects.

MT. LEBANON GETS U. S. FUND

P. W. Cooke, clerk of Mt. Lebanon Township, today received notice from the office of Secretary of Interior Ickes that a grant (or gift) of $11,200 for park improvements had been made to Mt. Lebanon. This is the first of three grants requested. Al three, totalling $30,000, probably will be approved.

Original plans called for loans and grants from the government, but this was changed when the township commisioners succeeded in selling their bonds at a better figure elsewhere.

With the bonds and the grants, the public improvements entail in the neighborhood of $100,000. This will be spent on sewers, streets and parks. Work probably will be started in a month.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 20.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

In 1926 I was in England during their world-famous general strike. And brother it was general. Not a paper printed, not a train, not a bus, not a wheel turned. Well, I never got through telling of the composure of those level headed people. Well I went to San Francisco. And I tell you we are not so "nutty" under stress as you might think. It was as quiet as the British. The only thing went haywire was the headlines in the out-of-Frisco papers. I hope we never live to see the day when a thing is as bad as some of our newspapers make it.

Will Rogers

There is lots of sense in this country yet.

Yours, WILL.

All is confusion at the residence of the Alex W. Verners, social registerites at 6100 Howe street, because Skippy is lost.

Skippy is a dog, but not an ordinary dog. Skippy is a pedigreed black and white wire-haired fox terrier, no less. Skippy is three years old and when he wandered away last Monday he wore a harness and a collar bearing his name, address and license number.

In case Skippy is found, Mrs. Verner, the distraught mistress of the little pet, will pay a reward to the finder.

Heading the search for the missing pet is Miss Barbara Verner, the attractive young debutante daughter of the Verners.

Bill Murray Might Call Out Troops To Help Langer

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Ought to be a law against any governor calling out the militia to help him look for his collar button.

There's Bill Langer out in the double Dakotas, who says he is Governor. The State Supreme Court says he ain't. So Bill mobilizes the National Guard with their bayonets bent into question marks.

It's too far inland for the Supreme Court to depend on the Coast Guard. And our Navy wouldn't look so dignified sailing up a dry Dakota creek. Looks like the Marines will have to put on their judicial robes and take chage of that thing.

You can't tell where the trouble will spread. Any minute, now, Bill Murray, of Oklahoma, is liable to call out his state militia in sympathy.

WATERS FLAYS FEDERAL RELIEF

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, July 20.—Accusing the Federal Emergency Relief Administration of a "sustained, systematic and astounding discrimination" against Pennsylvania, State Treasurer Charles A. Waters in an open letter to his fellow members of the State Emergency Relief Board today offered five methods by any one of which he said he believed a special legislative session to provide relief funds might be avoided.

Waters' five plans in brief were to:

1—Notify the federal government the state proposes to meet the relief problem at the next regular session of the Legislature in January and will depend in the meantime upon federal funds.

2—Transfer or borrow the money from the motor fund.

3—Advance the money to the state liquor stores from the motor fund or otherwise in anticipation of the liquor board's profits at the end of the year.

4—Advise the counties and poor boards to exercise their own borrowing powers to obtain necessary funds.

5—Allot any money obtained by anticipation of the liquor profits to the various counties and obtain the additional amount needed to meet the federal allocation from the county poor boards.

Waters, who was delegated by the relief board to study the situation, made public his findings in advance of the next meeting of the board at the National Guard camp in Mt. Gretna on Monday in order to permit the board members to study the proposals before the meeting, he said.

Reviewing the ultimatum of Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, that Pennsylvania must reassume a share of the relief burden after September, Waters declared:

"To my mind, the situation resolves itself into one of two contingencies, either we as public officials find a way out of the difficulties or our taxpayers must be put on the spot by convening a special session of the Legislature."

Declaring he was strongly opposed to a special session, Waters said his conclusions were based on the following premises:

"In the first place, we all realize the commonwealth cannot borrow any money under the constitution until 1938. Again, I believe it would be impossible to realize upon any new taxing statute for several months after a special session.

"Furthermore, the costs alone of a special session may take $500,000 of the taxpayers' money, yet within five months of the time a special session could be convened, the regular session of the Legislature will be under way at Harrisburg.

"And, finally, I am impressed with the fact that it is the federal government which is forcing more taxes on our people without sufficient time for deliberation, and at the same time it is apparent from the records of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration that there has been a sustained, systematic and astounding discrimination against the people of this state."

G. O. P. NAMES GEORGE OLIVER

HARRISBURG, July 20.—(AP.)—A committee which will draft the platform upon which Republican candidates will wage the fall campaign was appointed today by M. Harvey Taylor, state chairman.

The committee will be assisted by Taylor, Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, state vice chairman, and these nominees for state-wide offices:

David A. Reed, United States Senate; William A. Schnader, Governor; Harry B. Scott, Lieutenant Governor, and Frank M. Trexler, Judge of the Superior Court.

Margiotti Denies Third Party Parley

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—(AP.)—Charles J. Margiotti, who ran a strong third in a field of 16 candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor, conferred with former supporters last night at a Philadelphia hotel. He said:

"I am not here to discuss the formation of a third party. I have not committed myself to any one, Republican, Democrat or Independent, as to my attitude in the state campaign."

THE TIRE SENSATION OF '34

Sells on Sight!

TO SEE it is to buy it! That's the way extra value stands out in the new Firestone Century Progress Tire. We found out what car owners wanted most in a tire—then we gave it to them. Out of more than ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year, this opinion was obtained: "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long wear, at a Moderate Price."

That was a large order, and the price part of it was the biggest problem. We said to ourselves: "Surely, if millions of people could get the tire they wanted, they would BUY!" We could see volume production . . . resulting in unbelievably low prices—and savings for millions of car owners who wanted the safety, long wear, and dependability of a first quality tire, at a price that would permit them to replace not only one tire but all four tires.

So Firestone built the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. Then the wave of buying started—car owners from Coast to Coast bought—not just one or two tires — but complete sets!

Go to the nearest Firestone Service Store TODAY! See the new Firestone Century Progress Tire—just look at the broad, husky shoulders, massive flat tread, deep-cut non-skid and Gum-Dipped Cords. TUNNEY VISITS JUSTICE HEADS IN CAPITAL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Two distinguished Connecticut citizens—one noted for his prowess in the squared circle, the other for his ability in legal circles—conferred at the Department of Justice today.

They were former World Heavyweight Boxing Champion Gene Tunney, and Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

Although Tunney has evinced an interest in politics lately, he said his call was "purely personal" and was motivated by the desire to apologize for his failure to keep a golfing date with the cabinet officer three days ago.

Tunney said he was forced to pass up the links contest because of an injury to his hand suffered recently in an automobile accident.

The former champion also talked with William Stanley, assistant to the Attorney General, and J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice.

Man and Girl Leave Quarantined Ship In Small Boat

enforced companionship of the others of the party; sicker and tiredder of the heat and sloth and sameness of everything afloat and ashore; but sickness and tiredest of the enforced contacts with each other. Luxurious yachting cruises are apt to develop all this.

Sometime in the early hours Jerome was awakened by a disturbance alongside. The party returning, he thought, until there came a spatter of Spanish. He knew his Spanish but whether from drowsiness or the impurity and rapidity of the palaver he failed to get its gist. Shore boats bringing off some of the crew given liberty perhaps and disputing over the fare.

Then a low-pitched petulant voice through his sky-light fetched him up all standing. It was Linda talking to the quartermaster. He heard her say: "You've simply got to get me ashore."

"Can't be done, Miss. We're picketed. That's the police boat. Them spigotties wouldn't stop at firing on you."

"Gosh!" thought Jerome. "A revolution or something."

Yacht Quarantined

He slipped on a tropical dressing gown and went out and up the companionway. Linda similarly clad was on deck protesting with the quartermaster. As none of the others were in evidence, Jerome realized that she must have side-stepped the shore party as he himself had done, and no doubt for a similar reason.

He asked sharply: "What's up?"

Linda spun around. "What are you doing here?" And with a sort of wail that was totally unlike her, she flung out her arms. "This sinks me."

"What sinks you?"

"You."

He asked the Quartermaster: "What's it all about?"

The man said gloomily: "Quarantine, sir. The lad sent ashore has got yellow jack."

"Nonsense. That stuff has been all mopped up."

"Well, maybe it's typhus then. 'Calentura' somethin' or other was all I got from this police guy. Anyhow we're quarantined, sir."

"Who's aboard?"

"Hardly anybody. The skipper gave most of the crew liberty. Them ashore can't come back aboard, and them aboard can't go ashore."

Gold No Good

Jerome was too aghast to speak. His naval experience had taught him that on this coast about the only thing not amenable to bribery, corruption, argument, diplomatic influence or armed force was a quarantine in case of pest. He knew also that it might endure for days. Or if another suspicious case developed, for weeks. Revolutions were mere field sports in comparison and so were the minor peccadillos of gun running espionage and foreign punitive expeditions. Gold liberally and judiciously distributed might cope with any situation but a quarantine.

The full force of the catastrophe landed on his solar plexus when Linda whirled on him with a volley of such words as one might hear from an habitue of a stylish speakeasy but does not expect from the double cream of society.

The quartermaster was probably the worse shocked, though yacht sailors have few illusions. As if to give body and substance to this blast its first crash was illumined by a brilliant flare of lightning that described Linda's furious beauty in detail and its fag end was punctuated by a distant burst of thunder.

She stepped over to where Jerome stood and gripped him by the upper arm.

"You've got to get me out of this, you fool. I might stand being cooped up for a fortnight with yellow jack or typhus, or bubonic plague or cholera, or any noxious thing. But being cooped up with you—I can't bear it."

Police on Guard

"Well, same here," he assured her. "Count on me to do my little best."

"And it's got to be good. There's a spigotty police boat hanging on our tail. The Quartermaster says they'll shoot at us if we try to beat it."

"The quartermaster's only half right. They've got our numbers and if we landed they'd land on us. Throw us into a damn sight worse lazaretto than this."

"You said it, sir," the quarter master assured him gloomily. "Only for that I'd be on my way myself, swimmin' or anything, and take a chance with the sharks and barracuda. They got us all located and accounted for."

A sailor came aft. He said to the quartermaster, "Hey, Butterworth, Dim Collins has just been took bad with the gripes." His voice was shaky.

"Well, here we go," said the quartermaster. "Looks like the ship's all shot with plague."

"Haven't they detailed us a doctor?" Jerome asked.

"No, sir," said Butterworth disgustedly. "That's no skin off their necks. All they care about is their blasted town."

"I'll go see the man." Jerome started forward. "Maybe it's just funk."

This time Linda grabbed him by both arms. "Not till you get me ashore, hero."

"That won't get you nowhere, Linda, except in a worse spot."

"Well, then it's up to you to get me somewhere else."

"Where?"

"Anywhere, so long as it's away."

Seek Shelter

He asked contemptuously, "Where's your courage? Where a rabbit keeps it? In his hind legs?"

"You're the only pest I'd run from. I'm not afraid of any plague. If I have to stay cooped up with you indefinitely aboard this yacht its going to end in murder."

There came another brilliant flare. This time the thunder followed it more closely. The murk was thickening all about. They heard a jabbering of orders from the darkness close aboard.

"Them spiggoty harbor cops are going to beat it for the shore," said the quartermaster.

"Our chance." Linda gave Jerome's shoulder a shake. "You've been a naval officer and ought to know what to do. Get me ashore."

"Nobody's got yellow jack or typhus or any other pest. Those things are all washed up. This looks to me like a shakedown—one of those panned American tricks to wring a little easy money out of an American multi-millionaire."

"They wouldn't dare."

"Wouldn't they? It's their country and Tommy's diplomatic dirge is in the red."

"You're a grateful guest."

Jerome said savagely, "I told him not to bribe the port doctor to let us land. They've got that on him and it ties him up. It's all a frame. You'll see."

"I've told you I'm not afraid of mumps or measles. I'm sick of this ship and you. There's San Mateo not so far down the coast. And a nice little steamer runs from there to Jamaica."

Boat Gale-Proof

"Nothing doing. We're going to catch a thunder squall that's apt to last all night."

"Didn't I hear you tell Tommy that this stock-modelled fishing boat of yours which he bought and lugged along was practically gale-proof?"

"That's what I designed her for. But I didn't design it for you."

"Then if I'm the hindrance, get in your dinky boat and go yourself. So far I've stood being shipmates with you and I can weather out the plague. But I simply can't stand being exposed to you both."

"You'd be more exposed in my dinky boat."

"But not for so long. With your sail and your outboard we ought to be clear of this rotten country and in the next one before tomorrow evening."

Butterworth had been listening dejectedly. In the absence of the yacht's officers detained ashore, this ranking quartermaster was in command. He had admitted as much to the port police and been warned that he was to let nobody leave the vessel under dire penalties. Butterworth did not know what these might be and did not care. He hailed from Monhegan Island, Me., and had an independent soul. Also he knew all about small fishing and lobster boats.

He ventured now to say, "Want I should lower your boat away, sir, and throw some grub and water into her?"

Jerome was surprised. He had taken it for granted that Butterworth would oppose such a measure; refuse to permit it in fact as being officially responsible for the welfare of the yacht and her people. Another flare outlined the jagged spine that joins the continents. A growling detonation warned against jumping ship in a 20-foot combination of sea skiff and whale boat, for all her weatherly properties.

Jerome Angry

But Jerome was too angry for prudence. He knew also that thunder squalls coming down like this at night were mostly fireworks and torrential rain, often without any wind at all. He said to Linda:

"Go pack your sea-bag. Maybe the voyage will cure your distemper." To Butterworth, "Let's get her over then."

Jerome had quit the Navy for a partnership in a boat building yard where he was designer. As a novelty he had got out his handy fishing skiff to be carried aboard yachts on southern cruises.

With the boat overside Jerome went to his cabin and dressed, and threw a few things into a bag. He went up to find Linda waiting impatiently. The boat was well equipped. Jerome got a regional chart and tossed it into her. The thunder and lightning were now continuous, like a stage storm. The rain could not be far away.

"Let's go," Jerome said.

As they got aboard the trim little boat, Jerome felt that he had left all his peevishness aboard the yacht. He had always loved small boats and of recent years had grown to hate big ones. It struck him that he had been unjust in asking Linda where her courage might be. It could not be so far away for her to get into a fishing skiff at 2 o'clock in the morning, with thunder reverberating and a steady play of lightning, and she knew that they were to head straight out of the bay into the black void beyond.

There was a flash buoy to guide them out and after that Jerome must depend on a dory compass with a pea light binnacle. There was not yet a breath of wind. He did not dare start the motor lest it be heard between the thunder claps. He got out the oars.

Linda said: "This is apt to get you in trouble, quartermaster."

"I'm in that thing now up to the gills, Miss. Let it ride."

Leave in Small Boat

He expressed no anxiety about them. A Monhegan Islander used to shoving off in midwinter to haul lobster pots 10 miles off shore in a boat far less seaworthy and dependable was not wasting worry over a tropic jaunt like this.

As Jerome continued to row straight out Linda said sulkily: "Why not pull in to the landing and join our party?"

"This looks crazy to me. Pull in for the landing."

"We'd get collared before we got there. The lightning is too bright and constant. Besides it would be a dirty trick on Tommy."

"What would?"

"Making a getaway for the town. Breaking quarantine is the one thing money can't square down here. They'd libel the yacht. They might even throw us into a prison isolation ward. Then you'd have something real to kick and slam about, and it wouldn't do you any good."

"They couldn't do that."

"They can do anything they like with a quarantined plague suspect. It's over the consul, and over the Army and Navy and Marine Corps. Every country, large and small, has the international right to protect its people from pest."

A ruthless puff of cooler air struck them. "Here she comes. There's some wind in this one after all. Put on your slicker."

Vital Food Substances Supplied by Tomato

Vitamins and Mineral Salts Contained in Tomato Necessary to Health and Normal Growth and Development

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

It is only within recent years that the tomato has become so popular a vegetable as to be included in the daily menu. This popularity is well deserved, because it is a nourishing, wholesome and palatable food.

Few realize the endless number of ways in which this food may be used. Tomato-juice, made from fresh ripe tomatoes, is a delightful and refreshing beverage which is always available. It is included in the menu on trains, boats and even airplanes.

The canned tomato is as healthful as the fresh tomato and can be used with the same good effects. The canning of tomatoes is one of the largest industries in the United States. Rigidly supervised by Government officials, each can is labelled so that the purchaser may know what he is buying.

Many attractive and delectable dishes are made with the tomato. These may be served hot or cold. Baked, broiled, stewed and scalloped, tomatoes make an excellent and nourishing luncheon dish. As a salad, combined with other raw vegetables, it is a tempting summer food which is beneficial to every member of the family.

Vitamins and mineral salts are found in great abundance in the tomato. These substances are essential to normal growth and development.

A well-known food authority says: "One average tomato eaten daily will be sufficient protection for an adult. This quantity is amply provided by the popular tomato-juice cocktail. The juice of canned tomatoes is as effective as orange juice in providing vitamin C in the diet. It is an item of considerable importance to families of limited means and to institutions. For the care of children, since it is a generally accepted practice to give all artificially-fed babies some strained juice or tomato juice daily as a protection against scurvy and some other forms of malnutrition.

In addition to its valuable nutritive qualities, the tomato adds zest, flavor and color to a meal. It enhances the taste of other foods. It stimulates the appetite and thus aids the digestive juices in their work.

The tomato is in season all year round. If at any time you cannot purchase the fresh product, use the canned tomato—but do not omit this valuable food from your diet. It is inexpensive and has no waste.

Those of you who are fortunate in having a small garden would be wise to grow a few tomato plants. They are easily grown and require little care. This is definitely a health investment.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Engaged to Marry, She Now Loves Another

Engaged to a PERFECTLY GRAND fellow, and after having him for a STEADY for SIX YEARS, falls headlong into another's arms . . . That's Troubled's tale.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have gone steady for six years with a perfectly grand fellow, and sometime ago I promised to marry him. But now I have fallen headlong for someone else. I have known this second fellow for two years and go out with him without the first one knowing it. I admit I encouraged the second, but I was attracted to him. He never has declared himself, but he must like me for he always wants to be with me.

Miss Brunot

Due to this, I treat the first fellow coldly. Yet nothing seems to matter any more. I get all dressed up for the second fellow, but often never even wash my face for the first.

LIKE ONE OF FAMILY

He is like one of the family, and drops in when he pleases. I am sick of it. I can't bring myself to tell him, though, as he is all alone in the world. I can't see how he can't tell by my actions what I am feeling. I've encouraged him to go with other girls, but he doesn't take the hint.

Miss Brunot, how does a girl feel when she's really in love? I'm 25, and should know maybe.

TROUBLED.

HOW DOES ONE FEEL WHEN IN LOVE? That is a big question. People feel differently. Some want to possess the one loved, and are selfish and jealous and determined. Others are generous and humble. Some think all the time of their beloved, others are too strong-willed for this . . . Some put their love ahead of everything . . . Some are more cool and philosophical . . . Love can be likened to a madness, and again it can be the sublime test of sanity. . . . It is hard to define, because it is ephemeral, even at its best. . . .

If I were you, being your age, I'll tell the fellow I wasn't in love with him. It will be the kinder thing to do, after all. Even though he is alone in the world . . . If you aren't really interested in him, he is practically alone, anyway.

Of course the second fellow hasn't said he loved you . . . but it is wiser to take that risk, and let him have the whole ground . . . that will bring him to a declaration, no doubt.

TAKE HIM BACK

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 18. Have been going steady for a year and a half with a boy. It is silly to say I am so much in love at my age. But I am. Lately a few of his friends have been trying to interfere. They want him to date with other girls. One of his friends has tried to date with me. But I haven't done so. Should I?

He used the persuasion that I wasn't sure of the other fellow, anyway.

I hear my friend does date elsewhere, and we have separated. He wants to come back, but I don't think I should let him. He said he had learned he had made a great mistake in leaving me.

I am an orphan living with a married sister, but I can't get up the nerve to ask her advice. Oh, I have that boy on my mind so much. Perhaps I shouldn't. But I don't seem strong enough to ward him off. When we are angry, it almost makes me sick.

A CONSTANT BELIEVER.

I am so glad you have written to me, for I believe I can help you . . . The chums of the boy friend evidently decided to separate you . . . sometimes boys do this maliciously, and again just for thoughtless fun . . . Take the boy back, and tell him if he leaves again, you will be through with him . . . I really think he cares for you . . . and since you love him, why make yourself unhappy by merely being too proud to accept his apology.

Real love doesn't do that, anyway . . .

Don't make a date with the other fellow.

TALK WITH PARENTS

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 15 and have liked a boy a year older for 15 months, but against my mother's and father's will. He also cares a great deal for me. Mother and dad approve of him, but ask me not to see him, as they intend that I shall enter the business world, and they consider it impossible for me to do so and keep on with this boy friend.

He wants me to go to an entertainment with him. Shall I discuss the matter with my parents? I want to go very much, and would like them to understand the situation fully.

It is quite common for young people in my neighborhood to attend this entertainment.

I assure you I always want to be a lady. FAY.

By all means discuss the entertainment with your parents. They may see your side of the situation, and let you go.

It seems too bad, however, to give up the experience of the business world, and when you are so young . . . Fifteen is much too youthful for steady company, anyway, Fay.

GO TO PARTY

Dear Miss Brunot:

A fellow and I kept company for over two years, before we broke up. Whenever me meet now he gives me the nicest kind of a smile. His sister belongs to the same club I do, and every social we have, he is there. He asked to take me home from one of these, and I let him. We are holding a swimming party soon, and he stopped me the other day and asked me if I would be there. Shall I go with him, or not? ANXIOUS.

By all means, go to the swimming party with this fellow. He evidently wants to go with you again . . . and as I believe you still care for him, why not encourage him when you have so much opportunity to do so . . .

WHY ARE SO MANY PRETTY GIRLS ALONE, ASKS FAY KING

By FAY KING.

Never before have girls had so much freedom, and fashion as in these days.

Yet there seems to be something wrong. For never have we seen so many pretty girls going about alone when it seems they should be besieged by admiring young men.

How much of this beauty, personality, charm and poise we see wasted, and fading in the routine of some grimy office!

We may laugh now at the plain and dowdy looks and ways of girls of other days, but somehow those girls always had several admirers to choose from. They married and marriages lasted.

Today, it is true, some girls may marry two or three times, but getting husbands and holding husbands is a very different matter.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Four Grand Slam Bids

R. L. Purrington, of Winchester, Mass., remarked in submitting to me the hand below that it is very unusual to find a hand at Contract in which all four suits are bid to a Grand Slam, even though two of the Grand Slam bids are made with the purpose of taking a sacrifice. Mr. Purrington is to be complimented for his restraint in the form of his statement. Not only is the situation unusual, but within my experience actually unique. Moreover, the bidding, with the exception of great forwardness on the part of South, which might easily find justification under the all-inclusive term of "strategy," was quite logical—North and South's from an attacking viewpoint, East and West's from a defensive one.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A K Q 4 2 ♡ — ◇ A K 10 7 3 ♣ J 8 5
♠ 10 9 3 ♡ Q 7 4 3 ◇ J 4 ♣ A K Q 2	West North East South	♠ 5 ♡ A K 8 5 2 ◇ 5 ♣ 10 9 7 6 4 3
	♠ J 8 7 6 ♡ J 10 9 6 ◇ Q 9 8 6 2 ♣ —

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♡	2 ♠ (1)	3 ♣ (2)
3 ◇ (3)	4 ♣	5 ♣ (4)	5 ♡ (5)
6 ♡ (6)	7 ♣	7 ◇ (7)	Pass
Pass	7 ♡	Double	Pass
7 ♠ (8)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—In view of the four trumps and the void in clubs, South is justified in giving a free Raise.

2—As West has a splendid fit with East's suit, the bid of three clubs cannot be greatly criticized as of course the intention would be to return to hearts if doubled.

3—Of course, North shows the second biddable suit.

4—With splendid fits in both spades and diamonds, South decides to show the void in clubs. This is a distinct overbid, showing honor-tricks which South does not possess.

5—West is now convinced that North and South can make six spades or six diamonds. He is laying the groundwork for a sacrifice at seven clubs or seven hearts.

6—Showing no losers in hearts.

7—Another great overbid by South, but, fortunately for him, not costly.

8—North refuses to be deprived of what appears like a certain Grand Slam.

The hand is made without difficulty. In submitting the hand, Mr. Purrington remarked that on the very next hand he and his partner reached and made a Grand Slam, using the Four-Five Notrump Convention. However, on that hand their hapless opponents found nothing to say, and it was unnecessary even to play the cards.

TOMORROW'S HAND

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A J 9 2 ♡ 10 2 ◇ A 10 9 5 3 ♣ A 4
♠ K 10 6 4 ♡ 9 3 ◇ 8 7 ♣ Q J 10 8 5	West North East South	♠ 8 7 5 ♡ K 7 6 5 ◇ K Q 6 4 2 ♣ 6
	♠ Q 3 ♡ A Q J 8 4 ◇ J ♣ K 9 7 3 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Water in which rice has been boiled makes an excellent starch for cottons, muslins and lace.

Patent leather shoes take a brilliant and lasting polish if rubbed with a few drops of glycerine and a soft cloth.

An iron will keep hot quite a long time if covered with a tea cosy.

Water in which potatoes have been cooked is excellent for removing tea or coffee stains from linen.

Stains on carpets can often be removed by sprinkling liberally with rice flour.

An overheated oven can be reduced very quickly if a pan of cold water is placed on the bottom shelf.

Suede gloves or shoes can be cleaned by rubbing with a pad of flannel dipped in oatmeal.

A crushed raw potato applied to a burn will give instant relief and will, in most cases, prevent a scar.

Hugh Delays Return to Farmhouse

At Junior's plaintive request to be permitted to come and "see some of the fun," I saw Hugh's closed eyelids twitch and the corners of his mouth quirk into the faintest of smiles.

Overjoyed by this mute evidence not only that he was conscious, but that he was strong enough to appreciate the absurdity of Junior's request in face of the dramatic—almost tragic — experience through which we were passing, I turned my face towards the underbrush back of me, and gave the small boys the permission they craved.

"Of course," I said. "Come here, beside me. But you mustn't ask any questions until we get out of here. Uncle Hugh has been hurt, and you must not disturb him."

But their curiosity and their real concern were not proof against that news, for they are both exceedingly fond of Hugh, and when they burst from the copse a second later the two round little faces wore expressions of startled concern.

They curled themselves obediently into the leaves at the foot of a tree, and thenceforth looked out at the scene with the gravity of first-nighters.

HANK CONSIDERATE

They had not long to wait for the next act. It was but a few minutes before we heard a rustling in the underbrush, and the next instant the bushes parted and Hank stole in.

"It's a five-seater, that car," he said, "and it's right down near the opening. It won't be hard to carry Uncle Hugh over there, and there'll be room for the little kids, too. I guess you won't want to let anybody else take them."

Careless, happy-go-lucky Hank has learned much consideration for others in his first year at preparatory school, and I was much gratified at the thoughtfulness of me which his last wards showed. But Hugh struck in summarily.

"I will not be carried to the car," he said. "I can walk perfectly well."

"Shucks, Maj. Grantland," Jim said anxiously, "Tain't no trouble for us to carry you."

"That isn't the question," Hugh said stubbornly. And across his recumbent head I shook my head at Jim, and put my finger on my lips in a signaling mandate for silence.

"Someone must get word to Katie before we go," I said, "and tell her to drive home by herself."

"Shall I go?" Jim asked quickly, and I guessed that he was vaguely uneasy about his redoubtable wife, whom we had left with our car by the roadside.

"I'm sorry, Jim," I told him, "but Hank can go so much more quickly. And besides, I need you more here."

"Sure thing," he answered loyally. "It's all right by me."

The situation was too much for Junior, however, and his voice rose in eager query.

"Couldn't me and Rod go, Mums? We kin run faster than Hank can, I'll bet, and then" —with subtle flattery to Hank— "you need him more here. He's bigger. Couldn't we, Mums?"

Even in the stress of the moment I found my lips twitching over the eternal wonderment of all who know the careful training which Junior and Roderick have had, as to where they get their atrocious crimes against the king's English. But I naturally made no comment upon their slips.

NEEDED BY MADGE

"I'm sorry," I said gently, for their little faces were pathetically eager, "but I can't let you go any more than I can Jim. I may have to have you help me here at any minute. So be good boys and don't ask me anything more.

"Hank, please start at once," I went on. "Ask Kate to drive home at once and have Mrs. Underwood prepare an emergency bed for Maj. Grantland, who has been injured. Tell her not to alarm your grandmother. Then you go over to The Larches and get Mr. Veritzen, his chauffeur. Ronald and Bob. Tell them to be ready to come back here as soon as we get home. Then you come back here."

Hank sped away and I stooped over Hugh, reluctantly, but I know there was no other way to get him to submit to the very necessary process of carrying him to the car.

"Hugh," I said softly, "will you do something for me?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Modern Treatment for Disturbances of Liver

When I was a medical student cases of cirrhosis of the liver were frequently encountered in hospital wards. Today, this condition is not commonly seen, although it is still to be found in large institutions.

Dr. Copeland

Cirrhosis of the liver, like other disturbances of this important gland of the body, is now more thoroughly understood than in former years. Great strides have been made by the medical profession in the early recognition and treatment of all disorders of the liver. Special tests and diagnostic methods, unheard of 25 years ago, are now available to the doctor.

The liver is one of the largest organs in the body. It is located in the abdomen, on the right side, just below the diaphragm. We cannot live without this important structure and once it becomes diseased serious changes occur.

In cirrhosis the liver becomes firm and hard. It is unable to perform the work which is so essential to good health. Its most important function is to aid in the absorption of fats and in the manufacture of red blood corpuscles. It will be seen that any alteration in the mechanism of this organ will result in trouble.

For many years cirrhosis of the liver was believed to have one cause, the consumption of large quantities of alcohol. This was the opinion because cirrhosis was rarely seen in individuals who abstained from alcoholic beverages. Today, we know that although alcohol is an important factor in producing cirrhosis, other causes, such as infection and certain physical defects, may lead to this serious disorder.

There can be no question of the importance of the liver in maintaining health. Through this vital organ all the blood of the body travels continuously. The blood, which absorbs most of the food we eat, is carried to the liver. There certain substances are filtered and the waste products removed.

Persons who are susceptible to liver disturbances should avoid irritating foods, such as spices, salts, peppers, condiments and fried substances. Above all, alcoholic beverages should be avoided. Where possible, all centers of infection within the body should be removed.

Bear in mind that the liver, like other structures, may be involved in diseases such as cancer, tuberculosis and other serious infections. Early recognition of this menace to health is imperative for speedy cure.

Answers to Health Queries

G. E. O. Q.—Would a sharp, piercing pain in the vicinity of the heart necessarily indicate a heart condition or would the sypmtom be due to indigistion? This often occurs after eating.

A.—It may be due to indigestion, but it would be well to have the heart examined to make sure that it is perfectly normal. Indigestion frequently aggravates a heart condition. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stampel envelope and repeat your question.

Miss S. L. Q.—I have always been underweight. Would I gain more readily if I were to cut down on cigarets?

A.—If you smoke excessively, this may be one reason why you don't gain weight. You should eat a well balanced diet. Be out in the fresh air and sunshine as much as possible. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Flower Girl

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My very young daughter has been asked to be a flower girl at a friend's wedding. The bride-elect wishes to pay for her outfit. Is it proper for me to accept, or should I defray this expense myself?

2—Where is the proper place for a flower girl and ring bearer in the processional and on leaving the church?

Does the ring bearer remain standing with the bridal party during the marriage ceremony? D.

1—This is an unusual offer, and a very generous one, for the bride-to-be to make to you, and since she has made it, it is quite proper for you to accept it. It is the custom, generally, for each attendant of the bride to pay for her own costume, even though it is the bride herself who outlines what that costume is to be. And so usually you would be expected to buy your little daughter's costume. But the bride-to-be wouldn't make this kind suggestion if she didn't mean it, and so it would be gracious for you to accept.

2—In the processional, the flower girl walks after the maid of honor and before the bride on the arm of her father. In the recessional the flower girl walks after the bride and groom, and before the maid of honor.

It is not accepted as good custom to have a ring-bearer at a wedding. It is provincial, and usually a funny note rather than a picturesque or pictorial one. If the bride insists on having a ring-bearer, he might walk in front of the flower girl, or after them. And after the ring part of the ceremony, he would go or be taken to the pew in which his parents are seated, probably in the pew behind that in which the bride's mother is seated. He would not take part in the recessional.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When the neck has become discolored, try the tincture of benzoin rinse. Get the simple tincture, not the compound. After the facial rubbing, put two or three drops of tincture of benzoin in a cup of water; apply to the neck with a bit of gauze or cotton. It helps to fluff off yellery skin scales that are almost ready to pass along elsewhere.

It's a good idea to be a bath salts faddist. Or if you don't like to sit on those little perfumed pellobiles, use tablets. They not only scent the bath, but soften the water, make the scouring thorough and effective.

Some women regard drab hair as an affliction. They should not. If the tresses is silky, abundant and glittering if it is nicely dressed, the color won't matter very much.

A bit of gold can be put on the halo by using the lemon rinse after each shampoo. Take one quart of water, add the juice of three lemons and a pinch of salts of tartar. Duck the head into the bowl, rinse with clear water, dry quickly.

An excellent treatment for refining pores that have become enlarged and for irge sebaceous glands to stop spouting oil is the white of egg face pack. Beat the egg well, add the juice of half a lemon, spread over the face and neck with a silver table knife.

In 10 or 15 minutes remove the mask with tepid water, rinse the face with ice cold water, dry, lave with witch hazel.

NOW—AT NEW LOW PRICES

Hellmann's Mayonnaise now at the lowest price in history . . . only a trifle more than substitutes!

Of course, it's the same high quality Hellmann's . . . made of the same choice real mayonnaise ingredients—fresh 24-hour salad oil, selected eggs, choice vinegar and spices.

So why should any woman accept substitutes—now that the finest real mayonnaise costs so little!

How Rich Men View Money

By B. C. FORBES

THE TWO reputedly richest men in America, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Henry Ford, hold starkly different views on the wise use of money.

Mr. Forbes

The younger Rockefeller (60), who received the parental fortune years ago, consecrates most of all his waking hours to problems of giving.

Mr. Henry Ford, on the other hand, says bluntly:

"I don't believe in trying to help people by giving them money. Every penny given should be red hot—so that it would burn both the one giving it and the one receiving it. I am an ardent believer that the Lord helps those who help themselves."

Mr. Ford's theory is that money can do most good by developing job-giving industries.

ROCKEFELLER, the second, is one of the most serious-minded men in the whole world. Wealth, to him, is a terrifically heavy burden, almost crushing responsibility; indeed, the strain has been so severe that his health in recent years has occasioned uneasiness among his family and friends.

Mr. Rockefeller told me:

"I am constantly concerned. I might venture to say worried about how far short I may be falling of rendering the maximum service possible with the opportunities that have come to me. Every day, every night I ask myself what I may be leaving undone which I ought to do. I never for a moment regard our family's resources as merely a personal possession to be used or misused without accountability to anyone or to my maker.

"My father regarded himself and has taught me to regard myself as nothing more than a steward of the possessions that have come to us, and that it is incumbent upon us to give the best that is in us to the daily exercise of this stewardship.

"Many people do not understand the theory upon which our philanthropies are conducted. If one were to devote even a large fortune to making unlimited gifts for small purposes, the fortune would soon be dissipated and great results would not be achieved. our conception has been that we should devote our funds to relatively few, carefully considered, large projects along certain well-defined lines.

"For instance, the Rockefeller Foundation has centered its interest chiefly upon public health. The effort of the General Education Board has been to promote education. Our endeavor has been not so much to relieve poverty, but to prevent poverty through making it possible for the largest possible number of people to live in healthy surroundings and to obtain educational opportunities fitting them to earn their own livelihood."

SELLING WAVE ENGULFS STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP.)—Without any important news to account for it, the stock market suffered a brief but rather pronounced relapse today and leading issues dropped fractions to 3 points.

The selling flurry, which came the second hour, was of sufficient speed and volume to put the ticker tape a little behind for transactions for the first time in several weeks. The rush lasted about 10 minutes and then it again resumed its moping movement of recent sessions. There were a few moderate rallies, but these were not impressive.

Weakness of Winnipeg and Northwestern grains caused a break of a cent or more a bushel. Chicago wheat, and this, observers said, may have encouraged a renewal of professional operations for the decline in stocks. Corn, oats and rye showed resistance and the cereals recorded some recoveries later. Cotton lost more than $1 a bale. Rubber eased and silver did virtually nothing. Bonds were dull and slightly mixed. International dollar rates were a trifle better.

Despite the general softness of shares, Gillette and American Sumatra Tobacco edged into new high territory for the year. At the same time, however, United Aircraft, Aviation Corporation, Chenley, National Distillers and New Haven preferred established new 1934 lows. The metals, apparently reflecting the feeling that drastic inflation is not due for at least some time, if at all, were again the leaders of the downturn.

Some of the selling in Corn products was attributed to publication of the company's second quarter statement which disclosed a drop in profits from the preceding quarter and a rather sharp reduction from the corresponding period of last year.

Most brokers, while inclined to be a trifle bearish, said that heaviness of individual stocks was largely due to liquidation for private account. Spasmodic occurrences of this sort, it was thought, might be expected over the next several weeks because of the reaction of corporation officials and other individuals, who are large holders of securities, to the stipulations of the Federal Exchange Control Bill.

Although some disappointment was expressed because the equities market did not respond to the collapse of the West Coast general strike, it was recalled that the financial district all along did not believe the administration would permit the situation there to get out of hand.

Rumors, most of which have already been denied in dispatches from Berlin, continued to circulate around the commission houses regarding fresh disturbances in Germany.

WHEAT SPURTS ON CROP LOSS

CHICAGO, July 20.—Decided new upturns of grain values early today went hand in hand with blistering heat and with increasing crop losses both of wheat and corn. The Liverpool wheat market was stronger than expected, with Rotterdam and Buenos Aires sharply higher.

Opening 7/8-1 5/8 up, September new 1.02-1.02½, Chicago wheat later held near the initial range. Corn started at ½-1 3/8 advance, and subsequently altered little.

P. R. R. Head Denies Pact With Central

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—(INS.)—Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, today denied any knowledge of a report that his company and the New York Central Railroad have accepted in principal a plan for grouping New England railroads into two systems.

The report stated the two proposed systems would be co-ordinated, with the Pennsylvania group taking in New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Boston and Maine, while the New York Central interests would include the Boston and Albany, Bangor and Aroostook and Maine Central.

POOR BASE-RUNNING PROVES DISASTROUS TO BUCS

SPORTS COMMENT BY HARRY KECK

Fans' Impatience.
Does It Pay?
Owners Back Johnson.
DiMeolo Plans Change.
Will Open Offense.
Tigers' History.

Your average baseball fan is a strange animal. He feels a sort of proprietary interest in his home team which is matched only by the college alumnus who wants to tell his alma mater who shall play and how on the football team.

Walter Johnson

Just how much heed should be paid his demands is a question. The club owner listens to him because he pays the freight, and yet sometimes he is unfair to himself in so doing.

The late Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates, was one of the old school magnates who believed in running his own business without outside help, and he was successful in having few second-division teams and made a lot of money. At times his policies were not popular, but when he passed on no one would question his sagacity as a purveyor of public entertainment.

This subject is brought up by the plight of our present Pirates. George Gibson started off the season as manager, after having finished in second place each of the last two seasons. It was not long before the fans, demanding nothing short of a pennant, were on him with both feet, blaming him personally for the shortcomings of the team as a whole. Finally came the Sunday afternoon when they booed him in chorus, and a few days later he stepped down as manager to be succeeded by Pie Traynor. The fans were appeased and got behind Traynor to a man and for a time there was a noticeable improvement in the spirit of the team, but on the present eastern trip it has done no better than it did under Gibson, and again there are murmurings of discontent.

The fans got what they wanted and they are not satisfied.

Results have proved that the failure of the club to win consistently was not entirely Manager Gibson's fault. The manager cannot play all positions and guarantee victories. If the players do not have what it takes all of the managers in the world cannot make them win.

Cleveland faced a situation similar to Pittsburgh's, prior to the departure of Gibson to a summer of peace and quiet, until the board of directors of the Indians yesterday gave Walter Johnson a vote of confidence by tendering him a contract for 1935. The Cleveland fans and sports writers were "on" Walter and wanted him removed in favor of Babe Ruth or someone else—anybody but Johnson.

Suppose Johnson had been decapitated. Is there any guarantee that any other manager could do better?

Only one team can win the pennant in each league in any given season. But the fans in all of the cities want their team to be the winner. Perhaps, in the light of developments, the local fans will not be so insistent on changes in the future, forcing the management to make switches at their slightest whim. Gibson's record here was a good one. Finishing second two successive years is a mark worthy of deep consideration. Following in his footsteps, Traynor is in a tough spot, and it will become steadily tougher if the fans do not concede him the patience to which he is entitled.

PUNT FORMATION FOR LOCAL PROS

Announcement that Paul Moss, the Purdue All-America end, will not be back with the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National Professional League this fall recalls the remarks attributed to Moss after he played his first pro game here last fall. He had been All-America in college two years in a row and was highly touted. After his first brush with the pros, he is said to have observed that he learned more about end play in that battle than in his entire college career. Paul is a tall, slightly built player, hardly the type to take the hard bumps of the pro league game.

Mention of the pros brings up the item that Luby DiMeolo, the new coach, former Pitt captain and line star, later assistant to Chick Meehan at New York University, plans to alter the attack of the locals this year. He is going to get away from the double wing back formation and use a semi-punt or wide open lineup of his backs. The double wing back system calls for deception and the single wing for power. It has been more or less established that trick plays don't get very far among the pros, who know the answers.

College teams seldom go in for open plays, because the coaches do not want to take chances and generally play safe. However, the pros are seasoned players and expert in handling the ball and are willing to gamble. The Chicago Bears, National champions, for instance, last season worked a play on which the quarterback took the ball from the center, tossed a lateral to the right end, who threw it across to the left end, who had been loafing. Pulled inside the 20-yard line, it was a touchdown play.

Our Pirates may be expected to go in heavily for kicking and passing this year.

VIGNETTES OF SPORT

Gene Hasson, 18, of Connellsville, is playing first base for an independent team in Philadelphia, which serves as a farm for the Philadelphia Athletics, with whom Hasson tried out this spring, flivvering south and attaching himself to the camp . . . Jim Long, now in the second week of his vacation at Atlantic City, postcards back that the surf is all wet.

If the Detroit Tigers win the pennant this year it will be their first success in 25 years, or since they lost to the Pirates in the World Series of 1909, with a portion of the games being played at the then new Forbes Field . . . The Tigers have won three pennants all told, in 1907-08-09, when the late Hughey Jennings was manager . . . At this stage in those years they were in third place, seven games behind Chicago, in 1907; first by one game in 1908 and first by three games in 1909 . . . Now, under the inspired leadership of Mickey Cochrane, they're out in front and going strong.

In 1909, the Detroit club played one of the most memorable games on record, an 18-inning scoreless tie with Washington, which was called on account of darkness . . . Eddie Summers pitched the entire game for Detroit and Dolly Gray and Bob Groom worked for the Senators . . . That was in the days of many tight pitching duels, sans the rabbit ball, and Detroit got only six hits and Washington seven.

Bunny Buntach, local manager of boxers, has gone to New York and Atlantic City on a trip combining business and pleasure . . . While in the East he will try to close some negotiations for bouts for Mike Barto, his knockout-hitting lightweight.

SENIOR TEAMS CLASH TODAY IN TOURNEY

By PHIL GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

Senior division teams hold the spotlight today in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament.

Max Rosenberg

Max Rosenberg, manager of the undefeated Commercial Garage team, leads his crew against the Snubs A. C. at Washington Park in a Bracket V game of the senior class. The Commercials have scored 69 runs in four games. A victory virtually will clinch the bracket championship.

Hooks Jordan, who has been on the sideline for some time while Irving Brenner did the bulk of the pitching in the softball tournament, will probably be Max Rosenberg's choice to pitch.

In another Bracket V contest, the Fort Black Community Club will clash with the Elwyn A. C. in a battle for a playoff berth. Both teams have suffered one defeat and that at the hands of the Commercials. Pitcher John (Zip) Zywan will endeavor to get the Elwyns into the second-round eliminations when he takes the mound against Fort Black.

If the Weise Newsies defeat the Staabs, of Elliott, today, in their Bracket VII contest of the senior division they will ruin the latter's chances of getting into the second round. The Staabs have been beaten once, while the Newsies have chalked up five straight. The game will be played on the Wabash Park Field, Bridgeville.

Claus J. Olfe and Bob Thomson are scheduled to pitch for the Koppers Coal and American Fruit Growers teams in the feature contest of Bracket I of the senior class on the Schenley Oval No. 2 Field. A victory for the Koppers will still keep them in the running for a playoff berth.

The F. J. Broads will play the Hurlbuts in a Bracket VI game of the senior class. The Broads still maintain a clean slate in tourney play. They won four straight games.

SOFTBALL SLANTS

John Heber, manager of the Overbrook Independents, is requested to call this office as soon as possible.

The Harris Reds meet the Sportsmen's Club, of Pittsburgh, on the Quarry Field in an exhibition game this evening. Teams wishing to book the Reds for games can do so by calling Manager Clyde Confer at Grant 7300.

Manager William Knefler's Staabs have won the first half championship of the Elliott Mushball League for the fifth straight time. The Staabs are playing in Bracket VII of the senior division in the Sun-Telegraph softball tournament.

Anthony Oskin who pitched a 1-1 tie against Al Anderson last Tuesday, run his string of scoreless innings up to 35 before the Hunzekers scored a run on him in the seventh inning. It was Carey Winckler's home run that tied the score for the Campbell Box Lunch team. Oskin is the star hurler on the Campbell team.

A large crowd is expected to view the S. A. O'Toole Club-Campbell Box Lunch game next week. Both teams are still undefeated in Bracket III of the senior class.

Vines Flays U. S. Lawn Tennis Association

'Narrow Minded and Dictatorial' Attitude Attacked By Former National Champion, Now Professional

PASADENA, Cal., July 20.—In a blistering attack on the United States Lawn Tennis Association today, Ellsworth Vines, internationally-known tennis player, now resting at Pasadena before his next engagements, scored the body as "probably the most narrow-minded and dictatorial" in sports.

Commenting upon an article by Damon Runyon, Universal Service reporter and sports columnist, explaining that Elizabeth Ryan had been kept off the American Wightman Cup tennis squad because of her residence in England, although she is American-born, Vines said:

"Every word of that is true. Bunny Ryan is no more an Englishwoman than I am an Englishman. There never has been any reason why she should not play on American tennis teams, regardless of where she lived. The fact that she left the United States, later returned and was allowed to play on one Wightman Cup team, shows the inconsistency of the association. In England Bunny never has been considered anything but an American.

"Nothing is more dictatorial than the U. S. L. T. A. I ought to know. When I was an amateur, they treated me as they do all the others — pushed me around from one part of the country to another, driving, always driving, with new tournaments ahead, for their own ends. They ruled me to suit themselves, as they do every other amateur in the country who is of tournament caliber."

HITS AMATEUR RULE

Vines was bitter in his comments on the rules of the association relative to working players. He said:

"To show the hide-bound attitude of the body, one has only to look at the rulings regarding what a player can or can't do to make a living while playing tennis. The things that a player is qualified to do he is not allowed to do under their amateur rules. For instance, many of our greatest players, now and in the past, have been qualified to earn an honest living during the season writing up the matches for the papers, magazines and other publications. We are not allowed to do so, although why it hurts amateur standing I never have been able to find out. Most of the topnotchers have turned down good offers as salesmen in sporting goods stores and such similar work because of the rules.

"Over in England, there are no such foolish restrictions on what a player can do. Many of their great players over there cover the same tournament in which they are playing.

"But in this man's country, tennis is a game for the rich—for society. Men and women who have to earn a living are frowned upon. One must devote his time as the association dictates, whether he earns a living or not.

'RULED BY NEW YORK'

"Tennis in this country is dominated from New York by certain powerful clubs and the social fringe. In the choosing of the officials New York has more than 10 times the weight of California in saying who they shall be. The result is that when teams are chosen a lot of pressure is brought to bear, favorites are picked and players who are deserving but have to look to the game for support are slighted.

"Runyon is so right that there just isn't any argument about the truth of his assertions."

When asked why he did not wait another year before joining Tilden in the professional game, Vines said:

"I had to make a living. Time slips rapidly by, especially for an athlete, great as he still is, Tilden will not forever be an attraction. I felt that I had better capitalize an my tennis under him while I could."

Vines and his wife are resting in Pasadena before he starts again with the Tilden troupe.

Buddy Overend Kicks In With Hole In 1

Of course, no one will believe it until Buddy gets back and tells about it in person, but word from Sherwood Forest, Anne Arundel County, Md., reports a hole in 1 golf shot by Clarence (Buddy) Overend, graduate athletic manager of Carnegie Tech, in a fivesome on Wednesday.

Overend, who has been playing golf since 1916, never did that before. The No. 3 hole, where the feat was achieved, is 183 yards long. Overend's good drive hit about 2 feet from the pin and hopped into the cup.

Playing with Buddy were Hayden Gentry, of Pittsburgh; R. F. Tull, of Philadelphia; Percy H. Moore, of Cleveland, and J. Carter Walker, of Woodbury, Va., all of whom will furnish affidavits, if necessary.

YAROSZ BOXES IN BENEFIT

Teddy Yarosz, Pittsburgh's middleweight challenger, will box three exhibition rounds each with General Burrows and Marty Gornick, his sparring partners, as an added attraction of the amateur boxing show to be held at Hickey Park, Millvale, tonight, by the Joseph Conrad Club to raise funds to complete the Polish room in the Cathedral of Learning.

A younger brother of Teddy, Vic Yarosz, meets Billy Miller in one of the regular bouts. The complete program:

118-pound class—Felix Cascista, Pittsburgh Lyceum, vs. Gene Gibbons, Burke A. C.

126-pound class—Billy Miller, Pittsburgh Boys' Club, vs. Vic Yarosz, Monaca A. C.

135-pound class—Frank Rickard, St. John's Lyceum, vs. Jackie Walls, Frawley A. C.; Leo Sweeney, Pittsburgh Boys' Club, vs. Tip Davis, West Newton.

147-pound class—Jack Pulley, Pittsburgh Lyceum, vs. Jimmy Steffan, South Heights A. C.; Whitey Schramm, Pittsburgh Lyceum, vs. George Lasko, Burke A. C.; Steve Walters, Pittsburgh Boys' Club, vs. Jimmy Jones, unattached.

Dr. Thad Starzynski and Dr. J. T. Karabasz are in charge of the show, which has had a good advance sale of tickets and promises to be one of the most succesful amateur shows of the season.

MILLERS BEAT ALL-STARS

MINNEAPOLIS, July 20.—(AP.)—A bombardment of base hits in the final innings, including Joe Hauser's second home run of the game, gave Minneapolis a 13-to-6 victory over the American Association All-Stars in a benefit game before 7,435 frenzied fans. The game was the first of this nature sponsored by the league.

Dog Race Case Goes to Court

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 20.—Judge Erskine Maiden, Jr., yesterday ordered briefs submitted in Mahoning County Prosecutor J. H. Leighninger's petition to dissolve the injunction restraining him and county and Canfield village authorities from interfering with dog races being held by the Canfield Kennel Club.

At a hearing on the prosecutor's petition, Attorney Harold Hull, representing the kennel club, admitted that the club had not applied for a state permit to operate, nor had it paid the state any tax on the bets laid at the parimutuel booths.

Bucknell Alumni To Meet New Coach

The Pittsburgh members of the Bucknell University Alumni Association will meet Hooks Mylin, Bucknell's new football coach, at the Alcoma Country Club today, and also get in a bit of golf.

The Western Pennsylvania Alumni Association of the university is staging its annual tournament and, at the same time, will introduce the new grid coach, who succeeds Carl Snavley, to the old grads.

PIRATES BOW TO DODGERS, 4 TO 2

NEW YORK, July 20.—Forced into an unwilling day of idleness so that another of those commercialized doubleheaders could be staged, the unhappy Pirates today were anything but good company as they moped around Broadway and its immediate environs.

The date originally called for a game between the Buccos and the Dodgers, but the Brooklyn officials figured it would mean a better financial return if the game were shoved back to Sunday, and this was done.

The Pirates ran afoul of one of these trick dual bills in Boston Wednesday and after they had been trimmed in both ends of the bargain attraction they were well convinced that the stunt was no good for any club that expected to get anywhere in the flag race.

FREY'S HOMER WINS

The unfortunate Traynor Clan ran into more misfortune as it moved into the Flatbush yesterday. The Pirates swapped punches with the Dodgers in an admirable manner through eight and two-thirds innings. Just as the fans were getting fixed for an extra-inning encounter, little Linus Frey, Dodger shortstop, drove a homer over the right field wall to unlock a tie and give his team a 4-to-2 triumph.

Bill Swift was the worst victim of the home-run clout. Bill held his own with two Brooklyn pitchers and if his mates had not run the sacks like drunken sailors in the fourth inning, he might have carried on to victory. P. Waner, Lindstrom and Vaughan made hits in succession, but Paul and Lindy were nicked as they tried to take extra bases.

Swift drove in both of the Pirates' runs in the fifth with a single. The Dodgers scored single tallies in the fourth and fifth, there being no further runmaking on either side until Frey unleashed his two-out blow in the ninth. Ralph Boyle was on first when the four-sacker was struck. Zachary and Leonard pitched for the Dodgers.

SEVENTH DEFEAT

The Pittsburgh defeat added the seventh setback in 10 games played on the trip and the only thing that kept them from dropping into the second division was the fact that the Cardinals trimmed the Braves.

The Buccos and Dodgers will stage a single game at Ebbets Field tomorrow.

Bullion, Former Sports Writer, Dies

DETROIT, July 20.—(AP.)—Harry C. Bullion, former sports editor of the Detroit Free Press for many years, died suddenly last night at his home in Riverside, Ont. He was 52 years old.

Bullion was at one time a member of the rules committee of the Baseball Writers' Association. He left the newspaper business two years ago and joined an advertising agency, and a year ago joined a brokerage firm in Detroit. He is survived by his widow, Clara Bullion.

PARKS AND MACFARLANE SHARE LEAD IN STATE OPEN

AL ESPINOSA FALTERS AT OAKMONT

By TOM BIRKS

With Al Espinosa, the Akron ace, slipping badly at the end of 54 holes, Sam Parks, Jr., of the South Hills Country Club, and Willie MacFarlane, former National Open champion, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., forged into the leadership of the Pennsylvania State Open championship at the Oakmont Country Club today, Parks and MacFarlane finishing with a total of 222 for the 54 holes of play.

ESPINOSA HAS 224

With Parks, MacFarlane and Espinosa playing together, the gallery had a real thrill. Parks finished with a 76, MacFarlane with a 77, and Espinosa with an 80, to give the Akron pro a total of 224.

Espinosa was leading at the end of the 36-hole mark last night found plenty of trouble on the morning round, and when he reached the turn he had dropped three strokes to par. He failed again on the second nine, when he ran into all kinds of trouble to take another 40. Parks was playing steadily. He was out in 39, two above regulation figures, and came home in 37, also two strokes over par.

MACFARLANE TAKES 77

Macfarlane had a 38 on the outgoing nine and 39 strokes coming back.

Bobby Cruickshank failed to fare any better. The Wee Scot found the heavy fairways and he was off his regular game.

His 81 gave him a total of 231, which appears to have taken him out of the race. Bobby found trouble with his irons, and the traps which he carefully avoided on the first day, wrecked his score.

The local contingent played itself very much into the tournament when Perry Del Vecchio flashed home with a 73, giving him a total of 224, two strokes behind the leaders, and then Wild Bill Melhorn showed some of the wonderful golf which carried him to national fame when he completed the round with a 72, to give him a total of 225.

The cards and scores for 18 holes today:

Bill Melhorn's card:

In	544	435	343—37—75

Perry Del Vecchio's card:

Believe It Or Not By Ripley

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: PARLIAMENT—The British Parliament, which has an unexcelled record of continuous legislation for the last 600 years, is probably the most venerable institution extant. It consists of the King, the House of Lords and the House of Commons. But the King does not take part in or attend the deliberations of either House. Ever since Charles I entered the House with an armed rentinue to arrest five members on January 4, 1642, no King of England has been seen within the House of Commons. Charles I lost his head as a result of this violation. AT THE ODDITORIUM—Another real "Believe It or Not" that you can see daily in the "Odditorium" at the Century of Progress is Paul McWilliams, who puts four golf balls in his mouth at the same time—two in his cheeks and two more on top of his tongue—and closes his mouth. McWilliams also gives an interesting demonstration of "throat music" when he plays tunes by tapping his windpipe with wooden spoons.

TOMORROW: THE SNAKE TREE.

ZIVIC REPEATS KNOCKOUT OF COSTA

By HARRY KEUCK

Joey Costa, New York lightweight boxer, now knows the high costa trying to beat Eddie Zivic, of Lawrenceville. He knows it doesn't pay at any price, for, last night, in the opening professional show of the season at Greenlee Field, he suffered his second knockout within three weeks at the fists of Zivic.

This time it was a full-fledged knockout for the count of 10, with Joey stretched on his back. When they met before Costa, lost by a technical knockout when the referee stopped the bout with 25 seconds to go in the tenth round, after Costa had taken two counts of nine in the third round and two more in the tenth and then collapsed, and still had a margin on points right up to the finish, having won all of the other rounds.

COSTA OFF IN LEAD

Last night's bout, before the largest crowd of the outdoor season here so far, started off in the same manner as the first clash between the pair, with Zivic slow to warm up to his work and finding himself jabbed all around the ring by his opponent, who packs one of the stiffest jabs in the business.

The tide again turned in the third, in which Zivic began to lead with his right and nailed Costa and slowed him down perceptibly. In the fourth, he battered Costa around mostly and wound up by flooring him along the ropes for a count of two as the bell rang. In the fifth, he cut Costa's right ear badly, and then Costa gave him a close fight of it for the next three rounds, but showed signs of tiring going into what was fated to be the final round. Zivic cut loose with a barrage of punches after the first minute of this frame and finally dropped his man cleanly with a right to the jaw. Costa was just barely able to lift his head at the count of 10 and had to be carried to his corner.

It was a good win for Zivic, who showed general improvement over his form in his first bout with Costa, shortly after his return from California. Costa is highly regarded in the East and the two knockouts should win Zivic a lot of attention there. Eddie scaled 133½ pounds and Costa 131 last night.

WILSON GETS DECISION

Mose Butch, of the Hill, outfought Jackie Wilson, Negro featherweight, of Homewood, just returned from New York, in the 10-round semi-final, put on after the main bout, but the judges disagreed. But Smith voting for a draw and Karl Krohn for Wilson, and Referee Joe Orsini also cast his ballot for Wilson.

Jackie did a lot of running and enough holding to lose a couple of fights, and showed to advantage only in the third and the last two rounds. He cut Butch's left eye in the ninth. It was a messy fight, tame in comparison with the windup.

Al Quaill, of Brookline, received the judges' decision over General Burrows, of Aliquippa, in the main five-rounder, although Burrows appeared to have more than made up for a no-count knockdown in the first round. He outscored Quaill in most of the sessions. The referee's vote on this bout was a draw.

ELEY STARS IN PRO DEBUT

Bill Eley, of New Salem, Negro lightweight star of the amateur ranks, showed a lot of promise in knocking out Paddy Gray, of Greensburg, in the fourth round of the second bout, and Dandy Allen, of the Hill, received a split decision over Sammy Paris, of the Hill, in a substitute opening bout. Gray substituted for Harry Krause, who has a bad side, and Allen and Paris took the place of a Casey Rhodes-Frankie Martin battle.

Petey Hayes, of New York, recent victor over Kid Chocolate, was introduced before the main bout. He stopped off here on his way home from Chicago, where he lost to Leo Rodak Wednesday night on the same card on which Teddy Yarosz defeated Tait Littman.

Al Grayber and Joe Orsini alternated as referees.

GRIDDER DROWNED

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 20.—(AP.)—Edgar Bonsel Price, 18, a high school football star at South Charleston, was drowned in the Kanawha River yesterday.

ROONEY SEEKS MONTGOMERY, MATESIC

The signing of Cliff Montgomery, former Columbia quarterback and captain by the Brooklyn club and of Dick Matesic, of Pitt, by Philadelphia, has brought forth a loud protest from Art Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National Professional Football League.

Rooney contends he had accepted the terms of Montgomery before Brooklyn signed him, and the fact that Philadelphia claims Matesic should not be recognized inasmuch as a signed contract is in possession of the local club.

Rooney asks President Joe Carr to have the board of directors of the league review the cases.

Rooney wants both Montgomery and Matesic in camp at Mt. Pleasant August 27 to get in shape for the opening game here September 8, with Cincinnati.

BETTY ABERNETHY WINS

New Castle Split On Police Bouts

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 20.—(AP.)—The Ministerial Association of Washington and the city's police department have split over a proposed police-sponsored amateur boxing tournament here on August 10.

In a resolution urging the school board to refuse use of the Taggart Staduim for the tournament, the association declared that "prize fighting is vulgar, bestial, and tends further to lower the moral sag which grips the youth of the nation."

Police announced proceeds from the show will be devoted to purchases of machine guns and other weapons.

National League Gets Texas Umpire

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP.)—John W. Sears, of the Texas League, has been appointed to the umpire staff of the National League by President John Heydler.

The league has been handicapped all the season, first by the illness of John Reardon and later by an injury to Charles Rigler. The addition of Sears increases the staff to 12.

New Kensington, Ford City Clash

FORD CITY, Pa., July 20.—The Ford City and New Kensington American Legion junior baseball nines will clash here this evening in the first game of their series for the Western Pennsylvania championship. Ford City holds the northwestern title and New Kensington the southwestern.

Between Rounds

Ted Yarosz' collapse in his dressing room following his bout with Tait Littman, in Chicago, the other night, is attributed to the heat of the night and the strong ring lights.

Davy Day and Frankie Siglio box in Chicago July 30. They are rated the two best lightweights in Chicago since the rise of Barney Ross.

The Illinois Boxing Commission has recognized Young Stribling, recent victor over Vince Dundee in a non-title fight, as the leading contender for the middleweight title.

Maxie Rosenbloom and Lee Ramage will meet a third time at Los Angeles, July 31. Ramage is leading the series with one decision and a draw.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Greenlee Field—Eddie Zivic knocked out Joey Costa, 9 rounds; Jackie Wilson won referee's decision over Mose Butch, 10 rounds; Al Quaill defeated General Burrows, 5 rounds; Bill Eley knocked out Paddy Gray, 4 rounds; Dandy Allen won referee's decision over Sammy Paris, 5 rounds.

At New York—Tustin Siruta knocked out Eddie Koranik, 3 rounds; Jack Moran knocked out Nick Benson, 1 round; Frankie Silfaren defeated George Nerun, 5 rounds; Ralph Fiumello and Tommy De Stefano drew, 8 rounds; Albert Vassalo defeated John Fleming, 8 rounds.

JOEY EVANS WINS

KITTANNING, July 20.—(AP.)—Joey Evans, 126, Ellwood City, won a decision over Chuck De Santo, 124, Kittanning, in the feature bout of an amateur boxing show last night. Woodrow White, 175-pound state champ from Dayton, won a decision over Joe Popieski, 172, Titusville.

DEAN PITCHES 17TH VICTORY

Associated Press.

At least two pitchers in the National League, Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, of the Cardinals, and Harold (Hal) Schumacher, of the Giants, have earned the privilege of wearing slightly superior looks when any mention is made of the livelier ball used in the senior circuit this year.

Each of them could boast today of nine straight victories, the best winning streaks of the season. Dean was the leading flinger with 17 victories against three defeats and Schumacher was tied with Fred Frankhouse, of Boston, for second place with 14 games won and four lost.

The eccentric Dean chalked up his ninth consecutive triumph yesterday when he stopped the Braves with seven hits to gain a 4-to-2 decision over Bob Smith.

Schumacher continued to show the "Indian sign" over the Reds as he gave them 12 hits and shut them out, 4 to 0.

These two victories failed to alter the upper part of the league standing as the second-place Cubs also came through with a victory, beating the Phillies, 2 to 1.

The other first division team, Pittsburgh, ran into trouble, however, when Linus Frey, of Brooklyn, broke up an elbowing argument between Bill Swift and Emil Leonard by socking a home run with one aboard after two were out in the ninth to give the Dodgers a 4-to-2 decision over the Buccos.

The Ruth-less Yankees recovered some of their recently lost ground in the American League race when they edged out Chicago, 4 to 3, while rain kept Detroit and the Athletics idle.

Cleveland's Indians drew closer to the third-place Red Sox by smashing over five runs in the ninth and defeating the Hose, 6 to 5. The Browns opened an assault on Washington and fifth place by spotting the Senators five runs in the first, then coming from behind to win, 8 to 7, with the aid of two homers by Harland Clift.

By HONUS WAGNER,
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

I saw a mind reader advertised at a show and I thought how lucky it is there are no mind readers in the big leagues. Just picture a mind reader at bat and knowing every time what kind of a ball the pitcher was going to throw. At that, maybe there have been fellows like that in the league and we never knew about it. Maybe the best advice an old-timer could give a youngster wanting to make baseball a career is to learn to become a mind reader. Then he can be one of those Master Minds we hear so much about.

SZWEDKO LEADS GOLF FINAL

Andy Szwedko was leading Davey Wilder, 2 up, at the end of the first 18 holes of their 36-hole match for the City golf championship at Schenley Park today. Szwedko obtained a one-hole lead on the second, but Wilder squared the match on the fifth and became 1 up on the sixth when he scored a 3 to Andy's 4. Andy however, squared the match on the seventh and they remained all even at the turn. Both had medal scores of 37 going out.

Squared going to the twelfth, Szwedko became 1 up by taking a 3 to Wilder's 4. Andy increased his lead on the fourteenth and fifteenth by shooting a pair of 3s to two 4s for Wilder. Wilder cut the lead to 2 up on the seventeenth when he scored a 4 to Szwedko's 5. The cards:

WEST, OLYMPIA, SCHENLEY CARD SEMI-FINALS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Speedy semi-final frays in men's singles will feature today's program on the West, Olympia, Schenley, and, perhaps, Frick lots as the annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh parks tennis championships roll through the fourth daily session of hostilities.

In the South, Highland and North bailiwicks, however, the advance toward the penultimate frame has been impeded partly by the size of the respective entry lists and partly by the inability of a number of outstanding contenders to cavort before the dinner hour, all of which renders it likely that in these three domains, at least, the finals will not be reached till Sunday or Monday.

BETTY RECKER WINS

Meanwhile, the comparatively small fields in the individual parks women's events have rendered the task of approaching the windup competition relatively simple. As a matter of fact, North Park Chairman Fritz Elliott, with only three performers, one of whom defaulted, went right ahead and wound up the feminine tilting in his realm last night, Betty Recker, Bellevue luminary, scoring decisively over Melva Fleming, Perrysville girl, 6-2, 6-0.

Three more seeded combatants were blown from the masculine parade yesterday. Jerry Craig, talented Hill Top junior, pulled the giant-killer act by out-staying husky Art Thielemann, first of the South select quartet, 3-6, 6-0, 6-3.

It remained for Celio Capelli, Bluff street junior darkhorse, to pull the major upset of the day. Capelli and Gene Solow, Pitt varsity product and second on the Schenley schedule of favorites, had battled unexpectedly to a set apiece and 9-9 in the third as darkness interrupted the going Wednesday night. When milling was resumed yesterday, the rivals agreed to re-play canto three from the start, whereupon the youthful Capelli breezed through at 6-1 in very short and impressive order. A bit later, however, he ran afoul of Bernie Pearlstein, of Carnegie Tech, and, though he scrimmaged gamely, he was not quite equal to the occasion of turning in two notable reversals in a single afternoon. The tally registered 6-4, 6-4 for Pearlstein.

SEEDED STARS WIN

Meanwhile the seeded phalanxes on Frick, Highland and West Parks remain unbroken. Harry Wald, former Panther satellite, led the way into the Frick semi-finals with 6-0, 6-1 triumph over Bill Luyster, while Ted Rosenthal, his chief menace for Forbes-Braddock distinction, galloped past elongated Lou Klauss by the same count to achieve the bracket of eight and Don Krey and George Sobel loafed.

Kathryn Welch, brilliant little Coraopolis southpaw, had champion Jean Artzberger in a tight spot in the second round at West, but the four times feminine premiere had too much experience for the youngster and won out at 6-3, 4-6, 6-1. The summary:

Windsor Lad Beaten In English Race

SANDOWN PARK, England, July 20.—(AP.)—King Salmon, an outsider in the betting, today defeated the pick of England's 3-year-olds, including the Derby winner, Windsor Lad, to triumph in the rich Eclipse stakes.

Windsor Lad finished third behind Umidar, the Aga Khan's leading 3-year-old.

LENTZ TO FACE PARMELEE

Billy Lentz, the former South Hills High School pitching ace, gets another big assignment this evening, when the Dormont Club travels to Frick Park to meet the Parmelee nine in a City League engagement.

Lentz's last trip to the mound found him acting in a relief capacity against the Book nine, and Lentz made the Mounties look like second raters at the plate.

After the game Heinie Boll admitted that Lentz is going to go places in the game. He has a fast-breaking curve, nearly impossible to get to it on that outside corner.

The Books missed a chance to take undisputed possession of first place in the City circuit last evening when they were held to a 6-6 tie by Homewood, the giant killers of the league. Homewood came from behind to knot the count in the ninth inning.

Immaculate Heart pounded out an 8-to-2 victory over Mt. Oliver at West Penn Park.

Said bonds will be dated July 1st, 1934, and will mature in twenty (20) equal annual instalments on July 1st, of each year.

Said bonds will bear interest at the rate of three and one-half per centum (3½%) per annum payable semi-annually on July and January 1st in each year, without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania pursuant to any present or future law.

Said $1,500,000.00 General Improvement Bonds, 1934, are issued to provide funds for general public works improvements, including improvement and repair of streets, bridges, bridge approaches, water works and appurtenances, sewerage and drainage systems and appurtenances, public buildings, parks and playgrounds and such other public work as may be designated by Council and are issued by Councilmanic authority.

The $500,000.00 Public Welfare Relief Bonds, 1934, are issued to provide food, clothing, fuel and shelter for and otherwise assist residents of the City of Pittsburgh who are without adequate means of support and were authorized by the Electors at an election held April 26th, 1932.

Said bonds will be coupon bonds of the denomination of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars, exchangeable at the option of the holder at any time for a registered bond or bonds of the same maturity and of the denomination of one hundred ($100.00) dollars or a multiple thereof not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bond or bonds surrendered in exchange therefor.

Girl in the Family

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XL

"Well, we live and learn as Lutie would say, don't we?" Susan's hands dropped from her face. "She says that all good looking men are fickle, too, and I think she's right."

Mary said she wasn't so sure about that. Her face with its brilliant eyes and its red mocking mouth grew thoughtful and still. "Now, you take Allen Sholes, for example," she said. "There aren't very many men who are any better looking than Allen, but he never could be called fickle. He's very firendly with all of us, and he knows I don't go around with any particular man, but do you think he ever makes a pass at me? He does not."

"Still that doesn't prove that he's in love with anyone else."

"Oh, doesn't it? It does to me," answered Mary. "Darling, I've worked on that man, and don't you ever think that I haven't! I've talked to him by the hour and listened to him talk about himself. I've hinted to him that I'd like to go out dancing with him, and I've just about rolled my eyes out of my head trying to send him soulfull glances . . . No, some other girl has put the Indian sign on him or he'd have fallen for me long ago. I used to say that a girl could land any man if she just tried hard enough, but I take it all back, Susie, I take it all back."

"Mary's concentrating on Jim Allbright again," Sara put in drily, getting up from the corner of the bed and shaking out her georgette skirt. "And now, if she'll let me get a word in edgewise I'd like to tell you that George and I are going to be married in June!" She smiled at Susan, fairly glowing so that for a moment she was more vivid and colorful and alive-looking than Mary, and Susan wondered how anyone could be so radiant over the thought of marrying George Shumaker with his puns and his bald spot and his deep stomach laugh that shook his whole stout body.

Thinks of Allen

When Mary and Sara were gone she sat for a long time looking down into the backyard where the long blue shadows of late afternoon lay . . . The girls would go back to Mills road with the news that she had broken her engagement to Wallace and Allen would hear about it. Perhaps, if he still cared about her, he would come down to Clay street now to find her. He must know where she was, for the Cullen's dining room table was an open forum where everybody discussed all the family news and problems. There were no dark secrets, no forbidden topics, no family skeletons at the Cullens'. Their lives were as open as the house itself was with its many windows whose blinds were always rolled high to let in all the sunlight there was.

As she sat there a feeling of certainty that Allen would come to find her came over her, and from then on she began to wait for him, just as she had waited for him to write to her or telephone her during that last week in Center street.

Everything she did was colored by the thought of Allen. She washed and ironed the cuffs and collars of her work dress every night when she came home, carefully powdered her nose and adjusted the little black beret on her head when she left the store at half past five, kept herself looking as attractive as possible every second of the day. For some evening she might step out of the back door of the building and find him waiting for her as a great many young men waited outside the store at night for the girls who worked there. Some morning she might look up from a pile of phonograph records and see him standing at the counter in the music department. Some night he might come walking down Clay street and knock on the yellow door of Anna's house—

The old sense of expectancy came back to Susan. The familiar feeling that just around the corner, in the next block, might be the person she had always been waiting to see. Only now she knew who that person was. That was the only difference.

April went by. Susan had bought herself a pair of black suede pumps and had put $9 into the fund for the secretarial course. She was elated to feel that she was that much closer to the goal and that she was successfully carrying out the program that she had made for herself.

She had made friends, too. Sometimes at noon when she had eaten her lunch she took a walk down the sunny side of Twenty-fifth street with two or three of the girls who clerked at the store—Miss Ostrander, of the drapery department; Dora Simelink and Mamie Magnus, who worked in the hosiery department on the first floor; Elsie Stieglitz, whose peaches-and-cream complexion was a great help to her in selling face creams and powders at the cosmetics counter. Pleasant, pretty, well-dressed girls with odd foreign names that were unknown to the Blue Book and the Social Register so dear to the heart of Aunt Edna and the other Brodericks.

Susan was proud of these friendships in the store. It pleased her to know that she had the knack of making friends now that she had a chance to meet people—even the humble people of the South Side. "I do believe that I'm what's known as a 'good mixer,'" she wrote to John the week that Elsie Stieglitz asked her to join the Twenty-fifth Street Y. M. C. A., where the young women of the Eagle Store learned to play basketball and swim in the big green-tiled tank in the basement.

Still Holds Hope

Early in May it began to dawn upon Susan that Allen was not coming down to Clay street to see her and that he evidently had no intention of trying to see her anywhere else. When she stepped out into the mild evening air after her day at the store she no longer half expected to see him standing on the sidewalk at the side of the building.

But still she did not give up hope of seeing him. There was still the chance that she would meet him at the Cullens' sooner or later. So long as he was still living there she was almost bound to run into him.

About noon on the second Sunday in May the telephone rang in the dairy behind the house and, when Susan ran out to answer it, Aunt Nell was on the wire asking her to come to supper that night so they could all put their heads together over their dresses for Sara's wedding.

"She's made up her mind to have you and Mary for bridesmaids," said Aunt Nell, "and have the wedding out here in the side yard. I've been trying to tell her that she'll have all the kids in the neighborhood hanging over the fence to watch if she does it that way, but she says that's all right. Well, maybe it is—A wedding's quite a sight for anyone and I don't blame people wanting to see one."

Late in the afternoon Sara and George Shumaker drove over to Clay Street for Susan and, all the way to Mills Road, Susan's heart sang, "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" to the sound of the wheels on the asphalt. A dozen times she looked into her vanity mirror, tucking up the tiny locks of her hair that kept blowing out from under her hat and rubbing powder on and off her face.

She sat in the Cullens' upstairs sitting room until supper time talking animatedly to Aunt Nell and Mary about bridesmaids' dressts of dotted silk net made with puffed sleeves and long ruffled skirts that would trail along the ground.

Plans Dresses

"I thought old blue would be lovely for you, Susan," said Aunt Nell, brooding over style books, "and yellow for Mary because her hair has so much red in it."

Susan nodded, her eyes and her thoughts fixed on the white-painted door at the end of the upstairs hall—the door of the room that had been Connie's and now belonged to Allen. She could imagine just how he was sitting behind that closed door, his hair rumpled up and his head bent low over his law books, just as she had often seen him through the doorway of his room on Center street. She wondered if he were thinking of her, if he were acutely conscious of the fact that she was in the house with him, if he were looking forward with eagerness to the moment when the supper bell should ring and they would see each other once more.

It seemed to her that whole eternities passed before Aunt Nell laid aside her fashion books and said that it was high time they were thinking about getting something ready for supper.

"We're going to have your favorite jellied chicken, Susie," she said, "and cucumbers with the sour cream dressing that you're so fond of. We planned this supper just for Susie."

There was cocoanut layer cake too, she added, and if Howard had remembered to turn the freezer in the basement, there were two quarts of maple ice cream all ready.

"Mary, you fix up the salad and the butter balls," she directed, "and, Sarah, why don't you make some lemonade Susan, will you set the table? There will be just seven of us."

"Seven?" repeated Susan. With the family, and Allen and George and herself as extras, there would be eight according to her quick calculation.

"Yes. Allen won't be here. He's gone out to have supper with some friends of his in Bellmore Park. I told him you were coming but he said he had this engagement with his friends and he couldn't break it."

Susan Disappointed

"No, of course, he couldn't," said Susan in an ordinary tone. "I know he has some friends out there—Judge Harmon's family. He's known them for a long time." She felt sick with disappointment? He didn't want to see her. He had gone away because he didn't want to see her. She was sure of it.

But after supper when the radio was going and she sat on the davenport with Howard, helping him with a cross-word puzzle, she began to half expect Allen to come home before she left. It was 9 o'clock according to the crystal clock on the mantel piece. Everybody had Sunday evening supper early, and he might be able to leave the Harmon's about this time and be home before 10 o'clock when she planned to leave.

At 10 o'clock, when George got up and said, "You wanted to leave at 10, didn't you, Susie? I'll drive you home," Allen had not arrived. As George's roadster reached the corner of the street a trolley car came along and stopped. Susan held her breath, leaning forward in her seat, to see who got off. But it was only a young woman with a sleeping child in her arms. . . .

"If there was any doubt in my mind about Allen, it ought to be all gone now," she told her reflection in the cracked mirror of her dressing table that night as she got ready for bed.

He could have come back to Cullens' in time to see her if he had wanted to. Not only that, but he need not have gone to the Harmons' at all that night, and he wouldn't have if he cared about her. The thing to do was to admit to herself once and for all that he had not a shred of interest in her any more and then completely forget him. It ought to be easy to do it now that he had shown her so clearly just how he felt about her.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Here's a brand new contest today, fellows!

Just as easy as last week's! Now you'll all have time to write the best letters ever. And the subject this time is just as interesting—just as much fun to write about it.

So here goes—we want letters of 100 words or less that tell us about the best outing you ever had. Isn't that a peach of a subject.

Everybody has had lots of good times at outings—and this means picnics, vacation trips, hikes and trips to some other town or place. In the letters this week we want you to describe the outings you enjoyed most. You'll be able to think of a dozen good times right away!

The rules this week are the same as for last week's contest. Best of all, so are the prizes!

Yes, sir, fellows, that first prize of $2.50 for the best letter still goes. And so does the second prize of $1.50 and third prize of $1. The three best letter writers are going to get that money. And, as Snuggins said, look how many ice cream cones that will buy!

The contest ends next Thursday midnight. That means that everybody has just one week, starting today, to write their letters. You can write as many letters as you want.

Remember, too, fellows, that this contest is only for Junior Patrol members. You have to sign the pledge, or a copy of the pledge, to make your letters count. So if you are a member now be sure to put your badge or card number on your letter. Send all letters to Junior Patrol Contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Last week's winners will be announced in a day or two. The judges are busy now looking over every letter carefully. You can bet that the names they pick will be the best letter writers last week. But that doesn't mean somebody else can't win this week. We're looking for more and better letters than ever.

Daily Short Short-Story

By FRANK KERN LEVIN

"We could get off here," Janet said, and pointed with her finger as the street car slowed down.

"Then why don't we?" Raymond asked politely, because he was Janet's guest now.

"The distance we have to walk is just as far either way," Janet explained, "and if we get off at the next stop we go down Center street where the trees are and they smell nice."

Janet had only been visiting in New York, but it had been long enough not only for Raymond to meet her, but to marry her as well. In the natural course of events, it followed that there was a honeymoon; and since Chicago was having its world's fair, and, in addition, since there were hundreds of things Janet wanted to show Raymond in Chicago, the allotted two weeks were being spent in the lusty city by the lake.

"You must be very, very respectful to Mrs. Arkwood," Janet was saying as Raymond helped her down the steps of the street car.

"I'll make a study of respectability while in her presence," promised Raymond.

"Don't the trees smell nice?"

"The trees smell just as nice as you said they would."

"We turn the corner here. It's only a few blocks farther on. You're not getting tired, are you?" Janet asked.

"Oh, no. A little walk like this wouldn't make me tired."

"I didn't think it would, but I just thought I'd ask. This street, you know, is called Arkwood place. It was named after Mrs. Arkwood's husband a long time ago, before he died."

"Before he died? I see," Raymond smiled.

"That does sound silly, doesn't it, but I didn't mean it that way. I meant they named it after him when he'd gotten a corner on wheat and got to be one of the richest and most prominent men in the city and bought a whole city block for his estate. That's where Mrs. Arkwood lives now, on the estate."

"But why did he build it here of all places?" Raymond asked.

"Well, the city's changed a lot since then, I guess. Then there wasn't a lot of tenement houses packed together the way it is now.

"And they're going to tear down Mrs. Arkwood's place too as soon as she dies. You see, she hasn't any money because a few years after Mr. Arkwood got his corner on the wheat, somebody else got a corner on the wheat. I've heard my grandfather say it was terrible because you couldn't get any bread. All that wheat was stored up and the man who had it wouldn't sell it because he had a corner on it. Doesn't that sound silly?"

"It does," agreed Raymond. "It was most terrible for Mr. Arkwood, I guess, because he lost all his money and comitted suicide."

"Was he starving to death because he couldn't get any bread and just cut short his misery, or was it only because he lost all his money?"

"It was only because he lost all his money. The only thing that was left for poor Mrs. Arkwood was the house and she almost got put out of it."

"So they didn't put her out of the house?"

"They remembered what a great man Mr. Arkwood had been, how he had got a corner on wheat all by himself, and they didn't. Her friends pay the taxes and the other bills, and everybody that comes to see her brings something for her to eat."

"I'm sure she'll appreciate the cake you're bringing."

"It would be funny if I brought anything else, she might get insulted. I'm just bringing her something because everybody does, and she kind of expects it," Janet said, and then as they came away from the tenement buildings surrounding them to a high stone wall, added: "Here's the place. The gate's at the other end."

"I can't see much, but it does look lovely. And you say they are going to tear it down?"

"Oh, yes, they've been planning on it for years and years now. The house is really in terrible shape. They're going to tear it down as soon as Mrs. Arkwood dies, but she just goes on living. I sometimes feel guilty about it because when I used to hear it talked about I think I kind of wished Mrs. Arkwood wouldn't take such a long time dying. Of course I was only a little girl then, and everything was already so crowded and there wasn't any place to play."

"Why would tearing down the place make any difference?"

"Well, you see," said Janet as she led Raymond through the gate, "as soon as they get the building all torn down they are going to turn the place into a little park for the children."

"Of course Mrs. Arkwood can't live forever," Raymond said dryly.

"No," agreed Janet, and blushing just a bit nonchalantly added: "And what I've missed, my children will have."

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Today, Tomorrow

O, heart, if you have a sorrow,
Let go and leave it now,
For this is that bright tomorrow
Whose joys you have prayed to borrow
And set like a crown on your brow!

You have said: "With tomorrow's waking
I shall tread a happier sphere,
When the new day's dawn is breaking
I shall greet it with rapture, forsaking
The cares that have vexed me here."

You have ached with your foolish longing
For that season, so far away,
When blisses would come to you thronging;
O, heart, how your dreams have been wronging

The morrow that dawns each day!
Each day is a promise, fruited,
And yielding its sweets to you
With treasure from past years looted;
The morrow where dreams are rooted,
Each day is a hope come true!

Pulling 'Em Out of the Ocean

Heroic tales of rescue at sea and fearless deeds of valor in the racing sponge are arriving from the sun-kissed seaside strands.

Bar Harbor: Miss Tootles Beepinger was yanked loose from a watery sepulchre by a handsome life guard. Miss Beepinger had gone in over her depth while bobbing for apples. The brave guard swam eight miles during the thrilling rescue, the last seven miles being in beer at the fair Miss Tootles' summer home. They will be married at the little moldewed chapel in the swamp. The bride is heiress to ninety-six million dollars that her old man made cooking in a lumber camp.

Santa Monica: One of the most exciting rescues this resort ever saw occurred when Tillie Flimpo stood on her head in a cup of cold tea and was pulled out by a good-looking life guard. The happy girl is the daughter of the Honorable Jonathan Grindem, famous for his wealth and philanthropy. Needless to say, Miss Flimpo will marry her gallant life guard and will start housekeeping in a completely furnished garage.

Atlantic City: While tossing a look over her shoulder during the light of a full moon, Ella Please did a nose dive into a wishing well. She was having her future blasted by a gypsy fortune buzzer. One of our best-looking beach constables tossed her a rope and ding-donged her back to safety. Miss Please is the daughter of the Newport Pleases who summer on the back porch and winter in the oven. It was a case of love at first sight. The guard's name doesn't matter because it will be a different one next season. Miss Ella has now just about married the entire life-saving squads on the Atlantic Coast.

Virginia Beach: A scream for help caused William Wiwer to plunge into a terrible undertow and rescue his own wife. The seaweed in her hair caused the mistake. Mutual apologies were made and accepted.

Cape May: Beautiful Valerie Eskbait was saved from a tour in the Gulf Stream by the Apollo of the Jersey life savers. Three times she was swept away and twice he hooked her. Finally they rolled her over a barrel and spanked her with a bull fiddle. She is rich in her own right and will marry the man who owns the barrel. Valerie has married so many handsome rescuers that she now wears a catcher's mask for a bridal veil.

Easthampton: There is what the ultra monde call an impasse in this joint. The handsome life guards are all married now and refuse to rescue any more rich girls. They don't want to commit bigamy and spoil the racket. The last heiress went yesterday when Joe Crash, of Harvard, Yale and Notre Dame, smacked her across the ankle with a broom and swept her off her feet. She was ankle deep at the time and screaming for handsome assistance over a National hook-up. The marriage took place in the Van Brooster kennels, palatial home of the bride's parents.

ODD FACTS

Perhaps the world's record for shorthand writing is held by Mr. Lewis, of Johannesburg, South Africa; throughout one session of the boundaries commission, he averaged 178 words a minute throughout one whole day. During the last forty-eight minutes, he recorded 9,337 words, or an average of 198½ a minute.

A Model for Pennsylvania

New York Plans for Simplifying Government Can Be Used for Guidance

The question of abolishing oxcart government by eliminating unnecessary counties, townships and other administrative districts promises to be a big issue at the next regular session of the Legislature.

The New York Legislature has been called into special session to deal with the problem. The principle that county and local government must be radically reorganized has been definitely accepted by the legislative leaders of both major parties.

The situation in New York is in many respects similar to that in Pennsylvania. There, as here, some of the desired reforms can be effected only by constitutional amendment, and constitutional amendments must be approved by two legislatures and then submitted to a vote of the people Pennsylvania has need of a constitutional convention.

There are other similarities between New York and Pennsylvania which make it instructive to study what is planned there as guidance for our own planning.

The two states are more or less alike in size, population and the character of the people. In New York, as in Pennsylvania, we find large cities at the eastern and western ends of the state, and a large and sparsely inhabited mountainous tract in the interior.

New York state has 13,000 units of county, local and district government which the foremost authorities say could be reduced with advantage to 45. Pennsylvania is confronted with a like situation.

How shall the radical reduction in administrative units be effected?

The New York American presents a scientific plan for that state which might well be examined by Pennsylvanians, since the principles involved apply with equal force to our state.

Under the New York plan the sparsely settled Adirondacks region would lose all local governments and become a unified State Administrative District, comprising parts of Lewis, Herkimer, Hamilton, St. Lawrence, Franklin, Essex, Warren and Fulton counties. Maine now has a state district for the same kind of country.

Buffalo, like New York City, would become an independent city with enlarged territory.

Eight other cities—Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, Utica, Troy, Schenectady, Yonkers and Binghamton—would absorb into one centralized government all the communities in their respective counties.

Heavily populated counties without large cities, like Nassau and Suffolk, would abolish towns, villages and districts and each have merely ONE government along metropolitan lines.

More rural counties, like Wyoming and Livingston, would be enabled to consolidate, two or more counties joining together, and set up similar unified governments, eliminating villages and districts.

The names of Pennsylvania counties which will quickly come to the mind of everyone familiar with the state can be readily substituted for those of New York in the proposals thus outlined, and a rough working plan will be available for the reforms that must be made in our state.

Candidates for the Legislature should give immediate consideration to the subject and let the public know what they think of it.

Let Us Have the Facts

The County Commissioners Would Do Well to Hold a Hearing on the Airport Rates

Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., about to inaugurate a 15-hour daily service between New York and Los Angeles, left Pittsburgh out of its schedule in a trial flight yesterday.

This is taken in aviation circles as a warning to the County Commissioners that unless rates for the use of the county airport are reduced, as the company demands, its airplanes will not stop here on transcontinental flights.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern thinks the company is "bluffing."

The public is in no position to form a judgment because few data have been supplied by the parties at controversy and there is conflict between the statements.

The airlines ask the County Commissioners for a hearing. They should have one, and it should be public. Let the facts be known, particularly in respect to the charge that the rates charged at the county airport are higher than those charged at other municipal airports.

New Summer Resorts

It Is Not Necessary to Leave Pennsylvania to Find Interesting Vacation Spots

Two potential new summer resorts figure in current news items. Both are in Pennsylvania, already rich in recreation and scenic resources.

An Associated Press dispatch tells of the discovery of an underground lake 10 miles long near Bedford. Boys who squeezed their way through a crevice in a stone quarry say they found numerous rooms with stalactite and stalagmite formations and a lake of crystal clear water.

The Pathfinder of the Pittsburgh Motor Club tells of the other new resort in a bulletin telling how to reach Pymatuning Lake, in which motorboats have already appeared and in which millions of fish have been placed, although the lake, formed by damming the Shenango Valley, has not yet reached its full size.

It is rather paradoxical that as transportation facilities increase it becomes less needful to leave Pennsylvania to find an attractive vacation spot.

Women Diplomats

Hard to Fool.

Any retail merchant will tell you that women know values and know how to insist on getting their money's worth.

Trust a woman to drive a harder and sounder bargain than a man any time.

Perhaps that's why the governments of the world are beginning to select women diplomats. After all, diplomacy is nothing but a kind of bargaining, although the fancy flub-dub of the external formality tends to hide the hard common sense values underneath.

We have Mrs. Owen representing Uncle Sam in Denmark.

Mme. Kollontai is one of the ace-diplomats of the Soviet Foreign Office.

Now the British contemplate following these examples.

Those against the idea said women would be misled by flattery of foreigners; those in favor say women are no more vain than men, and, besides, in diplomacy flattery is salved on so thickly that no sensible woman would be fooled by it.

Plastered Over

No wonder, in this picture, Uncle Sam exclaims, "What has happened to my Government?"

In one of his illuminating articles on affairs at Washington, published in the Hearst newspapers, Richard Washburn Child remarked:

"In all the protests drifting into Washington against growing bureaucracy the general idea is that office and file cabinet regulations are supplanting laws in Congress and even constitutional amendments."

Just a few days earlier a committee of the American Bar Association issued a report warning that because of bureaucratic orders—

"It is not going too far to state that the judicial branch of the Federal Government is being rapidly and seriously undermined."

And if evidence be needed consider ONE ISSUE of the NRA official weekly The Blue Eagle, Volume 1, No. 4, dated July 2, 1934.

This issue contains, for the week June 21 to 27, more than three pages of "administrative orders"—a total of THIRTY-FIVE arbitrary commandments, affecting TWENTY-EIGHT separate industries.

Who can be surprised that the Bar Association committee said:

"It becomes HOPELESS for the average citizen to attempt to understand his Government."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 20.—Thoughts while strolling: Whenever La Guardia talks I can't see anything but his tongue. Does anyone use those rocking blotters any more? Suggestion: Why not put an end to the New York Boxing Commission? Or better—end all boxing. Eddie Cantor makes statements on everything.

One word description of James Montgomery Flagg—lanky. Most of us wandering around seeking the blue horizon. Whatever became of the georgette blouse? And water spaniels? They say George Horace Lorimer encouraged Bernard Baruch to become a literary man. Alexander Woollcott's rubbery walk.

Add debonaire men about town—Harry Bannister. French dressmakers are flocking as fast to New York as immigration laws allow to open shops. If they won't come to Paris, Paris will come to New York. The sour expression of Western Union messenger boys airing kiyoodles from smart hotels.

That attractive awning at Peggy Hoyt's. Octavus Roy Cohen is usually just back or starting on a cruise. Nobody can look so tight-lipped as Frank Case. That comes from saying "No" to actors. Blanche Ring is one of the old-time troupers who always has a job.

Those every half hour funeral processions over the Fifty-ninth Street Bridge. The skittish brightness in Queenie Smith's eyes. Maj. Bowes is always giving parties for widows of old friends. The widows are too often forgot. Now for a hot grapple with a long, cool lemonade.

* * *

The well seasoned sporting editor is an amazingly human encyclopedia. Most of them in New York have come up from copy-running, ink-stained, secluded and hard-boiled guys, the sort down and outers always find cinchy for the quick touch. Their capable heads are packed with figures and data. Any athlete's record can be spun off as quickly as that. They mostly select and direct, but when exigency demands can, between the furore of editions, sit at a typewriter and slam out one of those unpredictably robust stories that remains long in memory. Ed Frayne, for example. Or Bill Farnsworth.

Incidentally, the top yarn of the Carnera-Baer brawl was a sympathetic study of the forlorn Carnera on the eve of the battle that cost him his crown. The piece was turned out in the running fire of a news room by Bill Corum and is another reason Boonville, Mo., should be on the map as Corum, Mo.

He sits on a traffic isle on a broad boulevard leading into Forest Hills. On top of his little box in front are a stack of summery beach caps and a mixed pile of smoked motor glasses. A smudgy sign proclaims "25 cents." In his 70's, few who bowl along recognize him as once owner of Long Island's most pretentious road house. Ten years ago he quit and invested his fortune in guaranteed mortgages. And there he is!

Jules Brulatour is New York's most persistent first nighter. He was a first nighter back in the Diamond Jim, Doily Sisters day and has out-first-nighted many who came after. Since his marriage to Hope Hampton he has continued down front on the aisle.

The star system still rules the box office. Helen Hays dropping out of her hit play is an illustration. The week before her exit the intake had been $28,000. The first week of her layoff it dropped to $9,000 and the show closed until she can return to the cast.

* * *

Walter Huston's box office tug in the movies went suddenly off shortly before his New York stage experiment. No reason. So a bit bewildered he came to New York and his great success "Dodsworth." This sent the movie moguls into quick huddle and Huston is back making a picture again—as a feeler.

The Thirty-eighth street sidewalk where I waited today gave a sudden lurch. It developed I was standing on trap doors over an elevator that was coming up. As the entire street seemed rocking in seismic sway all I could think of was: "What a laugh for Los Angeles!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

We've Gone Synthetic

The thing that I can't stomach about our modern America is the way we've gone synthetic—and don't give a darn!

Far be it from me to join the doddering chorus that proclaims that everyone was a Two-Fisted Hero or a Golden-Hearted Heroine in the Good Old Days. We were nothing of the sort. There was just as much human cussedness in 1844 as there is in 1934—just as many loafers, grouchers, naggers, bullies and general nuisances. But we WERE what we WERE—and we rarely pretended to be anything else.

But nowadays, practically everyone seems trying to pass himself off as something that's a million miles removed from the original blue print.

Not really TRYING to BE something bigger and better, mind you; but just going through the motions to make you think he is.

I doubt if there ever was a time in American history when there were more phonies running around loose—and not a bit ashamed of it!

Take this writing game, for example. Time was when if you wrote, you wrote. And if you didn't, you didn't. And barring forgers, nobody tried to get by on fake manuscripts. But at the present moment the literary racket has all other forms of hijacking practically backed off the boards.

Does this mean that we are beset by would-be Shaws, Hemingways, Gathers and Parrishes? Far from it. Sincere ambition is always admirable, even if it isn't backed with a smitch of talent.

But a literary career is the last thing desired by word wranglers. They've never written an honest page in their lives, and have no intention of trying. And they would be both amazed and disgusted if anyone introduced them to the drudgery of a real writing job.

They don't want to be writers—they just want you to think they are!

And what an act they put on! Frequently, their only claim to Bohemian standing is the fact that they once met somebody who knew a friend of a sister of the chum of the girl who married the editor of Boudoir Blurbs.

But does that cramp their style for the teeniest, weeniest, ittiest, bittiest moment? No, dearie, it doesn't. Without a qualm, they proceed to join pen clubs and attend press luncheons and equip their "studios" with enough writing gadgets and arty atmosphere to set a whole crew of Shakespeares up in business.

All for what? All so somebody will take them for a Bird of Paradise instead of a plain Brown Leghorn.

As a matter of fact, honest-to-goodness authors are not in the least bird-of-paradisy. There could be nothing less exotic than the average drab writer, or less Arabian Nightish than his monotonous program. But the phoney Bohemian waves this fact airily away. He knows that People Who Write are supposed to be Simply Wonderful, and that the curious public falls for 'em like they do for five-legged calves. So he proceeds to go literary in a big way. And does he get a hand!

And frequently that hand is extremely profitable. I know a long-haired, owlish gent who, on the strength of one report on hog cholera, gave a whole series of lectures on psychology. And there are scads of Wealthy Old Gals—in sandals and Egyptian beads—who take regular leases on Ghost Writers.

Nor is this racket confined to the writing guild. There isn't a job that hasn't its synthetic faker. Simple souls they are at heart, most of 'em. Real good dishwashers! Swell ditch-diggers! But will they admit such meager tastes and talents? Migosh, no! No one-reel lives for them! For—

They're the guys who taught Lindbergh to fly—

Or gave Franklin D. the dope for his New Deal—

Or knew Garbo when her hair was curly—

Or helped Secretary Perkins choose that tricorn hat!

And can you call their bluff?

Try and do it!

ISN'T IT SO?

Pity is just an inexpensive form of charity.

Others soon forget the man who thinks only of himself.

Man has obtained control over about everything but himself.

A bachelor is a man who doesn't believe in matrimonial mergers.

There are two sides to every domestic question: The winning side and the one the husband takes.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Speaking of Men - - -

It may sound paradoxical, but nothing chills a man's love so quickly as a woman's attempt to keep it at a permanently high temperature.

The man who qualifies as an expert authority on the subject of love and women is seldom the one who wastes his time writing books about it or giving advice to women's clubs. He is too busy practising, to stop and theorize.

* * *

The telephone has saved many a man from sudden death. It is not until he foolishly refuses to answer it, that a jealous woman decides to try something more deadly.

* * *

A bride usually tries to be bright and entertaining at the breakfast table, until the bridegroom slams down his cup and rushes out of the front door in order to refrain from throwing the eggs at her.

A woman will forgive the man she loves for almost any kind of lie—but never for perfect candor.

* * *

When a man gets into a foolish entanglement with the wrong woman, it isn't so often because he's looking for adventure as because he's trying to escape monotony.

* * *

The difference between the old-fashioned lover and the modern lover is merely that the former was always trying to control his desire to kiss a girl, while the latter is usually trying to work up a little enthusiasm for kissing her.

A man can't be perfectly happy with any woman, unless he feels that he's "misunderstood." Then he can go ahead and do as he pleases.

* * *

Love-at-first-sight seldom lasts beyond the second kiss—and almost never beyond the second week.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

You are known to be insincere because you so often flatter people and agree with them in statements they make.

You do this to gain and retain popularity.

Sensible people are not deceived by you.

General sentiment is that you are deceitful—and you are.

If you are honest, you will not support anyone in an assertion which you believe to be untrue.

If you do not wish to take direct issue with the person advancing information, do not by your silence acquiesce when you know that your silence gives consent.

It is quite all right to tell others of complimentary things you may have heard of them.

This is particularly true when based upon substantial statements.

But the fulsome flatterer who needs but little to cause him to become voluble in his praise of another person present has a personal motive prompting him.

Such an individual hopes to gain something from oral bouquets.

If you are not sincere, quit giving compliments.

And the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance for ever. Isaiah, xxxii:17

Precedent for Federal Action in Strike

By James T. Williams, Jr.

THERE is nothing new, nothing original about the strike of the longshoremen and stevedores along the waterfront of San Francisco, which has paralyzed for several months the shipping of that seaport.

Even the threat of a general strike aimed at the very heart of the city of San Francisco is not without precedent in American history. Boston faced that threat in September, 1919, during the Boston police strike.

There have been serious strikes in the past and there will doubtless be serious strikes in the future. Under the American system of government there is ample authority to protect public interest whenever and wherever public officials, municipal, state or federal, have the courage to discharge unflinchingly the great responsibility which great authority involves.

Under the American system of government, the maintenance of law and order within a sovereign state is a state responsibility and the people look to the Governor of the state to discharge that responsibility. Where the Mayor of the city, be it Boston, Chicago, San Francisco or some other city or town, finds himself unable to cope with the situation, the Governor can take over by declaring martial law.

The armed forces of the state are under the command of the Governor. If they are insufficient, or for any reason are unable to maintain law and order and uphold the sovereignty of the state, the Governor can appeal to the President of the United States for federal assistance and federal troops to put down the uprising, rebellion or revolution against the state's sovereignty.

But the President of the United States has his responsibility, entirely independent of any appeal for aid from the Governor.

* * *

Clearly Defined By Secretary Olney

THIS responsibility has never been more clearly defined than Richard Olney, Grover Cleveland's Secretary of State, defined it 40 years ago this month. The Pullman strike of 1894 was then in effect.

On July 2 of that year word reached the White House that the temper of the strikers was such as to indicate that the use of federal troops might be necessary "if the United States mails are to be kept moving" and the injunction of a federal court against the officials of the striking railway union was to be respected.

President Cleveland took swift action. Additional federal troops were immediately ordered to Chicago to reinforce those already there. This action brought a protest from Gov. Altgeld upon the ground that he had not requested federal assistance and therefore he asked the immediate withdrawal of the active troops throughout the state.

And a great American then at the White House, Mr. Olney, speaking for a great Democrat, President, said in reply to the Governor's protest:

"The soil of Illinois is the soil of the United States and, for all United States purposes, the United States is there with its court, its marshals and its troops, not by license or comity, but as a right. The paramount duty of the President of the United States is to see that the laws of the United States are faithfully executed, and in the discharge of that duty he is not hampered or crippled by the necessity of consulting chief of police, Mayor or even Governor. In the present instance, nothing has been done and nothing ordered which the most captious critic can condemn as any invasion of state rights.

"The action of the National Executive has been simply and exclusively directed to the enforcement of the United States laws, the execution of the orders and processes of the United States courts and the prevention of any obstruction of the United States mails.

"The notion that the territory of any state is too sacred to permit the exercise thereon, by the United States government, of any of its legitimate functions never had any legal existence, and, as a rule of conduct, became practically extinct with the close of the Civil War."

* * *

Olney Supported By Cleveland

THE fact that Secretary Olney was speaking with Presidential authority became convincingly clear to the nation and the world three days later when President Cleveland issued his famous proclamation of July 8, 1894, announcing his employment of the military forces of the United States to enforce the execution of federal laws, to protect federal property and to remove obstructions to the federal mails in the state of Illinois and the city of Chicago. This was quickly followed by a second proclamation which recognized the nation-wide extent of the rebellion against federal authority.

When these proclamations were defied by the officials of the American Railway Union, who refused to "retire peaceably," they were arrested on July 10 and that ended the Pullman strike of 1894.

Human Side of the News

Recent Elections Indicate the Boss System in Municipal Politics Is Down, If Not Out

By Edwin C. Hill

HAVE we come to the twilight of the bosses? Are they finally passing over the bridge to whatever Valhalla is reserved for their kind? The question pops out of the news from at least three great cities.

By all report and indication the smashing of the Vare machine in Philadelphia is completed, and the gray and pudgy William Scott Vare takes his place on the shelf along with John F. Curry, of New York, and Maurice Maschke, of Cleveland. Thus, within a year's time, we have the rare spectacle of three of the outstanding political bosses of the country passing out of the picture.

With no one rising in Chicago to take Anton Cermak's place, it appears that only Kansas City, in the person of bluff Tom Prendergast, can show us a boss of the old school. Tom came through handily in the mayoralty election last spring, but he has a state primary ahead of him in August which may or may not take a little away from his prestige.

* * *

Vare Started As Cash Boy

VARE, Curry and Prendergast, three from the same mold, with one alone clinging on in face of the uprising against the machine! All started in humble circumstances, Vare as a cash boy in Philadelphia's Wanamaker's; Curry on New York's West Side, and Prendergast in the tough North Side of Kansas City.

From petty ward politics they made their way up to control of great municipalities. Vare and Curry served terms in Congress, but Prendergast went by the rule that no boss should hold an elective office.

All three had their private lucrative businesses. Vare was the official truckman of Philadelphia, so much so that Boies Penrose was wont to refer to him as the "ashcart statesman." Curry's sideline in New York was insurance, and Prendergast takes care of most of his city's needs in the cement line.

Maschke was the first to go, his retirement coming about last year after his 20 years of dominance in Ohio politics by a Democratic victory in Cleveland. Curry was next, the sins of the Jimmy Walker administration being visited upon him in the mayoralty election of 1933, which saw the Democracy split with Tammany and the Roosevelt forces having seprate tickets in the field enabling LaGuardia and fusion to administer a crushing defeat.

* * *

Vare Defeat A Great Surprise

THE ousting of Vare was more unexpected. He alone had carried a major state for Hoover in 1932. Despite the affair of 1926 when the United States Senate refused him the seat to which he was elected, those not close to Philadelphia politics had no inkling of his shaky position. He himself got the surprise of his life in the primaries which showed his losing 15 of the 50 wards. As he said: "I cannot believe the figures."

There is scarcely a chance of his coming back. He is well over 60 and in 1928 suffered a stroke of paralysis. His quarter of a century of power behind him, he probably will spend most of his time in his Florida home with his wife and two daughters to whom he is much devoted.

Maurice Maschke in retirement, contents himself at the bridge table where he is a master player. John Curry keeps his hand in at golf and the racetrack. Prendergast, survivor of the Old Guard, goes about dispensing his silver quarters to the needy and watching his rocehorses run.

The cynic may laugh off the wave of reform which seems under way in municipal politics. We have had them before, it is true, but rarely so many at one time. Dynasties, such as Tammany's and Vare's have risen from their ashes. They may do it again, but for the present at least, the boss system is down if it is not out.
